NEW ONTARIO OUTLOOK.

MR. M. MacLEOD, who is a regular caller on the grocery trade throughout New Ontario and the Soo district, was met on Front street, Toronto, the other day by a representative of "The Canadian Grocer," and the conversation turned on the situation in the north, from which Mr. MacLeod had just returned. The outlook at the Soo Mr. MacLeod considers much brighter than is generally conceded in the older portions of the province.

The Soo merchants were indeed anxious for a time, as the men were two or three months behind in their pay, and, consequently, in arrears with their accounts. The payment of the men resulted in a liquidation of these accounts, and the merchants are consequently in a much better position and spirits. The pulp mills, street cars and ferries are again running, and it is expected that the sawmills and veneer mills will soon again be under way. The loose fish, said Mr. MacLeod, and a few families, had moved out of town, but the place was still in good shape, and there was plenty of work for all who were still there. It is confidently expected that all the Soo industries will be again in running shape by Spring, and the feeling is much brighter than ever before.

All along the north shore there is a great demand for men. A thousand would not fill the demand at Sudbury. Lumbermen cannot get sufficient hands. As a result wages are away up, and the output will be very much curtailed. The Spanish River will produce only 200 million feet instead of 300 million, as last year, and a corresponding decrease will take place all along the shore. It is estimated that the shortage will be between 200 and 300 million feet. The Nickel company at Sudbury are taking all the men they can get. New smelters are in process of building, and next year their capacity will be more than doubled. Development is also noticeable with The Rock Lake Mining Co., who are putting down a new 1,000-ft. shaft, besides increasing the old one from 400 to 1,000 feet. Connecting shafts will also be put in at each 100-ft. level. These are but examples of what is being done all along the lake shore.

APPROVES CANADIAN CHEESE.

The A. F. FRUIT AND NUTS

FOR THE CHRISTMAS TRADE.

AMONG the lines, special attention to which about Christmas time is well worth the grocer's while, is that of foreign and fancy fruits. The average grocer, of course, carries a few oranges and bananas at least some time during the year, and, in not a few of our ambitious stores, almost any fruit in season may be had. There are many more, however, which might profitably handle a more extensive stock, especially this year, when times are particularly good and fruits promise to be of a specially good quality. In some localities it must be confessed it might not be wise to stock up largely with the more expensive fruits, but it is possible that even in some of these doubtful places the advertising resulting from the display of an unusually good line of fruits would well repay the experiment.

ORANGES.

Prospects for quality and quantity in most fruits this Fall are bright. Oranges of course will form the staple. For the cheaper grades for Christmas trees and stockings the Mexican orange promises to be very popular this year. It is growing more in favor each year on account of its cheapness and sweetness. The new crop Valencias are also a cheap orange, but, perhaps, not quite so sweet as the Mexican. The Jamaica is also a desirable orange, being weak only in point of color. For better grades the California navels are a splendid orange; heavy, thin-skinned and sweet. The California navels being seedless, are much sought after, although for Christmas they will be hardly so sweet as a couple of weeks later. The crop promises to be large, around 32,000 cars, and prices are expected to rule fairly reasonable throughout the season.

LEMONS.

Lemons, which are also indispensable, will be in good supply. The first direct Messina steamer is due, and prices which have of late been high for the season, promise to ease off, and it is probable that we will have lemons at reasonable figures during the Winter months.

MALAGA GRAPES.

Malaga grapes, which are looked upon rather as a luxury, have grown more in favor in the rural districts of late, and should find a ready sale this year, when the moderate prices, compared with the previous year, are considered. They may be bought this year wholesale in 60 to 65-lb. barrels (50 pounds net), from $5 to $6.50, to retail at 15 to 25c. per pound. These grapes are of fine appearance, and even in rural localities should find a fair sale.

PINEAPPLES.

In time for Christmas week also will come the Florida pineapples. Commission men expect they will be able to sell them at from $4 to $4.50 per case of 18's to 30's. This fruit, which has not been handled so widely outside of cities and larger towns as might be expected, should also prove an attractive line to a grocer who is paying particular attention to the Christmas trade.

BANANAS.

Bananas, which have been scarce of late, promise to be in good supply for the Christmas trade, at from $1.75 to $2.25 for large stems.

A consignment of Bahama fruit of extra fine quality, including grape fruit, oranges and tangarines, is also on the way and will prove an attractive line for the best trade.

CRANBERRIES.

Cape Cod cranberries will be practically out of the market, but Jerseys, fine in quality and solidly packed, will take their place along with Budd's Long Keepers, a fine line for the Christmas trade, which was not to be had last year, but which is very desirable for long holding. The cranberries will be sold at about $9.50 to $10 per barrel.

NUTS.

Nuts, also very necessary for the Christmas trade, will be in good supply. All lines are quoted at lower prices, and the quality is exceptionally good. New goods soft-shelled almonds are worth from 11 to 11½c. per pound; filberts, 9c.; Brazil nuts, 13 to 15c., and walnuts, 10 to 11c.

HOLLY.

For decorating purposes holly, the first samples of which have just come to hand, will be quite plentiful. Advices from Delaware and South Carolina report the swamps in fine condition. The leaves are good and the sprigs well berried.

Apples for France.

Apple growers around Burlington, Ont., are in luck, says The Hamilton Times. In many parts of the country first-class apples are lying under the trees because the owners cannot get barrels. Over in Halton County, however, the growers have ready sale even for windfalls, and do not have to box or barrel them. A big vessel is lying at the wharf at Burlington, and is taking on all the apples she can carry, for direct shipment to France. They are delivered principally in bags and bring seventeen cents a hundred pounds—a fair price for the class. It is said that the cargo goes to one of the large champagne factories in France.

New Grenoble Walnuts Good.

THE first arrivals of new crop Grenoble walnuts show very fine quality, says The New York Journal of Commerce, and notwithstanding the early reports of damage freely circulated from the other side some weeks ago, the trade is taking the fruit in good shape. Since the damaging reports were given out from the short sellers at shipping points there has been quite a reversal of judgment among dealers here, due to enlightenment as to the reasons for the early advices. On the best of authority it can be stated positively that this year's crop of Grenobles is in better shape as to quality than has been the case in several years.

Commenting on the situation, a prominent dealer said the other day: "The quality of the Grenobles this year is exceptionally fine. Buyers are being apprised of this as fast as possible, and we are already taking orders for the goods freely. The early reports circulated by interested parties selling short on the other side have had some effect, but this will be overcome. The trade took these early reports the more readily as the quality of Grenobles for the last two years has not been strictly good. In 1901 considerable loss was sustained by the importers because of the poor quality of the nuts, and this certainly was remembered. The action of the short sellers who deliberately caused the damage reports to be circulated this season for their own ends is severely criticised by the importers here."

Our Fruit Marks Act a Success.

Mr. Frank Hamilton, of Frank Hamilton & Co., Liverpool, at a meeting of the Dominion Fruit Inspectors, at Montreal recently, complimented the fruit inspectors on the excellent work they were doing, and incidentally declared the Fruit Marks Act a success.

"Speaking for the dealers on the other side," said Mr. Hamilton, "I may say that formerly, owing to the lack of uniformity in the large number of grade marks used, and the irregular packing of the Canadian apples, we were never sure of what we might expect to find in a barrel. It was possible to get a good of 'trash' under the same grade mark. and it was also possible to get a barrel of 'trash' under the same grade amrk. As it is now, with grade marks fixed by law, when we purchase packages bearing 'xxx.,' or 'No. 1,' we are reasonably sure that we are getting at least a good, honest, uniform 'pack.' This has a tendency to increase the confidence in the Canadian apple trade more than 50 per cent."

Fruit Growers' Convention.

The annual convention of The Ontario Fruit Growers' Association will be held at Leamington, Essex county, on November 24, 25 and 26. It is expected that preference will be given at this meeting to discussions affecting packing, storage and transportation problems. The convention is always one of the most profitable gatherings of Ontario agriculturists, and with such subjects as these to the front, the high standard will doubtless be maintained.

Export of Apples.

Several large apple shippers are writing to W. L. Griffiths, Lord Strathcona's secretary, warning Canadian fruit men to slacken the export of apples by December 14, as after that date the trade will be slack until early in January.

Fruit Notes.

Arrivals of the first of the new crop pecan nuts are reported. The quality of the new nuts is said to be very satisfactory.

Cable advices from the other side report a shade more firmness in the primary market on new crop Tarragona almonds. The cable quoted above the parity of spot cost laid down for prompt shipment.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

The Picture Window.

EVERY window dresser has his own idea concerning the value of the picture window. Some consider it the best advertisement a store can have, but the majority have come to the conclusion that its use should be almost entirely confined to special anniversaries or the celebration of local or national events.

The settlement of the question depends very much upon the class of trade that is being catered to. In the smaller towns, where everyone knows the grocer, and what he handles, and in the sections of cities where the trade is of the popular variety, the picture window occupies a more important position than in large towns and cities where a more select custom is sought. The picture window pleases a certain class, and will induce them to buy, but with the more profitable trade, a window that is only fancy, and advertises no line of goods, has a very limited value. Such a display will always draw a crowd, but keeping the streets blocked is not selling goods.

The seasons that should always be recognized by a special display, whether purely picture or a combination of the fancy and advertising, are Christmas, Easter, and Thanksgiving. At the approach of Christmas the window dresser should spend all his spare moments thinking of trims of a special nature. The entire month of December should be set apart as a month of window displays that should be remarkable, for Christmas and New Year's shopping extends from December 1 to 31, and the class of goods bought is of such a profitable nature that very special efforts should be made to capture much of it.

No trim should be allowed to remain more than a week at the outside, and during the ten days preceding Christmas a new display every other day will well repay all the extra trouble and expense. During that time the streets are thronged with sightseers, whose aim is to see and admire all the good windows. The merchant who does not dissappoint them will be well rewarded.

A Train Window—Dressed for Whitehead & Huether, Walkerton, Ont.

This Week's Illustration.

The modern conception of a well-dressed window is the one that combines all the attraction of a picture, or fancy window, with the advertisement of some special article or line of goods. At first, the dresser whose ideas have run along pure picture windows, or mere arrangement of goods, will find it rather difficult to combine the two, but after he has worked out a couple of plans, new designs will crop up with surprising frequency.

The train window shown, was built for Messrs. Whitehead & Huether, and illustrates in an admirable manner the combination picture and advertising display. A track-bed was made in the centre of the window and covered with sod. Upon this was laid a track of small iron rods and bits of wood for sleepers, and on these a train, the coaches of which were bottles of pickles and canned meats, with wheels of potted meats in round tins, and an engine constructed from a half-gallon jar of pickles, No. 57. The culvert was a realistic touch, built of pickle bottles, while through it ran a creek of glass placed over fine gravel. At the back were placed cedar twigs to represent a bush, and in front was set up a telegraph line with wire and cross-pieces complete.

The one mistake in the display is the fixing of advertising cards over the white background, which it is presumed is intended to represent the distance and sky. The coverings over the cars, and the pickle bottles themselves are sufficient indication of what the trim is designed to advertise. The remainder of the window is of exceptional merit and is cleverly arranged.

MANUFACTURERS' AGENTS.

WITH the increase in population in the Great West has naturally come the increased demand for merchandise, and at different commercial centres from Winnipeg to the coast, companies are being organized to take care of this trade. Among the latest is that of Hull & Sharpe, who have started business in Calgary, Alta., as manufacturers and commission agents. They have excellent storage facilities, both for perishable and other kinds of goods, and are open for agencies covering any line of staple goods. Mr. Hull is the owner of some of the largest ranches in Alberta, while Mr. Sharpe, who is a son of the late George Sharpe, of Cannington, Ont., is a business man of long experience, and is also owner of some of the large stone quarries near Calgary.

BROKERS' ASSOCIATION.

On Monday afternoon of this week, a meeting of the grocery brokers and agents of Toronto was held and an association formed, to be known as "The Toronto Wholesale Grocery Brokers' and Agents' Association." The object of the new association will be to arrive at a basis of mutual understanding with the wholesale trade generally, looking to the best means of harmonizing and conserving their respective interests, and also to treat with problems of a trade character as a body and not as individuals, as has been the case heretofore.

The necessity for an organization of this kind has long been felt and recent development in grocery circles have now made the movement imperative in the interests of all concerned.

The following provisional officers were elected:

President, Mr. Geo. Musson.
Vice-Pres., Mr. J. L. Watt.
Sec.-Treas., Mr. Crawford Powis.

Executive Committee, the following gentlemen in addition to those above mentioned: Messrs. P. L. Mason, Geo. Stanway, W. Philip, Geo. Lightbound, Woodley Musson, and A. B. Lambe.

The executive are now engaged in arranging the practical details of organization, and further news of interest will appear in these columns from time to time as the association progresses.

NOT ON THE CONSUMER.

Sir John A. Cockburn, formerly Premier of South Australia, declared at South Norwood recently that Mr. Chamberlain's policy was courageous commonsense. The pathway to free trade there as in Australia lay through protection. Australian experience was that the import duty did not necessarily fall on the consumer. The shilling registration duty on corn was not felt by the consumer, nor was the largely increased French duty on meat in 1892.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Increased Wheat Areas.

THE open weather which Western Canada has been enjoying these last few weeks is of notable value, says The Winnipeg Telegram. It has enabled farmers to accomplish more plowing in the Fall than has been done in many years past, even to breaking up virgin land. If the 45,000 farmers in Manitoba alone break up two acres of new land each, the acreage for wheat would be increased by 90,000 acres. The same weather has prevailed in the Territories up to a date not reached in many years, and already this favorable condition has created good prospects for next year's wheat crop.

J. Obed Smith, Dominion Immigration Commissioner, speaking of the matter, said: "This open weather is most favorable. Farmers are not only enabled to throw over their stubble, but new lands may be broken up. This will mean a better wheat crop both in quantity and quality. The reason for the greater quantity is plain, if a farmer gets a chance thereby to turn up his stubble and then go to work on some uncultivated lands. The breaking up of the stubble in large areas this Fall gives the farmers opportunity to turn it up in the Spring more easily, either to plow or harrow it. Of course the more a land is plowed the better will be the crops obtained, as the snow will be retained in the soil and produce better results later than would otherwise be obtainable. Some farmers coming in have told me that the ground has been frozen, but I do not think we have had enough frost yet to prevent or stop plowing."

J. J. Golden, chief of the Provincial Immigration Bureau, said: "This open weather means above all things a big increase in the area under crop for next year. I don't know that I can remember when the weather was so favorable at this time of the year."

Minimum Grain Rates.

The leading American steamship companies are agitating for a re-establishment of the minimum grain rates to England which were broken recently by the companies running out of Boston. The Canadian companies are said to be agreeable to a minimum rate provided it does not go lower than three cents.

Mr. Wallace is Right.

Mr. Edgar W. Wallace, special correspondent of The London Daily Mail, who has just completed a tour of Canada, made for the purpose of gauging public opinion on the proposed fiscal proposals, says: "Canada can give Britain all the wheat she will need. Manitoba is a wonderful bit of country for wheat production. I consider the possibilities of the West to be boundless in this respect, and it is not only probable—it must come to pass—that Canada will be the granary of the Empire."

Cereals and the French.

WHAT loyal American, with due and patriotic regard lor his stomach, would live in France? asks The American Miller. Perhaps we ought to ask, How could he live?

They haven't any of our fifty-odd breakfast foods there. Even cracked wheat is unknown. Oatmeal, even of the Scotch variety, is a curiosity. They are ignorant of the johnny-cake; fried mush is a mystery: the corn dodger and corn pone belong to the realm of the occult, and samp and hominy are but names, and foreign names at that. Even the peanut is unnaturalized, and they make oil, common, ordinary oil, out of whole shiploads of African peanuts, which, put to a natural use (and there is only one natural use for the peanut) might make a whole nation happy.

The modern Frenchman eats a great deal of white bread. In the absence of the vitalizing foods just mentioned that he lacks, it is well that he does so. But he does not know what he is missing. A man at Mount Pleasant, Pa., has eaten 91,250 corn dodgers in fifty years. They would make a stack at least half a mile high. More real enjoyment has gone down that one man's throat than all the French pastry and confectionery can supply to jaded appetites. A country where the corn dodger and the other products of Indian corn abound needs no "chefs" with their contrivances to entrap appetite.

Our consul at La Rochelle is trying to resume the missionary work of Colonel Murphy and Colonel Carr. He wants to see distinctive corn dishes and the like popularized in France, and suggests advertising. That's no way to do the work. The proper thing would be to kidnap a lot of healthy Frenchmen, bring them over here, feed them on our corn goods a while, and then send them back to France. They would inoculate the rest, just as the soldiers of Lafayette and Rochambeau spread republican ideas on their return from America.

United States Corn Crop.

Preliminary returns to the Chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture, on the production of corn in 1903, indicate a total yield of about 2,313,000,000, or an average of 25.8 bushels per acre, as compared with an average yield of 26.8 bushels a year ago. The general average as to quality is 83.1 per cent., as compared with 80.7 last year. It is estimated that about 5.2 per cent. of the corn crop of 1902 was still in the hands of farmers on November 1, 1903.

Argentina's Corn.

AMERICANS have always regarded their country as the only one in the world that could raise corn to any extent, says The Kansas City Journal of Commerce. Canada, Russia, and other lands grow wheat in abundance, and competitors in cotton are springing up and growing the product at an enormous rate, but the United States has seemed to have a monopoly of corn. That crop seemed more secure against competition than any other. It is the king of American crops.

Now, however, just when the satisfaction of Americans over this being the only corn country has reached a boastful stage, a rival looms upon the horizon.

The rival is Argentina, a country which for more reasons than one might well be regarded as the United States of South America. It is only about two-fifths as large as the United States, and has only one-fifteenth its population. But its soil is wondrously fertile, its climate is genial and its population is industrious. Its last year's crop of corn is reported to have covered 1,300,000 acres, and to have measured 130,600,000 bushels. That is, of course, very much less than our 94,000,000 acres and 2,528,000,000 bushels. Yet proportionately to the population of the country, it is a creditable showing. Moreover, it is to be observed that the Argentines get more than 30 bushels from an acre, and get a dollar of their currency, or 44 cents in gold, a bushel for it, making a yield of $13.20 an acre, while the United States, with its boasted superior civilization, is content with 27 bushels to the acre, which, at 40 cents a bushel, means a yield of only $10.80 an acre.

It is evident that Argentina is destined before long to be so considerable a producer of that crop as to cut a figure in the markets of the world, and probably to rank as a rival of the United States.

Scotch Oat Milling Declining.

The Miller, of London, is authority for the statement that oatmeal milling in Scotland is on the decline. According to statistics it appears that the Scotch mills grind less than one-tenth the quantity ground 20 years ago.

This falling off in consumption is put down to two main causes. In the first place, the homely porridge has nearly gone out of fashion, both in the upper and lower classes, and the oatcake has given way to the fine white loaf from the bakery.

In addition to this must be added the rural depopulation. Where one large farm now exists a half-dozen smaller ones were before it. Agriculture in Scotland has suffered as severely as in England, and the rush to the towns is quite as marked. It is, however, pleasant to note the increased consumption of wheat bread.

Wet Gluten in Flour.

THE proportion of wet gluten contained in a given sample of flour as found by different tests often varies decidedly, leading to the conclusion that the parties obtaining the varying results are not equally careful or do not follow the same method. August C. Junge, of Joplin, Mo., who has a reputation as an expert, in a communication to The Baker's Helper, calls attention to the fact that not only will the gluten vary in a Minnesota flour, for instance, from year to year, but that the manipulation by the different persons testing the flour is not always the same and affords room for variation in results obtained.

Mr. Junge, for instance, uses only half-ounce samples of flour for making a wet gluten test. He admits that a two-ounce sample is better as a rule for millers and bakers than the smaller one, as it does not require such fine work. But he also notes that the size of the sample is one source of variation. When the larger sample is used, the relative proportion of wet gluten will be larger, as with the smaller sample the flour is not only more thoroughly washed, but the surplus water is more completely worked out than is possible when a larger sample is used.

The results obtained from washing the gluten out of flour are comparative at the best. And they are that only when the same person makes the test of the flours compared and follows the same identical process in all cases. A miller or baker is likely to be misled if he compares the amount of wet gluten he obtains from a sample of flour with the amount somebody else has obtained from a sample of another flour. An expert may find only thirty-five per cent. of wet gluten in a flour where an imperfectly-worked large sample may yield forty-five per cent. under the manipulation of one who is not so skilled. This affords no reason for arguing that the miller's or baker's tests are therefore useless. Quite the reverse. But they show the necessity for the nicest care on his part in making tests always in the same manner, and not to draw conclusions based on his own tests as compared with some one else's tests.

Grain Storage.

THERE is no part of the milling business that has made so little advancement, especially in small mills, as the storage of grain for milling purposes, writes Mr. M. Shaner in The American Miller. The large mills that use tank storage have made a very decided advance, but I am not writing this article to advertise the tank storage companies.

The old, bug-infested storage bin should be abandoned; not only because it is a vermin breeder and fire-trap, but for the reason that conditions vary so much in our changeable climate, it is necessary to have perfect storage in order to mill the wheat either profitably or with the best results.

In many places the temperature varies 120 degrees in our different seasons, and the condition of the atmosphere almost as much. Yet the mills are expected to take the grain under all these varying conditions and make flour absolutely perfect, whether it be from a board bin with the thermometer at zero, or from an attic under a tar roof, at one hundred degrees above.

The loss from rats, insects and leaks is equal to legal interest in seventy-five per cent. of the mills using wood bins for storage. In addition to the above the insurance on grain storage eats into the profits at an alarming rate.

All grain should be passed over a separator before being stored. All storage should be arranged to draw off for the purpose of blending, or re-fanning, should the grain require it. But the main question is, what kind of bins will keep the grain in good condition after it is stored? Grain can be stored in properly-constructed cisterns, impervious to all moisture, free from climatic changes, without any fire risks and entirely proof against rats and insects; cool in Summer, warm in Winter; in damp weather, perfectly dry; in dry weather, free from that brittle condition which requires steaming and tempering.

The locations of mills vary so much it would be difficult to give any detailed description that would meet the varied conditions, but there are few locations above water level where this style of storage could not be used with good results.

To Grind in Transit.

The Emo Enterprise is authority for the statement that English capitalists are negotiating for the establishment of a 1,500-barrel flour mill at Emo, to grind Manitoba wheat in transit to eastern ports.

Elevator Insurance.

F. W. Peters, assistant freight traffic manager of the C.P.R., has notified C. N. Bell, secretary of the Grain Exchange, Winnipeg, that insurance on grain in the company's elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur covers also that in cars within 100 feet of the elevator.

Manitoba Farmers Well Off.

Mr. James Hartney, Manitoba Immigration Agent for Ontario, says that this is a most prosperous season for the Manitoba farmer. It was true, he said, that the wheat yield per acre was not so heavy this year as last, but on the other hand the farmers were getting 68 cents for their wheat where last year they got only 55 to 57 cents.

Cereal Notes.

Oats, beans and barley, for malting and grinding, are wanted in large quantities at Birmingham, England.

Oats were cut at Moosomin on November 3.

Speaking at Loughborough, Eng., the Hon. Geo. E. Foster stated that in ten years Canada would be growing quite as much foodstuffs as England could eat.

Switzerland claims to be the mother of the roller mill, a Swiss having made one (not successful) as early as 1820. In 1832, however, a roller system mill was started there which was a success and led to the building of others in Mayence, Milan, Munich, Leipzig, Stettin, and in 1839 in Budapest.

At the famous Rothamstead experiment station of England, on one plot of ground wheat has been grown continuously for sixty years without the application of any manure whatever, and has given an average annual yield of thirteen bushels per acre for half a century—or rather more than the average yield of the wheat lands of the United States, including the prairie lands.

Chinese Conversation.

The question of "shop" is eternally discussed. Everyone tries to do his best to protect his own interests. These 2 Chinamen see a real danger in the great sale Chinese Starch has obtained in Canada; they are angrily discussing and condemning the introduction of this product into the home. Good reason—the more buyers there are of Chinese Starch the fewer customers will there be for the "yellow" laundrymen.

They can see no relief ahead. Briefly stated, as the public learns to use Chinese Starch, the economy of the laundry, an institution almost considered a monopoly of the Chinamen, the industry will diminish and finally disappear, and John Chinaman's occupation, like Othello's, "will be gone." This is what these two Chinese artists of the wash tub and flat iron are discussing with such interest.

The art of glazing linen so easily at home is due to the GENUINE Chinese Starch.

CONFECTIONERY

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAILERS.

Candies for Christmas.

IN previous issues "The Grocer" has more than once called attention to the importance of the candy department of the grocery store and to the fact that the druggists were in some places gathering the cream of this trade because too many grocers do not keep and display candy of the higher grades. The candy trade rightly belongs to the grocer and confectioner, and there is no valid reason why the druggist should cut in on the most profitable lines.

In order to counteract this tendency the grocer should consider how he may improve his candy department, both as to the lines handled and the manner of display.

In the face of the Christmas trade no better time could be found than now to undertake this. At no other time of the year is there so much candy consumed. Every child must have his stocking filled; every Christmas tree must be loaded down. For these purposes the common kinds are desirable. If put up in net stockings so much the more attractive to the children, who will be the largest consumers. But the soft candies—the creams and chocolates—require more consideration. They are more expensive, and are consumed or at least bought by adults. Appearance is of more importance. A handsome box makes all the difference in the world, and an attractive showcase has an irresistible attraction to the grown-up candy lover.

Then, for that large class who want to give a friend a Christmas present but don't know what to give, a box of bonbons offers the solution. But, in order to do so, it must be displayed where it is in full view.

This year money is free; people are in a spending mood, and more candy and of better quality will be bought than ever before. If the grocer has the goods he will get the trade; if he has not, it will go to some one who has.

It is not necessary to stock heavily, but a good assortment should be kept, and the results will undoubtedly prove satisfactory.

Candy, Old-Fashioned and New.

NOW and then we hear someone sigh for old-fashioned candy, but really there is no occasion for depression, for the old-fashioned candy is conspicuous in the confectioners' shops. In candies hard and soft are to be found the prized flavors of peppermint and wintergreen. The stick candy that decades ago put the poor country boy in ecstasies of longing when he visited the village store and eyed the candy jars, is still to be had. As sugar is cheap the quality is no doubt better and more wholesome than formerly. Stick candy may be bought in a more bewildering variety of colorings and flavors than ever before. It is even packed in attractive boxes like the modern chocolates and bon-bons. Molasses candy, plain, unflavored molasses candy, more than holds its own in the estimation of candy eaters.

If the making of old-fashioned candy has met with due consideration in modern times it has not monopolized the candy-maker's talent. The sugar genius finds its most soulful and artistic expression in chocolate combinations. To-day the young man for the sum of 50c. can secure a veritable symphony of flavors. Courtship is thus smoothed, for surely every girl who accepts and partakes of choice chocolates compounded from pure and delicious materials and spiced with ambrosial flavors, must entertain a kindly and affectionate feeling for the donor.

If chocolates represent the height of the candy-making art they do not alone give any idea of the candymakers' varied and noble achievements. He juggles with sugar. The pure white material that comes to his hands is transformed into countless shapes of colors that delight the eye and of flavors that delight the most fastidious palates.

Biscuits and Cakes.

IT is only a few years since the soda cracker, the raisin biscuit and three or four other varieties, put up in wooden boxes a couple of feet long by perhaps a foot wide and ten or so inches deep, represented the stock in trade of the average grocery in cakes and biscuits. Now, all this is changed. Biscuits of all descriptions and hundreds of varieties are now to be had from our confectionery manufacturers, and the quality of the goods has improved almost as much as their varieties have increased. The manner of placing these goods on the market is also indicative of the general improvement that has come over all lines in the grocery trade. Neat tin boxes with open faces now display to the delighted customer the bewildering number from which they may choose.

That the consumption of biscuits has largely increased is without doubt. One need only look at the way the factories have extended to know that, and even as it is the supply is hardly equal to the demand.

This is a thing the retailer should ever keep in mind and take advantage of. Cakes and biscuits should be located in a prominent place and in such a manner as to attract customers. The neat tin boxes with their open glass faces are tireless salesmen. All they need is a chance to show themselves. It is the grocer's business to see that they get this chance.

It is useless to put them back in a corner. That isn't what the glass face is for. Use a pile of these biscuits to hide a corner. The effect will be at once to improve the appearance of the store and increase the sale of the biscuits. Try it.

Colors in Confectionery,

The matter of color in connection with cakes and confectionery has a greater bearing than the average person realizes, says The Baker and Confectioner. Delicate, pleasing shades have a tendency to create a desire for an article, while distasteful color will have the effect of causing customers to reject what otherwise may be an excellent product. Nobody knows how much trade has been turned away through the injudicious application of coloring matters. The customer may not be able to explain why a certain cake or kind of candy is not what she wants, but instinctively it repulses, and probably only on account of the color. A careful selection of pure unadulterated colors is therefore essential, and just as essential is a knowledge on the part of the workman of just how to proceed in their application to secure the most pleasing results.

Candied Flowers.

A French chef has been experimenting for some time in candying flowers, and has been making a strenuous effort to produce a palatable flower with its own leaves and stems all perfect. Among the novelties for the Christmas season will be seen some lines of candied flowers, although as yet the art is in its infant state in this country. In Switzerland they are quite the vogue, and not only the flowers, but Attractive Package.

A miniature telephone is one of the most recent introductions in the box department. It is an excellent imitation, being made of very heavy cardboard with a light veneer of wood, stained. What is known as the box part of the telephone is removable and a double compartment holds the confections. This idea has taken splendidly with the children. The receiver is fastened on the side with a hook similar to the regulation telephone, and in every detail it is a counterpart so far as the outside is concerned. As a Christmas attraction this will certainly be in the first rank. It is made to retail for a comparatively small amount.

Sweetmeats.

For the making of sweetmeats England's bill for sugar is £100,000 a week.

It is said that candy to the value of $100,000,000 is consumed annually in the United States.

As the result of the abolition of sugar bounties and the recent substantial advance in the price of sugar, says The London Daily Mail, manufacturing confectioners, at a private meeting in Glasgow, decided to raise the prices of confectionery 2s. per cwt.

PLENTY OF SALT.

While there has been a scarcity of salt recently the salt manufacturers are again in form and an entire change has come over the situation. Salt stocks are now rapidly accumulating, so much so indeed that some of the largest establishments report that they are within measurable distance of closing down entirely. Having surmounted their late difficulties, the salt manufacturers are confronted by another however, in the great scarcity of all barrel materials. "Prices have advanced 200 to 300 per cent.," said a manufacturer to "The Grocer," "and even at these advanced values supplies are not obtainable. When it is known that a barrel is to-day worth from 60 to 65c. empty, it will be easily seen that salt manufacturers must be losing money heavily to sell salt at present prices."

MAKE FLOWER POTS.

A representative of "The Canadian Grocer" recently visited the plant of The Foster Pottery Co., Hamilton, and was particularly struck with the very business-like appearance of the works. The firm report a very busy season, a special crate of selected goods, pots, saucers and hanging-baskets, consisting of 155 pieces, which they are selling at $6.75 each, being greatly in demand with the grocery trade. They will be glad to send an illustrated catalogue of their wares on application.

AGENCIES FOR JAPAN.

A British Columbia firm doing business in Japan writes, asking for the names of Canadian manufacturers who are open for representation there. One of the members of the firm, who is at present in Japan, says there is great possibilities for trade there in various lines of goods. Any firms desiring to place themselves in communication with the firm in question can do so through the editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

INQUIRIES ABOUT CANADIAN TRADE.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government Office in London :

1. A firm of importers in the north of England desires to hear from Canadian houses in a position to ship tallows, oils, greases, lard, and other packing house bye-products.

2. Inquiry is made by a Cardiff house in the fruit trade for the names of important shippers of Canadian apples who are looking out for an agent in their district.

3. The addresses of Canadian furniture manufacturers have been asked for by a trading company desirous of obtaining their woodwork from the Dominion.

4. A firm in Scotland inquire for samples, prices, etc., of Canadian wood pulp paper. They also ask for similar particulars from Canadian makers of felts supplied in rolls.

5. A London firm is open to represent Canadian exporters of wood-ware and other goods for ship chandlers. They are also looking for a market in Canada for their own manufactures—marine life-saving apparatus, life belts, buoys, mooring buoys, coir mats, etc.

6. A correspondent makes inquiry respecting the starting of a new manufacturing business for the production of salt in Canada.

The following inquiries were received at the Canadian Section of the Imperial Institute, London, Eng.:

7. A United Kingdom manufacturer of glass bottles wishes to develop trade in Canada, and would like to hear from first-class Canadian firm prepared to take up the matter.

8. A firm in London is prepared to contract with Canadian manufacturer in a position to ship regular supplies of maple dowels.

9. The manufacturers of agricultural and veterinary specialties, disinfectants, cattle foods, etc., seeks the services of a Canadian firm possessing the necessary connection to act as their representatives.

10. The proprietors of a well known time register are open to appoint suitable Canadian resident agent.

The names of those making inquiries may be obtained from the Editor of THE CANADIAN GROCER.

CHRISTMAS NOVELTIES.

IT is a question whether or not the grocer should put in a stock of fancy goods for the Christmas season trade. In some cases it would be out of the question, but there are others again, especially in the smaller places, where a few lines, especially in the way of toys and decorations, could be handled by the grocer and would yield very good returns. There are always the local Sunday school "Christmas trees" to be loaded down and decorated, as well as the smaller, but in the aggregate much more important, domestic Christmas festivities to be supplied. From the grocery they must get their candies and fruits; why should they not also get their toys, candles, decorations and such like there also. In the rural districts and smaller villages this trade should belong to the grocer.

The very fact of handling these goods will attract the children, and the children will prove both importunate and effective solicitors in coaxing their parents in to see the holiday wonders, and finally in inducing them to exchange their spare cash for the objects of the childish desire. Customers who might never other wise enter the door may thus be made new and possibly permanent friends.

There are, of course, endless varieties to choose from and it would be unwise to attempt to turn over an overly large stock, but a judiciously-selected assortment may easily be made.

The mechanical toys which are shown in such variety this year are an endless source of delight, not alone to the little ones, but engage the interest and attention of many of sober years who would probably indignantly deny the charge were they confronted with it. These toys may be had at all prices, from a few cents to much more serious figures, and although sold mostly at this season of the year, are by no means restricted to it.

Boys of two to six years find more pleasure in a tin horn or a cheap kettle-drum than in a new suit of clothes or a Sunday school picnic. The cheapest little horn that costs five cents is to him a present from fairyland, and from sunrise to sunset, until the toy is broken, he imagines himself a Sousa, or the bass horn in the local band. Some of these horns are made up in the most elaborate manner, with cow horn and silk tassels, and intricate bends; others are really musical instruments, flutes, flageolets, piccolos, clarionets, cornets, whistles, ocarinos, bird whistles, calliope whistles, etc. On these a boy with any musical inclinations soon learns to play a few bars, and the toy serves a double purpose.

For girls, dolls never grow tiresome; nor, let a little girl have ever so many of these favorites, will she ever be without a welcome in her little mother's heart for a new one. Dolls are for girls what drums, swords, guns and all the acoutrements of war are to her brother; and indeed find a warmer and more secure lodgment in her affections than any of the noisier playthings of which the boy soon tires.

The little girl found in the ruins of Pompeii with an ugly little doll hugged tight in her arms, and eagerly protected from the terrible heat and ashes, evidenced in a marked degree the unfailing love of the child for the inanimate bit of rags.

The doll of to-day originated in Holland, that country of quaint habits and quainter children; but it is many a year since any radical change has taken place in the make-up or general characteristics of the plaything. Every material is used in its construction—wood, india rubber, china, wax, cloth, bisque, steel—and there is a ready sale for all. Until the last few years the best doll and the medium grade doll was made with wax head and limbs, but its lack of durability has turned the attention of manufacturers to bisque, and all are satisfied. Bisque is a sort of cement which hardens in the air, and can be washed and roughly used without suffering injury. The steel doll is a new idea which has not as yet taken a prominent position.

Germany is the home of doll making, a position she has long held, and which she will stubbornly defend. The five-cent doll the child hauls around by a broken arm, as well as the $25 creation that walks, goes to sleep, says mamma, has real hair, lace, and leather, in nine cases out of ten, is turned out in the dominions of Kaiser Wilhelm.

No toy department is complete without a goodly supply of these favorite playthings of little girlhood.

The Christmas tree has never been supplanted in the affections of the child, and every year it is looked forward to with the keenest pleasure. The tree, with its bright lights, its shining ornaments and brightly-colored presents, is never forgotten. These Christmas ornaments come in all forms and at all prices. There are the cheap glass shapes which can be bought at about twenty-five cents a dozen or less, the tinsel garlands, the bead chains, the lithographed dolls, the fancy candle-holders, and the combination of tinsel and lithograph, as illustrated. A few of these hung on a tree improve its appearance wonderfully and cost a mere trifle.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

A Few Things About Pipes.

A PIPE is a very simple affair: a hollow bowl, a stem with a hole through it, and yet the ingenuity of man has contrived or blundered into making pipes of almost endless variety. The truant school boy whittles one out of an acorn or a hickory nut, the hired man hollows out a corn cob and enjoys the weed with as much zest as the railroad president with his carefully colored meerschaum. The Indian on the war path, whose tomahawk is also his pipe, stills his devouring hunger and steadies his nerves with the same instrument that is to soon dash out the brains of his enemy. The Irish navvie favors a short clay, and the Dutchman a long stem with a capacious bowl. Every man has his own taste as to pipes, from the bulldog of the student to the churchwarden of the village solon.

Some men go in for collecting pipes, and the writer has seen some very interesting collections, of all degrees of age and venerableness. They have been gathered from all parts of the world and show in many ways the traits of their devotees.

It may be said that there are practically no pipes made in Canada. They are all imported from the United States, England, France and Austria mostly. Some of our wholesalers, however, have very extensive stocks, including almost every manner of pipe.

Grocers should make it a point when possible to pay a visit to some of the wholesalers and look over their stocks of pipes. It would be a revelation. One wonders where all the pipes go to. In thus going through the pipe department not only is one's curiosity gratified, but he is made familiar with the pipe business as he would not otherwise be, and, at the same time, he has the opportunity of picking up any line which he thinks would strike the fancy of his customers.

Rain Spots on Cigars.

Cigar smokers will be interested to know that during part of the Winter the majority of the weeds will be very dark and as full of spots as a leopard. Many cigars that are now on the market are badly spotted, and the query has frequently been put as to whether their quality was impaired.

A Canadian buyer, who has just returned from Havana, explains that, largely on account of the heavy rainfall this season, the tobacco leaf was covered with pale yellow and sometimes black spots.

"You will see most of the cigars of the same appearance very soon," he said. "The quality is not at all spoiled, but the odd appearance makes smokers suspicious. Even now it is very hard to get a cigar of light color. The leaf took in so much moisture this year that cigars are much darker than ordinarily; but some of these black cigars you see now, are not necessarily the strongest."

"There is a superstition that the green spots often seen in cigar wrappers indicate extra quality," concluded the tobacco man. "They do nothing of the sort. These spots are what we call sand spots, and are the result of sand falling on the leaf during a rain."

Japanese for Tobacco.

The Japanese name for tobacco is Ukiwasureka, which is composed of three words, and means "the anxiety-dispelling plant."

Leaves Large Estate.

The will of the late Christian Lepen, the wealthy tobacco manufacturer of St. Louis, who died recently, disposing of an estate valued at $4,000,000, was filed for probate October 1. The entire amount is to be divided among the children of the testator, with the exception of a small annuity, which is to be paid a sister.

W. H. Steele & Co., tobacconists, Toronto, are offering a special line of pipes and boxed cigars (10 to 15 in a box) for the Christmas trade, and cordially invite buyers to call and inspect their holiday display.

Fluctuations in Tobacco Habit.

PROFESSOR ANDERSON STUART recently gave a lecture at Sydney on the use and abuse of tobacco, says an exchange, in the course of which he mentioned as a noteworthy historical reflection that tobacco was introduced into England under Queen Elizabeth, when England led the world in peace and in war.

Under the next queen, Anne, it reached a maximum of use—namely, 32 ounces per head of the population, and then it declined until, at the accession of Queen Victoria, it had sunk to its lowest limits, 12 ounces per head. But under Victoria it gradually resumed its old proportions. Thus, the present use of the weed in smoking is no new thing. The decline of its use after Anne was ascribed to the fashion being in favor of snuff and against smoking, which, having now spread to all ranks—men, women and children—became common and vulgar.

The rise in popularity under Victoria was ascribed to fashion again—now snuffing had spread to the masses; also to the introduction of lucifer matches, wooden pipes, mild tobaccos, and to the decline of the drinking habit, its place being taken by smoking. The lecturer remarked that the last noteworthy attempt to prohibit the use of tobacco was by the British Wesleyan Conference of 1877, when it refused to rescind a regulation of 1795, which says that no preacher shall use tobacco in any form, and thus the rule is still in force.

Tobacco Statistics.

Americans consume 7,000,000,000 cigars annually, and the yearly increase in the consumption is nearly 600,000,000, says The Detroit News. Smokers use 3,000,000,000 cigarettes annually, and consume in other forms, as in snuff, plug and smoking tobacco, 315,000,000 pounds, exclusive of the tobacco exported and that used in the manufacture of cigars and cigarettes. The federal treasury receives $65,000,000 annual revenue from the tobacco tax; the manufacturers alone pay in dividends $10,000,000, and in wages, $50,000,000 a year, and the annual value of the manufactured product in this country is upwards of $200,000,000.

Training Factory Girls.

Four hundred young women in Greenville, S.C., have applied for positions in a new cigar factory there, and will receive instruction in cigar making. They have been divided into eight groups, and are to begin work fifty at a time. The first group have made good progress, and the others are to follow as soon as the preceding ones acquire a satisfactory amount of skill. The factory is large enough for 1,000 hands. The American Cigar Co. takes the output of the factory.

Prison-made Cigars.

The City Council of Detroit, Mich., recently passed the following resolution without a dissenting vote:

"Whereas, The manufacture of cigars is being conducted on quite a large scale at the State Prison, at Marquette; and

"Whereas, The cigars that are manufactured by the inmates of said institution are, we believe, unjustly, placed in direct competition with manufacturers of this city and state; therefore,

"Resolved, That the Governor, Hon. Aaron T. Bliss, be and hereby is most respectfully requested to urge the Board of Control of said prison to discontinue the manufacture of cigars in said institution and to substitute therefor the manufacture of some commodity that will not be placed in competition with the free labor of this city in particular, and the state in general; and be it further

"Resolved, That the city clerk be and is hereby requested to transmit a copy of this resolution to his excellency, the Governor."

Tobacco in Wisconsin.

According to the statistics gathered by the industrial department of the St. Paul railroad, says The Retail Journal, tobacco is fast supplanting corn as a Wisconsin crop.

This year there are nearly 50,000 acres of tobacco under cultivation, and the estimated value of the crop is $8,000,000. The growth of the industry is shown by the fact that the tobacco trust is now building on the line of the St. Paul railroad four immense tobacco warehouses and is enlarging two others. The new warehouses will be located at Watertown, Brodhead, Sparta and Stoughton. The capacity of each of these varies between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000 pounds. The principal counties in which tobacco is raised are Dane, Rock, Columbia, Crawford, Vernon and Monroe. The State of Wisconsin now ranks fourth in the list of tobacco-growing states.

Tobacco Notes.

The German Ministry of War denies that it has prohibited the sale in the German army and navy of cigars or cigarettes of The American Tobacco Co., and that only German goods would be allowed to be sold.

Mr. T. A. Corley, western representative for J. M. Fortier & Co., Montreal, reports from the Edmonton district that the "Chamberlain," (the preferential) cigar is, like its namesake in England, catching the popular taste, and sales are very good, and the demand increasing.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The Value of a Good Idea Lies in Making use of it.

NOW and again I receive an expression of thanks for the helpfulness of the thoughts expressed in this department from week to week.

Several readers have taken the trouble to write, especially to express their appreciation of the value to them of the suggestions and criticisms published in this department during the past, and a good many have said that they have found these weekly discussions of advertising topics very interesting.

Of course, it is natural to conclude that all who thus expressed themselves are thorough believers in advertisiug to a greater or less degree, and some of the more enthusiastic of them have followed the arguments that have been advanced very closely, and have thus considerably improved their advertising by acting on the suggestions made.

It is in no spirit of self-importance that I mention these facts, but rather to emphasize the importance of the arguments themselves.

The thought expressed at the head of the department this week epitomizes what I am trying to impress on you that—"The value of a good idea lies in making use of it."

One of the first acquaintances I made through this department called on me a short time ago, and in the course of conversation thanked me for the help it had been to him in his advertising. He was rather enthusiastic over it, in fact. A comparison of the ads he is using now with those he was using a year ago easily demonstrates the value HE HAS MADE out of what he has read.

He spoke of a meeting which he had attended a while ago, when several retailers said "You just keep on sending your ads to THE GROCER for criticism—we get lots of pointers from it." He answered: "Why don't you send some of yours," and the reply came "Oh, we'd sooner have yours roasted."

This illustrates the reluctance of a great many people to having their advertising efforts picked to pieces.

It is sometimes discouraging, when we think we have done pretty well, to have someone who thinks he knows more about it, pick the work to pieces and try to show where it's faulty. But this is never the case where a criticism is taken in the right spirit.

But even snpposing we don't like to be criticised, if in the criticism we get a few pointers, isn't it well worth while to grin and bear it—then profit by it?

I find very few retailers who think they know all about advertising—even for their own business; nearly all are ever ready to take a few pointers.

If you are open to suggestions, just mark this: When you are reading something and you unconsciously say, "That's so" or "That sounds reasonable"—don't let it rest with that, but put it into practice.

When you read that you should do this or that—and you think "That's right"—why DO it. And vice versa.

Advertising Deeds.

The ad. reproduced this week is one of those entered in the advertising competition for October.

Accompanying it was a letter, which said among other things:

We are pleased with your paper, and derive much benefit from THE GROCER in general, and your page in particular.

The enclosed ad. we have running in The Victoria Daily Colonist, and derive considerable benefit from it. We have it appear on alternate days in the editorial page.

"We have running" signifies, I suppose, that the ad. is a standing one. I never have thought very much of "standing ads." The name, I think, is very expressive. I like a "moving" ad.—or an ad. that makes things move—much better. And so do most people who look for results.

There's no doubt such an ad. does some good—the advertisers themselves admit this to be the case. But wouldn't it do more good—certainly just as much—if the ad. were changed often—every insertion, for instance.

There are some things that go to make this whisky better than others with which it has to compete—at least its makers ought to think so. I think if I used much whisky I would want to know just why Buchanan's was better than the brand I had been using before I would think of changing.

"Oh, the superiority of Buchanan's whiskies is generally acknowledged and stands unquestioned," you say. If that is so—why? The advertising is supposed to influence those people who don't use—or sell—Buchanan's whiskies to buy it. It is therefore likely that they are not acquainted with the superior merits of Buchanan's, or undoubtedly they would already be your customers.

What makes one whisky better than another? Why is Buchanan's better than any other? Why ought people to buy Buchanan's in preference to other whiskies? There's plenty of good advertising in the answers to these questions.

If an article is not better in some respects to those already on the market it is the height of foolishness to spend money in advertising it.

If you think what I've said contains pointers—put them into practice.

"The value of a good idea—(or a good pointer)—lies in making use of it."

Send me the results.

Many Happy Returns

"Many happy returns" in a two-fold sense—best wishes for your present and future happiness and, as well—your future profits. May they be as you would have them—right.

A few suggestions that will contribute to a quick return of your money—and a profitable return.

"Thistle Brand"

The delicate flavor—the cleanliness—the real Finnan Haddies, all this distinguishes the trade mark, "Thistle Brand." A luxury for your most particular customers.

MERCHANTS.

The Toledo Automatic Computing Scale SHOWS to EVERY CUSTOMER in LARGE INDICATIONS the EXACT WEIGHT they get. If you use a Cash Register you place it where the customer MUST SEE the INDICATIONS. This is for YOUR PROTECTION. Take OFF these INDICATIONS and you would consider the Register VALUELESS. The indications on a Toledo Scale PROTECT you from over and DOWN WEIGHT and IMPRESS your CUSTOMERS with YOUR HONEST PRINCIPLES. The CUSTOMER feels that he is PROTECTED when he buys goods over a TOLEDO SCALE, consequently it is a TRADE BRINGER. The customer values the GOODS he buys from you MORE THAN THE MONEY he hands you, otherwise he would not EXCHANGE the MONEY FOR the GOODS he gets. You are CAREFUL to count his CHANGE OUT CORRECTLY, and in plain view, why not use a Scale that COUNTS OUT the WEIGHT, it being to the customer of more VALUE than the MONEY he trades for the goods?

IMPRESSIONS OF THE GREAT WEST

By W. L. E.

IN a former article I referred to certain obstacles set up by Nature which the C.P.R. had surmounted. There was another of these upon which I did not touch. That was in regard to the water supply. The iron horse, like man, cannot exist without an abundant supply of water, and good water at that. When one gets well into the Great West, a great deal of the water supply is impregnated with alkali. The veriest tyro in engineering science knows very well that alkali is by no means helpful for steam producing, on account of the effect it has upon the machinery of the locomotive. When high pressure of steam is needed a great deal of difficulty is sometimes experienced in obtaining it on account of the presence of alkali in the water. The C.P.R. has spent, so one of the officials of the road informed me, a great deal of money in trying to overcome this difficulty. Although something has been accomplished there is a great deal yet to be done, and the company are still experimenting and at considerable expense. The fuel, too, is not always the best for steam producing purposes, and we had more than one experience of this, when, on account of our heavy train, the locomotives were taxed to a greater extent than usual, for it will be remembered that ours was the largest passenger train that ever went through the Canadian Rockies.

The trouble with the coal is that it sometimes clinkers a great deal. The same difficulty in regard to fuel is also experienced by the steamers plying on the Kootenay and Arrowhead Lakes. Talking about fuel reminds me that in the coal, obtained in some mines in British Columbia, is to be found a flinty stone of unusual hardness. When going down the Kootenay lakes the engineer of our steamer picked out two or three of those stones. But while they are useless as fuel, they present a pretty appearance when polished, looking like ebony after being rubbed a few minutes. The edge of one of these flinty stones will cut glass with as much ease as an ordinary diamond. The engineer of our steamer informed us that he always used them for cutting the steam gauges.

Besides seeing much and learning much about the beauty and great possibilities of the Great West and British Columbia, the members of our party gained a great deal of knowledge in regard to business matters. With an excursion party made up almost altogether of practical business men, it was natural that even the vastness and the beauty of the West and of British Columbia could not keep them from turning their minds now and then to matters more utilitarian. Almost in spite of themselves, wnen we stopped at a city or town, for either a day or an hour, quite a few in our party visited customers or possible customers located thereat. Many of them came back with substantiaf orders in their note books, but all came back with a great deal of knowledge gained as to the requirements of their respective trades in the differemt parts of the Great West. They learned in some instances that the kind of goods that were made for the east were lacking in one or more essentials for the requirements of the West. And what struck me as most commendable indeed, was that where an eastern manufacturer found that some little change was required in the article he manufactured, in order to make it more acceptable to the business men and consumers in the West, he was quite ready to try and do so. I do not remember one eastern manufacturer objecting to making any changes along the desired lines. "Well," said one man, "We do not make our goods in that particular way, but we shall have to do so if we are to get a share of the trade in the West." This was in substance what every man seemed prepared to do. As long as Canadians exhibit this progressive spirit, we need not have any fear for the industrial future of this country. It is only when conservatism breeds stubbornness that there is any need of fear; and manufacturers as well as business men of all classes in Canada are gradually becoming more and more persuaded of this fact.

One subject that my newspaper curiosity induced me to investigate was the attitude of the business men of the Great West and British Columbia toward the tariff. My opportunities were not as numerous as they would have been had we had three months instead of a little over three weeks to cover the 7,000 miles of our journey to and from the Coast; but still I had opportunities. In Winnipeg I called upon a number of wholesale houses engaged in different branches of trade, and tried, in every instance, to ascertain their opinion in regard to this most important question. Not in one instance, as far as my memory serves me, were any of the wholesalers of Winnipeg in favor of an increase in the duty. Some of them, it is true, were free traders from whom no other view could, of course, have been expected; but those who were avowed protectionists held similar views. This viewpoint I found to obtain among wholesalers and retailers in practically every city and town in Manitoba and the Territories at which we stopped long enough to be afforded opportunity to call on a few of the business men. "Why, a higher tariff," said one Winnipeg wholesaler, "would almost lead to a revolution in the West." Of course, this was an exaggeration, but still it shows that a strong feeling against an increase in the tariff exists among the business men in Manitoba and the Great West. In British Columbia, on the other hand, the movement for a higher tariff found much more favor, particularly among the owners of the lumber mills, who feel strongly on the fact that while the lumber mills of the United States have easy access to the Canadian market, the Canadian lumbermen are practically shut out from the market to the south of them. From what I could gather on my journey to the Coast and back, I would say that the people in the West are, as a rule, moderate protectionists, for while I heard so many objections to any increase in the tariff I failed to hear few, if any, as far as my memory serves me, in favor of a reduction in the tariff.

One thing that no doubt tends to make business men and retailers in the Great West opponents of a higher tariff, is the fact that during the last year or two, they have experienced no little difficulty in getting promptly filled orders they have placed with manufacturers in Eastern Canada, on account of the fact that the latter have simply not been able to supply the demand. I found the feeling among a good many merchants in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories very strong on this point. They felt very much annoyed, because in many instances, orders placed months before had not up to that time been delivered. Said one wholesaler, pointing to a line of goods on the floor of his warehouse: "There is a line of goods, which, under ordinary circumstances, I should have had seven carloads of, but would you believe me, all I have so far been able to get since the first of January last, is one carload." I feel, therefore, that I am quite within the bounds of reason when I say that a great deal of the antipathy of the merchants of the West to a higher tariff is born of the fact that the home manufacturers, on account of the excessive demand which has been made upon them in the past year or two, have not been able to supply the demand. I am perfectly aware that in the United States the manufacturers have also been overtaxed, but it seems to me that seeing the great future of the Canadian Great West they have been particularly aggressive in getting business there, and particularly zealous about keeping it. They are certainly sparing no pains, and, much as we dislike to see the trade going from our own manufacturers, one cannot help but admire the enterprise of our neighbors to the south. But while admiring their enterprise, we should be stimulated to greater effort on our part.

CANADIAN TRADE IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Mr. Jardine, Canadian Trade Commissioner, now in London, said in a recent interview, that South Africa would soon recover if the white settlers work as hard as the Canadian farmers. Manitoba hard wheat flour had proved itself the best in all competition. Canada was doing a large trade in agricultural implements and carriages. The Imperial sentiment offset hundreds of American agents. Cattle disease had prevented Rhodesia from being a splendid agricultural district.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Danish Cold Stored Eggs.

THE handling of eggs for cold storage has reached a high stage of perfection in Denmark. An association has been formed in that country which, it is said, numbers 25,000 members, who raise poultry. Their object is to obtain the highest price for their products. They have their own collectors, who go from farm to farm, take the eggs and deliver them to the packing houses. Each farmer must stamp his eggs with his initial, and he is fined for every bad egg. When the eggs reach the packing houses they are carefully examined. They are placed on a frame holding 60 eggs over a powerful electric light. Every dark egg is taken out, and the sender, known by his initial, is fined an amount equal to $1.25 in Canadian currency. This penalty has greatly contributed to the high reputation now enjoyed by the Danish products. The eggs are sold by weight, and so many ounces a dozen are guaranteed.

It is a foolish policy which allows bad eggs to get into the coolers. The whole trade suffers from this carelessness. Producers and dealers in this country need a more careful education on this subject. If eggs are received in good condition, three-fourths of the risk of deterioration is safeguarded.

The general experience seems to be that the only thing the producer cares for is to get his price. After that the responsibility ceases. The buyer places the eggs in the refrigerators, and, in many instances, it is a gamble as to the condition in which they will come out. The grading should be more carefully attended to in the initiation of the movement from the producer to the consumer. Each grade has its value, and an absolute certainty of the proper classification would be more than compensated for in the final result. The producer and consumer would be benefitted, and the middleman could more readily estimate his profits in the transaction. The cold store egg can, and does compete in the market with the fresh product for general consumption, and there would be little difference in the competition if proper care was used in selection and inspection before the eggs are placed in cold storage.

The Danish method has proved most efficient, and there is little doubt but that if the farmers would associate themselves together, and be held individually responsible for the quality of the eggs they sell, that a mutual benefit would accrue which would raise the standard of the Canadian egg and nullify the prevalent objection to the refrigerator egg.

Lard Competition in Europe.

A LEADING German lard distributor writes of the situation abroad : "There has been a very good demand for lard, and we have the impression most of the enormous receipts of September-October have been absorbed. There is some lard left here, but not much. The American holders have kept on underselling everybody and are generally ½ to 1 mark below Chicago in order to make it impossible for us or others to import. But still we have managed to put some trade through. The question is, will Chicago continue to monopolize the lard business, and will the big people there be able to buy such quantities on your side as to exclude us and other smaller dealers, or are the outside packers and the exchange and the commission houses strong enough to support us and similar houses in such a way we can compete there ? It has been a hard time for us, looking on while one Chicago interest has been doing almost all the business."

The American Invasion.

According to The London Daily Mail, initial steps have been taken by an American syndicate to capture the retail grocery and provision trades in the English provinces. The principal member of the trust is said to be a Chicago firm that exports to this country enormous quantities of American beef, bacon, ham, lard, and canned goods. In several large cities, including London, "distributing centres" for the wholesale supply of these commodities have been established.

Ship Took Tons of Meat.

The supply ship Culgoa, of the United States Navy, loaded at New York City, left the Brooklyn Navy Yard on Sunday for Panama and neighboring stations of the navy with 300,000 pounds of beef, 20,000 pounds of mutton and 10,000 pounds of turkey for our sailors and marines now in Southern waters. That will not make a bad feed for the men who are now making history for this country. The navy feeds its men well and get fighting service of a high order in return.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

Toronto.

Provisions—This is not a particularly active season in the provision trade. Provision houses are more busy looking after the curing end of their business than their selling end. There is nevertheless a very fair active demand considering the circumstances, particularly of hams. Dressed hogs are a little stronger and this has given a firmer tone to prices generally. The advent of Christmas beef has given a rather higher price to dressed beef than is likely to prevail after the holiday season. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$ 0 08¾	$0 09
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 13	0 13½
Roll bacon, per lb	0 10	0 10½
Medium hams, per lb	0 12	0 12½

Butter—Receipts consist principally of large rolls and pound prints. Commission men complain that all qualities are packed in together and as a consequence consignors are not receiving the price they should get as the value of a package is set by the worst lot in it. There is an A1 demand for strictly first-class straight stuff and a fair demand for ordinary. We quote:

Dairy rolls, large	0 17	0 17½

Cheese—There is no change of importance to report in cheese. There is no export demand although some is going forward to fill orders placed earlier. We quote:

Montreal.

Provisions—There is a steadier feeling in hog products generally and the volume of business is said to be very fair. Canadian short cut mess pork is selling at easy prices. Smoked meats are in good demand. Lard is steady. We quote:

Butter—As was noted last week the late Fall butter now arriving is not of satisfactory quality, and the demand centres for the most part around the October creameries. As this line is not in particularly good supply it is evident that prices will remain firm. We quote as follows: Fresh Winter made creameries, 21 to 22c.; finest October and November, 22c.; creamery prints, 22 to 23c.; dairy rolls, 17 to 17 1-2c.; dairy tubs, selected, 16 to 17c.; medium, 14 1-2 to 16c.

Cheese—The market is now very quiet. Many holders of September goods are holding until the beginning of the year when they hope to secure better prices. English advices report the market dull. The mild, fresh make is selling at 11 to 11 1-2c.; Summer strong cheese, 12 to 12 1-2c.

St. John, N.B.

Provisions—In barrelled pork there is a light business and market easy. Local packers are putting up a good deal of stuff. Beef is dull but fairly firm. In pure lard lower prices are again quoted. Fair stocks held. Hams and bacon still command quite full figures. In fresh meats quite low prices rule in beef, lamb, mutton and pork. Veal is quite firm. The Christmas display is fine. Poultry, particularly turkeys, are high and scarce.

Butter has a fair sale only. While best grade stock is scarce it is difficult to move freely at full figures except it is fancy.

Cheese has but a light sale. The stocks are not large. Prices are at least no higher.

Eggs are in fair supply at rather higher prices. Quality needs watching.

French Tariff.

The party in defence of agricultural interests in the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday decided to communicate a protest to the Minister of Agriculture against applying the minimum tariff to Canadian salted meats.

Canada's Produce in Britain.

Quotations for butter and cheese on the London market, says a press cable, are as follows: Butter, choicest, 98s. to 100s.; finest, 94s. to 96s.; cheese, finest, 52s. to 53s.; fair, 50s. to 51s.

Canadian turkeys, says an importer, are distinctly inferior to the English-grown fowl. This is due to their being fed on maize, making them very yellow in the fat.

Provision Exports.

The U.S. official report of provision exports from the United States for the month of November was: Bacon, 19,195,951 pounds, against 16,851,694 pounds last year; hams, 15,185,007 pounds, against 171260,529 pounds last year; pork, 6,938,314 barrels, against 6,387,728 barrels last year; lard, 52,200,116 pounds, against 38,697,481 pounds last year.

Cheese Statistics.

The value of cheese made in Canada this year is estimated at $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. It is figured out that this represents a make for the season of 3,000,000 boxes, estimated at equal to 6,000 carloads of 20 tons each; making a train 37½ miles in length; piled up one over the other it would make a stack 852 miles in height.

SAVE 25% on your HOUSE PAINTING.

If the grocers who intend painting their residences next Spring will follow the directions given below and wash the buildings with a solution of GOLD DUST Washing Powder, theyw ill use one-third less paint than if they merely attempted to brush the dust off the house without washing it.

DIRECTIONS.

Dissolve one-quarter pound of GOLD DUST in a pint of water, then add the solution to 4 gallons of hot water; apply with a stiff brush, and follow with use of a hose. The stronger the hose is turned on the quicker and more effectual the work will be.

The use of less paint can be accounted for by the fact that after washing the house with GOLD DUST it leaves a smooth surface, so that the same quantity of paint will go fully one-fourth further. Furthermore, it leaves no layer of dirt between the paint and the woodwork, and, as a consequence, the paint will wear longer.

We have letters from several of our customers who used this method, and after washing their houses with GOLD DUST they were so well pleased with the appearance of them that they concluded not to paint them at all.

Retail grocers will do well to call this matter to the attention of their customers, as $3.00 worth of GOLD DUST Washing Powder will make the house look as well as the expenditure of $100.00 in re-painting it would.

Any grocer may experiment with a 5c. package of GOLD DUST by emptying the contents into 8 gallons of hot water, which should convince him that it will pay him to continue.

GOLD DUST can be used for any kind of outdoor work that needs renovating

BACK FROM ST. LOUIS.

W. L. CRIGHTON, advertising agent of the Intercolonial Railway, was in the city yesterday on his return from St. Louis, where he has been on business for the Government railways. It is the intention of the railway if suitable space can be secured, to make a big display of the attractions of the Maritime Provinces to Summer tourists, fishermen looking for salmon, trout and bass, and hunters in search of big game, such as the moose, bear, caribou and deer, which will be done by means of large photographs and actual specimens of fish and game. Electrical effects will also be introduced. The demand for space in all the buildings far exceeds the supply and this despite the tremendous area at the directorate's disposal. A comparison with the World's Fair at Chicago and the Pan-American at Buffalo is largely in favor of the St. Louis Exposition. The Transportation Building, for instance, has a floor space of 525 feet by 1,300 feet, and the total area under roof of the main exposition buildings is 131 acres or nearly 50 acres larger than the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, and just as the buildings are as colossal in size so will the exhibition be in scope. Several of the important buildings are completed and the advanced condition of the other main buildings assures the opening of the Exposition April 30th, 1904. The buildings are bewildering in their beauty, the designers having been given a free hand, the results, therefore, being unique in architctural originality. It would appear, therefore, to be a safe statement to make that it will be impossible to see again their like or equal. The question of accommodation has been dealt with in an intelligent manner by the directorate, most of the principal hotels being under contract not to exceed their rates in vogue at the present time and which are normal. Numerous hotels are in the course of erection. A new feature in World's Fairs is the erection of an hotel of two thousand rooms at moderate prices in the actual exposition. Over 500 restaurants will cater to the hungry. A list of hotels, boarding houses and private accommodations has been compiled and will shortly be in the hands of the principal railway agents. Canada's "Famous Train" "The Maritime Express," running between Montreal, Quebec, St. John, Halifax and the Sydneys compares more than favorably with the much advertised trains in the States, and particularly so with regard to dining car service, the full course meals at a uniform price of 75 cents being a marvel of cheapness. Mr. Crighton adds he must pay tribute to the courtesy of the St. Louis people in general to visitors to their beautiful city, their willingness to direct strangers carrying out the best traditions of Southern customs.

PRESIDENT DOMINION TRAVELLERS.

J. S. N. DOUGALL, of McCaskill, Dougall & Co., has been elected president of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association, the vote being Dougall 1273 and George Mann 811. In addition to the election of president, the following directors were chosen: W. Beauchamp, T. S. Currie, W. J. Egan, W. B. Mathews and J. F. Dubreuil.

The applications for membership show a considerable increase over that of any previous year; the number of new members enrolled was 737, their average age being 30 years; 367 failed to renew their subscriptions, making present membership 4,434, a gain of 370 over last year. Death claims in comparison with the increasing membership may be considered very few, numbering 33, as against 32 for each of the three preceeding years. The claims arising therefrom amount to $30,900, being $1,400 less than last year.

The treasurer's statement shows that the sum of $19,000 has been invested. This amount is secured by first mortgage on real estate bearing 5 per cent. Five thousand five hundred dollars have been realized on matured loans. The net surplus for the year carried to capital acount was $19,942.77, which now reaches the handsome sum of $222,-947.30.

The annual dinner will be held at the St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal, Dec. 30.

APPOINTED AGENTS.

The Greig Mfg. Co., Ltd., Montreal, desire to call the attention of the trade to their appointment as sole Canadian agents for the Terezol Mfg. Co., Manchester, Eng., "Terezol" boot and shoe polish. This polish is preferred by scientific methods and most experienced leather experts, and is claimed to be a leather preservative as well as a polish. A Business Man on The University Question.

THE affairs of the University of Toronto were the subject of an address by Mr. W. T. White, B.A., manager of The National Trust Co., before the Canadian Club of Toronto, Monday noon last. The University question is one of great importance and growing interest to the business men not alone of Ontario but of Canada at large, and while Mr. White's address had particular reference to The University of Toronto it cannot fail to be read with interest by our Maritime friends who find their universities handicapped by the same lack of funds which has long been a drag to Ontario's provincial university, and who are even now grappling with the problem of University Federation, a problem which Toronto has just solved by the admission of Trinity to the sisterhood of educational institutions centered in Queen's Park.

The Canadian Club were happy in their choice of a man to speak to business men on the University question. Mr. White is at once an honored Alumnus of The University of Toronto, a graduate in arts and law, and a business man of prominence and experience, who is thus fortunately able to treat his subject from the point of view of the practical man of business, and at the same time appreciate the situation as a non-university man might not be able to do.

For some years after graduation Mr. White was a successful newspaper man—a line of work where experience is more readily acquired than wealth. From newspaper work, in which he did City Hall assignments, he entered the Assessment Commissioner's office, which he left to become manager of The National Trust Company, where his success has been marked, and where he has built up a reputation as a particularly broad-minded and far-seeing business man.

With Mr. White's plea for more liberal treatment for our Universities no business man can but sympathize. A parsimonious policy is poor economy, whether applied to a pork factory or a university, a fact which the government is recognizing all too slowly. The suggestion that the advantages of the university be made more widely available is also worthy of the very best consideration, while, perhaps, most important and underlying all was his call for men—men of intellect, character, individuality, and wide sympathies ; for important as money is in the modern university it is, in the last analysis, the intellect, character, individuality, and wide sympathy, in a word, the culture, of the staff that raises the university above a mere degree factory

Mr. White, whose address was heard by several hundred members of the club, assumed that the scientific and technical side of the university training needed no defence, as all realized the great service it has done to manufacturing interests and the importance of present investigations to an industrial progress. The arts department, however, might need a defence before a gathering of business men.

The fact that many men without any attendance at college had possessed themselves of a fair share of the knowledge imparted in a university course was no argument that such a course was of no advantage. For men of great natural capacity and sincere love of learning no course of training yet devised by man was quite the equal of a university course in arts. It enlightened his mind, strengthened its faculties, and developed its powers. It gave him precision of thought and developed the power of concentration and right methods of thought. The knowledge obtained broadened and refined the man.

EVENING CLASSES.

"And when we develop proper ideals at our university, and it stands with open doors with late afternoon and evening classes for our younger men in offices, and when leaders among the business men here begin to recognize, as they have long since recognized in the United States, what a mass of trained intelligence lies ready to their hand, with the publication of each annual class list, then we shall certainly, from the graduates of our universities, get great business men as well as great preachers, lawyers, and doctors."

INFLUENCE OF UNIVERSITY.

The influence of the university on the teaching, in legal and medical professions was admitted. When the strain of living became less intense men would be able to give more carelul thought to the affairs of the State, and our politicians and orators would also be drawn from the ranks of the college graduates.

The moral benefit of a university training was incalculable. It developed all that was best and noblest in thought and character. The philosopher and student, attached solely to his books, were both of service to mankind in helping to lift us above mere worship of Mammon.

DUTY TO UNIVERSITY.

Our duty to the Provincial University was to maintain it, as we should any other great national asset, at its highest possible efficiency, and not suffer it to lapse into decay. Our duty was to supply proper buildings and equipment, adequate revenues, and the best teachers that could be obtained. This duty has been badly performed.

AT A STANDSTILL.

"University education is at a standstill. We have not kept pace with the times," said Mr. White. "We are being outranked and outclassed by the least important of our neighboring States, and have lost that supremacy which we used to be taught was enjoyed by Ontario. Toronto University needs money for new buildings, for equipment, for staff, and unless her wants are supplied, she must sink to third or fourth rank."

MONETARY NEEDS.

A $200,000 laboratory was needed for the department of physics. A botanical plant and laboratory, an astronomical observatory, an extension to the library, a central heating and lighting plant were a few of the things needed. These alone would require $500,000.

Mr. White then compared the revenue of the university with those of similar institutions. The total contribution of the Government, he said, was about $100,000. Michigan State University received in the last fiscal year $559,000, of which $400,000 was revenue and the balance for buildings and repairs. Minnesota, less populous and less wealthy than Ontario, gave $200,000 this year to her university, which also received $100,000 from the Federal Government. It was absolutely necessary that the revenue of Toronto University should be doubled, and why should the province not resort to direct taxation for the purpose of the university, so that everybody's son might be benefitted ?

"One-tenth of a mill upon the general assessment of Ontario, collected through the municipalities, and rendered to the Provincial Treasurer, will just about solve the problem of additional revenue and interest upon the capital expenditure, which could be easily and readily financed upon the credit of the province by the issue of debentures."

To increase the fees of the university would mean the exclusion of perhaps the most desirable class of students, those of humbler means.

This money might be raised in other ways, by taxes on railways, or franchise-holding corporations.

MEN ALSO NEEDED.

Men were needed also, men of intellect, character, individuality, and wide sympathies. Political influence should not be allowed to enter into the all-important matter of appointment. The power should be vested in a board of trustees, responsible to the public, who should be given sufficient money to employ and retain the best men. Advancement should come through merit and character alone.

It is only fair to the Government to say that they have been doing much better lately, and the new School of Practical Science and the grant to convocation hall were the first fruits of a change of heart. Personally he felt that Mr. Ross realized fully the importance of university work, but was fearful of outrunning public opinion. Mr. Whitney, leader of the Opposition, took a very sympathetic view of university affairs and would assist and not obstruct the Government in connection with any increased grant. He was satisfied that there are enough men in the hall, always including the omnipresent press, to bring it about that neither Government nor Opposition dare refuse to oppose the adequate maintenance of higher education in this province. He believed there is an undue apprehension as to the farmers opposing grants for higher education. The sons of farmers had gone higher in education than the sons of any other class in Ontario, and all that was needed was a statesman full of his subject presenting the facts fairly to the House and to the country.

WHAT ENGLISHMEN EAT.

THE Royal Statistical Society held their first ordinary meeting of the session the other evening, under the presidency of Major Patrick George Craigie of the Board of Agriculture and Fisheries. In his address the president said that he had already shown that since 1830 the British Empire had grown from 4 per cent. to 24 per cent. of the surface of the earth. In the "thirties" the population outside the British Isles was 100,000,000; the figure for 1900 was three and a half times that number. No less striking was the increase in the supply of food, the consumption of meat being 13 times as great now as it was about 70 years ago. The increased supply came largely from abroad. The people of 1857-59 consumed only 5 pounds per head of sea-borne meat, whereas today the figure was 53¼ pounds for each person. The quota of the United States was still vastly ahead of that which any individual country supplied, but the proportion of the whole from this quarter was not maintaining the ratio of 20 years ago. There still remained for the British farmers a region which might be all their own, and in turning attention more closely to meat production and dairy business they stood no such risk as in the case of cereals. There was room in the demands of our rising population for all that our farmers could raise. But the history of our food imports made it plain that the competition of meat of very distant origin with native meat had grown by relatively greater strides than those of the simpler and more bulky cereals.

Turning to other products, Major Craigie pointed out that tea had also become more and more popular. The quantity sold per head in the year 1852 was two pounds, by 1859 it had increased to 2.67 pounds, in 1885 to 5 pounds, and now the country took 6 pounds per head. As much as 98 per cent. came from China 50 years ago, but now practically all came from India and Ceylon. More food and better food was obtainable in the United Kingdom to-day than at any earlier date. That was not apparently, in the view of the lecturer, an unmixed benefit, and he suggested that their scientific colleagues should resolve their doubts as to the bearing on the health and vigor of the people of many of the changes which the last half-century had wrought in the character and distribution of the food consumed in this land. Prominent among these changes, though not by any means alone, one was tempted to ask whether the physique of the nation has been bettered or deteriorated by the much larger and sometimes wasteful use of meat, of tea, or of tobacco, which the figures quoted could not but suggest. It was a question whether the increased consumption had been wisest for the health of the population. Major Craigie closed by saying: "Last of all, it does occur to me to ask whether we are quite certain it is the wisest economy to make such efforts to bring the food to the men, and not rather to send the men to the food, so long as the wide areas of food-bearing soil in our vast empire cry out for labor, and offer to the masses of our labor centres at home—as a not impracticable alternative to the struggles of the mine, or the factory, or the workshop—obedience of the old command, to go forth and replenish the earth and subdue it."

The report of the society's committee on the production and consumption of meat, presented by R. Henry Rew, of the Board of Agriculture, was submitted. It developed the point about meat consumption, showing that in the United Kingdom the average annual production of meat was 67.52 pounds per head, while the average quantity imported was 54.24 pounds, giving a total annual consumption for each person of 121.76 pounds. The yearly consumption was roughly shown by the following figures:

	Pounds per annum.	Per head per week.
Artisians, mechanics and laborers..	107	$2 06
Lower middle class.....	122	2 35
Middle class.....	182	3 50
Upper class.....	300	5 77

In the course of the evening the chairman presented M. Yves Guyot with the Guy silver medal for his paper on the "Sugar Industry on the Continent."—London Telegraph.

NORTHWEST TRAVELLERS.

THE twenty-first annual meeting of the Northwest Commercial Travellers' Association was held Saturday night last, in Board of Trade rooms, Winnipeg. A very large attendance was present. The reports showed a total membership of 1,241, an increase for the year of 267. The Winnipeg membership reaches 881. Receipts for year amounted to $13,669, and the total funds to credit of Association aggregate $51,713. Of this $38,692 constitutes the Mortuary Benefit Fund. The officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President—F. H. Agnew.
Vice-President—F. C. Fahey.
Treasurer—L. C. McIntyre.
Secretary—F. C. Cox.

Directors—R. McGowan, F. M. Morgan, T. A. Anderson, F. W. Drewry, G. F. Bryan, John Horne, W. W. Bole, J. A. McTaggart, D. J. Dyson.

Officers for British Columbia:—
Vancouver—Vice-President—James Beveridge.
Directors—T. Parkinson and A. H. Walbridge.
Victoria—Vice-President—H. G. Wilson.
Director—J. C. Devlin.
New Westminster—Vice-President—J. C. Cunningham.
Kootenay—Vice-President—Jos. Lawrence.

POTATOES.

THE fact that in Germany the average annual consumption of potatoes is some twenty-seven or twenty-eight bushels a head, while in the United States it is only three, shows that the Americans are more carnivorous, says Everybody's Magazine, or at least more able to spend money for meat, than their cousins over the water. It explains in part, why Hans raises about six times as many "Irish Bananas" as Jonathan raises. Hans gives three times as much space to potato-fields. But Hans also gets twice as many potatoes out of the same area. The German crop yields about 200 bushels to the acre. The American average runs from 80 to 100, say 95 or 96. Why is this? Why can't the Yankee farmers coax as many potatoes out of the hill as their brethern in Deutschland?

COMPLIMENTS OF THE SEASON.

MERRY Christmas and a Prosperous New Year! How pleasant is the old phrase to the ear! Pass it on to your neighbor. Let the world see that the trials and disappointments of life, the losses and vexations of business have still left to you that modicum of kindly feeling which contributes so much to a better spirit in all the relationships of life.

Be an optimist. There is need of optimism in Canada, as in other countries, to-day. There has been too much talk of the depression which is to come but which by every kind of reckoning is as far distant as ever. With heavy immigration and unprecedented railway construction anticipated during the coming year, with our retail stores, our workshops and our factories—everything, save our gaols—busier than ever, what reason have Canadians for pessimism? Why should they give serious heed to prophesies of depression and disaster?

Has your business fallen off during the last year? Or have you not secured the proportion of profit which is necessary to make business "worth while"? Then do not blame the result on the conditions of trade in the country. The wholesale houses say that business has been of larger volume than ever during the year—this in spite of the depression prevailing in the United States; the larger retailers in such luxuries as diamonds, furs, pianos, etc., say that buying has been exceptionally generous.

So, if things have not been coming your way do not go around kicking about depression, about dull times. Spruce up! Brighten up your store! Nine chances to one you will discover that the depression has been restricted in a large measure to yourself, that your neighbors are buoyant with the good cheer and warmth of optimism.

So join the optimists! Hide your worries behind the glad smile of friendly greeting and mayhap in adding to the general spirit of pleasantness your old troubles may be materially reduced if not altogether effaced.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

THIS is the open season for candidates, aspirants for municipal honors. How some of the aspirants have the assurance to aspire is beyond the ken of most of us, but nevertheless they are out year after year and often are elected because the voters get tired of turning them down or because of the dearth of good men in the field.

The curse of our political system, Federal, Provincial and municipal is the difficulty of getting good business men to take upon them the burden and honor of public service. Our successful business men are often too busy getting rich to interest themselves in how our public affairs are managed unless the consequent mismanagement effects them personally in a pecuniary manner. This may be due to selfishness or to mere carelessness or again it may be due to a feeling of distaste at the prospect of entering a field which has often been made uninviting by the class of men who have arrogated to themselves its direction. In any event men who have proved their capacity by success in their own business are under a moral and civic obligation to lend their services to the community in which they have won their success for the common interest.

It is indeed true that a man of business may not be able to spare the time necessary to enter the Provincial or Dominion Parliament, but he certainly can take his part in the municipal government where the effects of wise and unwise administration are more immediately felt, where question of abstract policy are largely eliminated and where the business to be transacted is just that sort of business which a man of affairs meets with every day in his own sphere.

Nominations are now at hand and our business men should turn out in full force and if called upon to enter the field they should be prepared to make some sacrifice of personal comfort and accept.

Again in the selection of men from the list of would-be's, Canada is fortunately free from the system across the border where every man from a State judge to a poundkeeper is elected on party grounds and not on grounds of personal worth. We have still something to look forward to in the line of improvement, however, and that is in making business ability rather than mere jolly-good-fellowship the standard to which our municipal fathers must conform. Business men owe it to themselves to see that a fair proportion of our councillors aldermen, reeves and mayors in 1904 be chosen from their ranks.

TERMS ON WRAPPING PAPER.

MANUFACTURERS of and wholesale dealers in wrapping paper have,possibly as a result of the successful shortening of terms by jobbers in other lines, decided to shorten their terms of credit. The terms now are 60 days, net; 30 days 2 per cent., whereas formerly they were 90 days, net; 30 days, 3 per cent.

EGGS ARE NO JOKE.

EGGS, fresh or alleged to be, new laid, or ancient, have been, time out of mind, the jest of the funny man. They have been associated with boarding-houses, tragedians, and politicians, with more or less malodorous effect. But just at the present moment eggs are no joke.

In the words of the philosopher "eggs is eggs" these days. From 30 to 35 cents is our quotation for strictly new laid, but there are callous doubters who will defy you to get strictly new laid eggs for 50 cents, but the doubter is always with us.

Be that as it may, there are no eggs coming in; the demand is large; the stocks are light and daily growing lighter. What eggs are held in cold storage or in pickle are in a few hands. What then will be the result? The "biddies" will not begin to lay to any great extent till the first of February, and before that time there will, in all probability, be a pinch. In conversation, however, a dealer who was fortunate enough to have a considerable stock on hand, expressed the opinion that prices would not soar very much higher, as any further increase would check consumption. He thought, however, that there would be a serious shortage before the new crop began to come in in any quantity. In the meantime the humorous paragraphers are requested to treat the egg with the respect due it present exalted position.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S COMMISSION.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S commission to enquire into the condition of British industries and to report upon the whole question of fiscal reform is an innovation which is meeting with a mixed reception by the hard-headed and stiff-necked British electors. The admirers of the man from Birmingham commend the commission as the idea of a master mind, a triumphant stroke of statesmanship; while his opponents ridicule the whole project and criticise the personnel of the commission and its right to any claim to represent in any way the British people.

The appeal from the hustings to the board meeting from the heat of political passion and rancor to the keen foresight and insight which characterizes the industrial and commercial world is a move which must be approved by all thinking men. "The Grocer" has again and again advocated the removal of the tariff question from the political fray and the appointment of a commission of business men representing all interests with whom the Ministry of the day could consult on questions affecting the tariff.

Mr. Chamberlain's move is along these lines. It is somewhat unfortunate, however, that although in a manner semi-official, Mr. Chamberlain although a free lance, being undoubtedly hand in glove with Mr. Balfour, the commission has no actual official standing. It is therefore fairly a mark for the jibes of the Opposition, who feel themselves under no obligation for restraint. The commission is thus open for attack in a way it would not be, had it the official stamp of Government appointment. In the course of their investigations they will be handicapped and their report, however comprehensive and valuable, will still be open to the taunt of being a private member's commission appointed for the purpose of arriving at a certain conclusion and it will be argued that the fact that they had reached such a conclusion should have no bearing on the matter before the British people at all.

This will no doubt be the position taken by the opponents of fiscal reform.

Despite its faults, however, the commission should elicit much valuable information, and it is to be hoped that its success may be such as to encourage similar but official commissions in the future.

TEA VALUES.

ONE of the striking features of the market at the close of the year nineteen hundred and three is the high range of values which prevail in the great commodity, tea. It is estimated by an authority that on the all-round average Ceylon and Indian teas are fully two cents per pound higher than this time last year, while Japans and Chinas are also much higher than a year ago.

There has been suggested as a cause of these high values, the fact that a considerable quantity of the output of Ceylon and India has been made into green, thus relieving the pressure on the market for black. In this way the market is relieved of from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds, which would otherwise have entered the black market, as it is the market for black is by no means affected by the green which attaches an entirely different market almost as much as if it were being used as a substitute for coffee or cocoa. The scarcity of Japan has been another feature which has helped the new green tea industry. The planters have reaped an enormous benefit from the rise, especially in India where the production of tea this year is much greater than it was last year.

The consumer, of course, feels to some extent the effect of the present prices, but the package tea men are hardest hit. They have a certain blend of tea for which they have established a taste and a demand at a certain price. They can not raise the price and they must keep up their standard or they will lose their grip on the trade. A leading package tea man remarked the other day that high prices were making a difference in his profits of from $1,200 to $1,500 per week in his Canadian and American trade. He had, however, to give exactly the same quality or go out of business. A solution might be to raise the price to the retailer, but this was one of the last things he said he would think of doing. In the meanwhile the tea market remains firm.

INQUIRIES FOR CANADIAN TRADE

THE following were among the inquiries relating to Canadian trade, recently received at the Canadian Government office in London :

1. A London firm desire to open up business relations with manufacturers of the following classes of goods, either as sole consignees or sole agents : picture frame mouldings, pastry boards, knife and scrubbing boards, broom handles, clothes pegs, enameled ware.

2. Inquiry is made respecting the market in Canada for imported salt by a gentleman who is interested in the West Indian product.

3. A North of England firm of iron and steel merchants and ship breakers ask to be furnished with names of some good Canadian houses who import old iron and steel in the shape of rails, ship plates, angles, etc.

4. Inquiry is made by a London exporter in the soft goods trade respecting the opportunities for making business connections with Canada.

5. Application is made by a city engineer for samples of difierent Canadian woods, size 9 x 5 x 3.

6. Inquiry has been made as to the chances of success of a small wool-combing plant in Canada, and as to a suitable location for the same.

7. A person proposing to establish himself in Canada next year as a hardware merchant and agent, is endeavoring to obtain some British agencies in addition to those already secured.

8. An inquiry has been received from a fruit importer at Sheffield, who is in a position to import about 200 barrels of apples a week, and requires fresh sources of supply in Canada.

9. A manufacturing firm in London using a quantity of pig iron in their business, have made inquiry respecting Canadian supplies of this article.

10. Application has been received from a maker of dog and poultry foods, for names of Canadian tallow merchants and refiners, tallow and fat melters, soap manufacturers and canned meat packers, the object being to arrange for a regular supply of the by-product known as "greaves."

11. A firm in the "last" manufacturing trade, in a position to purchase large quantities of hard maple wood blocks, are desirous of getting into touch with Canadian exporters able to meet their requirements.

12. Inquiry has been received for names of wholesale grocers and drysaltory establishments in Canada who would be likely to open up business arrangements with an English maker of blacklead, laundry blues, etc.

13. The same parties would be prepared to undertake the grinding and packing in tins or packets of any goods shipped by a Canadian house requiring such treatment in England.

Inquiries received by the Canadian section of the Imperial Institute :

14. A box manufacturing company at Cardiff asks to be placed in touch with Canadian makers of box shooks, who are advantageously located for shipping direct to Cardiff.

15. A firm in Brussels, Belgium, wishes to represent Canadian packers of canned salmon, and also a packer of lobsters.

16. A London house would be pleased to hear from Canadian manufacturers of vinegar.

17. An inquiry has been made for the names of Canadian merchants and agents handling yarns.

18. The manufacturers of a special "damp course" wish to place same in Canadian market, and ask to be placed in touch with a few responsible firms in principal cities in touch with architects and builders.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. J. M. Fortier, of J. M. Fortier & Co., Montreal, leaves on Friday for Havana on his annual purchasing tour. Mr. Fortier's trip will last until January 17.

Mr. A. P. Tippet, of A. P. Tippet & Co., Montreal, left last week on his annual trip to the English and continental markets. He will be gone a month or six weeks.

Mr. Wm. Harrison, representing "Salada" tea, has just returned from a trip to the Maritime Provinces. He reports most satisfactory sales and the demand for "Salada" teas increasing.

Mr. F. Oberndorffer, cigar manufacturer, of Kingston, Ont., passed through Montreal last week on his return from the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Oberndorffer reports very good business. He says he is busy up to the limit.

Mr. Eugene Rosedale, of New York, manager of coffee department of Thos. Lipton, New York branch, was a visitor to Montreal this week. In an interview with a "Grocer" representative Mr. Rosedale stated that business in Canada was developing most satisfactorily, and the campaign they were now pursuing was one that must interest the trade throughout the country.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers, Guelph, have secured the services of Chas. Laing, of Hamilton, who has been representing The Hamilton Biscuit & Confectionery Co. for the last couple of years and is an experienced grocery man. Mr. Laing is an energetic salesman and has a large connection on the road, which he expects to retain, and will commence his duties for the new firm the beginning of the new year.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puff- of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

Balfour & Co. report the year 1903 one of the largest turnovers in their history.

The Eby, Blain Co. are quoting Eleme figs and Malaga raisins at clearing prices.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol have still a few boxes each of Rideau, Choice and Dessert cluster raisins for sale.

The offices and warehouse of H. P. Eckardt & Co. will be closed on Saturday, December 26.

Balfour & Co. say that they will have to procure larger premises if trade continues to increase.

The Eby, Blain Co. have a car of New Orleans molasses arriving this week, which includes some very fine values in fancy open kettle molasses in half barrels.

Marbot walnuts, whole and shelled, also Jordan shelled almonds, may be procured from Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

In Scotch and Irish whiskies, Malaga and Madeira wines (Blandy Bros.' Madeira brands), and Richard's brandies, Laporte, Martin & Cie. are showing unprecedented values.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol give personal care to mail orders. They will be shipped same day as order is received.

The trade is requested to wire or telephone at expense of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, for any of their rush-order requirements of table raisins, figs, dates, nuts, etc. A well-assorted stock of the best brands is on hand and prompt shipment is assured to buyers.

McWilliam & Everist report a strong demand again this year for "Rose" brand Southern California oranges.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, are offering shelled walnuts and shelled almonds at interesting prices. These lines have both advanced lately, but their prices are guaranteed to please buyers.

McWilliam & Everist have arriving this week two cars of Mexican oranges and one car of navels.

CUSTOMS RULING ON MOLASSES.

The Customs Department at Ottawa have issued the following order :

"In view of the frequent importation of molasses found to contain an admixture of glucose, it is ordered that ¾c. per pound duty be collected on molasses entered at the customs of Canada and claimed to test not less than 35, vending the test by polariscope at Customs in Ottawa, subject, however, to refund of duty if the molasses be subsequently found entitled to entry under tariff item 441. In case, however, of molasses imported direct to a Canadian port from the West Indies or Guiana, collector must allow delivery on payment of duty, under tariff item 441, upon importer's undertaking to amend entry, when so required, if the collector deems it advisable to do so, after examination of importation."

LOOKING FOR AN AGENT.

A firm manufacturing a certain article allied to the grocery and provision trade is looking for a broker or commission agent who can take charge of their business in Toronto. It will be necessary for the agent to have a warehouse and carry a stock of the particular line. The editor of "The Canadian Grocer" will be glad to place any one in communication with the firm in question.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, Dec. 23, 1903.

Groceries.

THE business of the year has been practically finished. The past week has been largely of the sorting order, but nevertheless aggregated a considerable amount. The year, taken altogether, must be considered a fairly prosperous and satisfactory one. The volume of trade was larger than the previous year, although it is generally doubted that profits will be correspondingly increased, owing to the competition and the depreciation in the values of some lines after being purchased. Money has been quite free throughout, and payments on the whole are regarded as satisfactory. A large number of the more enlightened and up-to-date retailers are learning the advantage of paying cash and saving discounts. Discounts although small in the grocery business amount to a considerable sum at the end of the year, on account of the frequent turnover. One thing enabling the grocer to pay cash is the distribution of chartered banks throughout Ontario, with which the grocers obtain small lines of credit and thus save their discounts. So far as can be seen, prospects for the new year are bright. The canned goods situation is still strong, and higher prices are not unlikely for vegetables after the new year. Coffee is still high and strong despite a slump and recovery at New York since last writing. Spices are firm with an upward tendency. Syrup is in good demand and molasses firm owing to the short crop at New Orleans. Rice and tapioca are nominal at present. Tea is rather featureless, though prices were about maintained at last London markets. Dried fruits and nuts have been meeting a good sorting demand. Features of the week in these lines have been the rise in shelled almonds and currants. The most interesting feature to report as regards sugar this week has been the passage of the Cuban Reciprocity Treaty by the United States Senate giving Cuba a preference of .337c. on 96 test sugars. The treaty goes into effect Monday next. Locally there has been a drop of 5c. in granulated.

CANNED GOODS

The canned goods situation is still strong, although business has been light the past week, and pretty well over for the year. It is anticipated that after the new year higher prices will rule for vegetables than at present prevail. Fruits are plentiful, and meats, except canned poultry, are not attracting much attention. COFFEES.

The coffee market is still high and feverish. Since last writing the market in New York slumped but recovered again, and at last writing was again in an excitable state. Prices are still, however, on a very high range compared with quite recent values. A London advice says new crop mild coffee will open extremely high. Local trade is not particularly interesting just at the holiday season, but coffee men report a fair average trade doing. We quote:

SUGAR.

With the passage of the Cuban Reciprocity Bill on December 16, the market has assumed a firmer tone, which confirms previous predictions that any possible adverse effect of the Treaty had been fully discounted. The vote in the United States Senate was 57 for, to 18 against. It has since been decided that the Treaty shall practically take effect on the morning of Monday next, 28th inst. As previously advised, it provides for the reduction of 20 per cent. of the duty at present assessed under the Dingley Tariff. This will be equivalent to .337c. on 96 test sugars, and will make the duty on that grade $1.348, whilst sugars from other countries not receiving favorable treatment under the tariff will pay the full duty of $1.68½. At same time there are other producing countries whose sugars enjoy special privileges on importation into the United States, viz., from the Hawaiian Islands and Porto Rico, which are free, and from the Philippine Islands, which pay 75 per cent. of regular duties. The probable quantity to be exported from these countries (including Cuba) for coming year, will be 1,650,000 tons, whilst the probable requirements for import to the United States will be, say, 2,050,000 tons, leaving a deficiency of 400,000 tons to be supplied by sugars paying full duties, which should help to keep prices to a level that will allow Cuba a good share of the preferential, unless the Cubans should forfeit this by trying to market their sugar too rapidly. From present indications they are evidently satisfied with sales made for January shipment, and are holding for 1-32c. advance, or, say, 2 3-16c. C. & F., equal to 3.53c., duty paid. Sales have been made of other sugars at 3 9-16c., duty paid, and these quotations remain nominal at the close. We also hear of a sale of 22,000 bags of Cubans held in bond New York for delivery to refiners on December 28 on basis equal to about 3.57½c., duty paid. For week ending December 16 receipts at United States four ports were 27,259 tons, with meltings for the week increased by 2,000 tons to 26,000 tons, leaving total stocks of 100,033 tons, against 153,952 tons last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 3,329,533 tons, being 179,951 tons over last year. Grinding of new Cuban crop is getting well under way, and there were, at latest advices, 18 central factories working. Europe has fluctuated only slightly for the week, between 9s. 5¼d. to 9s. 4½d. for 88 per cent. beet, and remains nominal at the last quotation. Mr. Licht has increased his estimate for all Europe by 50,000 tons to 5,900,000 tons, against a total crop last year of 5,556,869 tons. He has since cabled that the weather is unfavorable for crop work. There are no changes to report in United States refined, and the situation there is exceedingly firm, with well-informed members of the trade holding to the opinion that, after the turn of the year, prices will likely be higher. Here we have to record a decline of .05c. per 100 pounds on Saturday, 19th inst., same applying only to white sugars. No reason is given for the change, and there is still a fair business doing for actual requirements, without any speculative trading. We quote:

SPICES

No change in spices is reported locally. A good active demand has been met for the Christmas trade. Prices are very firm with an upward tendency. Advices from Zanzibar reporting a severe hurricane, which it is feared injured the clove trees and damaged the crop of chillies, has hardened the New York market. Pepper was quiet and steady. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A good demand is reported for these lines with holders maintaining prices firm. Receipts of molasses at New Orleans continue small, and the yield there is conceded to be 50 per cent. short. Tendency is consequently higher. Syrups are being well called for. We quote :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

There is little doing in rice or tapioca at this time of year generally, but, considering the season, a fair trade is being done. A slight hardening of tapioca on primal markets is announced but no change has occurred locally. We quote :

TEAS.

Teas are being to some extent neglected owing to the pressure of the holiday trade in other lines. Stocks, however, are very short in this country, and no doubt business will be resumed with activity after the holidays. The London market closed on the 17th, and will not reopen till the 4th. The latest advices, however, would indicate that prices were being maintained. The offerings have not been large, and Indian is showing improved quality. We quote :

Foreign Dried Fruits.

The trade in dried fruits this last week has been confined largely to sorting orders. There has been a general shortage of all Christmas goods on the spot, and considerable buying between houses in almonds, walnuts and table raisins. A late cable advances shelled almonds 1c. per pound, and business has been done on the advance. An advance o- 9d. per cwt. on currants at Patras is another feature of the week's events. California fruits are at a standstill, but a local broker learns that with the stocks in Eastern hands light, and with the light crops on the coast closely concentrated in a few hands, an advance is likely after the turn of the year. Advices from Smyrna re Sultana raisins report that the present low level of prices is attracting the attention of both consumers and speculators. It is not unlikely that by the end of the year, if the vines do not show indications of a large production for next season, we may have a sharp upward movement. After the large crop of last year it is almost a foregone conclusion that next year's crop will be a short one. The vines commence to show indications on which the production can be pretty well estimated by January. A cable of Monday advises higher prices next month. Walnuts of all kinds, shelled and unshelled, are firm at the advance. First tide dates via London arrived at Halifax last week. We quote :

Country Produce.

EGGS.

The threatened egg shortage is becoming every day more imminent. Receipts show no improvement and the demand keeps up firmly, so that the cold-storage and pickled are becoming depleted. Toronto seems better supplied than most Canadian centres, and here what eggs are in store are controlled by a few parties. One of these, however, remarked that he did not think prices would go much higher, for while there might be a pinch toward the end of January, higher prices would result in a lessening demand. Strictly new laid are as hard to get as ever and pickled have advanced a cent. We quote :

WHITE BEANS.

There is a fair demand in this line, but nothing of especial note. Prices continue unchanged. We quote :

HONEY.

The Christmas season has stimulated the demand for honey, and a more lively trade is being done with prices on present basis. We quote :

DRIED APPLES.

There is little to record in these lines. On account of the low price of evaporated, dried are in little demand. We quote :

POULTRY.

There has been a particularly lively demand for all kinds of poultry the last ten days. Receipts have been on the increase, but despite this high values have ruled for all lines. Sixteen to 17c. were the prices asked wholesale for turkeys, and 19 to 20c. the retail price. Geese were very scarce and ducks also very short. We quote :

Green Fruits.

The fruit houses have been kept particularly busy getting out their final holiday orders. The general concensus of of opinion is to the effect that a very satisfactory season has been met. California oranges, Mexican oranges and bananas have had the largest call. Japanese oranges are an attractive line, small but of fine flavor. Southern California fruit is of fine quality. Prices are Vegetables.

The vegetable market has now reached a stage which shows few changes from week to week. Potatoes are the largest sellers and by single bags have gone up to $1, although in round lots 90c. still rules. Onions are also strong at an advance of 10c. per bag. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Dec. 23, 1903.

Groceries.

THIS, the last active business week of the year, shows trade among the jobbers in a quiet state, orders are being received but they are mostly for goods suited for the holiday trade, such as fruits, raisins, figs, dates and table luxuries, which possibly had been ordered in insufficient quantities. Stock taking time, too, is approaching and preparations are under way in sorting and arranging goods for this event. This week, comparing it with last year's business, is if anything somewhat better. Retailers in the city state that it is more than usually busy, shopping being of a better volume, and this year commenced earlier. Collections and remittances are reported fairly satisfactory. In the grocery line sugars declined 5c. per 100 lb. last Friday, though only in granulated and hard grades, yellows unchanged. Business is only fair. In teas the stagnation that has prevailed for some weeks still holds sway, very little local trading is done. Brokers report strong situation in London, one offering 1,000 packages. Green Ceylons being declined on a fraction of a farthing this week. This position of the market does not tend to encourage active business at the present. The cabled advices that the Ceylon Government had decided to allow the rebate to planters until 5,000,000 lb. green Ceylon had been produced will probably be welcome news in some quarters. Japans are very quiet and little doing. China and Ceylon blacks unchanged. Syrups and molasses are only fairly interesting. An order issued by the Customs authorities at Ottawa with reference to mixed molasses, was evidently brought about in consequence of a considerable mixture of glucose having been discovered in several importations of New Orleans molasses received here lately. What effect this order will have on the trade can be discovered by every dealer. One feature of this molasses situation that will be unpleasant, was referred to by one of our prominent wholesale grocers, it is that in cases of suspected molasses that has been bought on good faith, the samples will have to be sent to Ottawa for test; this causes a delay of sometimes weeks, with a consequent handicap to prompt business transactions. Even after the examination is made it might develop that the molasses had the proper polanscope test. It is claimed that this port which does one-third of the Dominion's entire business, should be considered important enough to warrant the Government appointing a resident analyst, or examiner, so that no time be lost when entries are put through. Several instances were cited where suspected molasses were held for examination for weeks, and finally found all right and passed by Customs. The outcome and effect of the new order is awaited with interest by the trade. Canned goods are unchanged and very little doing. Canned poultry is high and prices are 50 per cent. higher than former years. These high prices must undoubtedly restrict the sale as consumers will not pay them. The coffee situation is unchanged, with the market firm. London advices to hand to-day show Santos 50 per cent. higher than last August, or actually 12s 6d. per cwt. Spices are firmly held, though trade locally is quiet. Some grinders and dealers have advanced their prices, and as holders in New York and London are stiff new stocks will undoubtedly have to be put out at an advance.

Foreign dried fruits are uninteresting from the brokers' point of view. The season's business is closed as far as they are concerned. First tide dates, ex ss. Evangeline, are at hand. Currants are unchanged, raisins also. In green fruits, lemons are lower again, 50c. per case since last report. Florida oranges advanced 50c. per box. Malaga grapes are scarce and high. California cauliflower, cucumbers lettuce and spinach arrived this week in time for Christmas trade. Apple shipments are lighter this week. Fish business is quiet in all lines. Cold weather now prevailing will tend to bring in orders more freely from country points. Tapioca is reported higher. Rice unchanged, thought an advance is looked for early in the new year. The vegetable trade is quiet.

There is now no doubt that stocks of eggs are very low and an actual famine is predicted after the holiday season. Strictly new laid eggs are commanding fancy prices. Prices throughout are very firmly held. The bean market seems at last to have found its level. It is now reported steady. There is nothing new in the evaporated apple situation. Owing to large supplies, prices on feed have been reduced 50c. There are very light offerings of rolled oats and an advance is now freely predicted.

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A fair amount of trade has been done lately. In molasses the Customs Department at Ottawa have issued the order found in another column. TEAS.

Business during the past week has been very quiet, little trading being done. The market in Ceylon greens keeps strong. One broker submitted an offer for 1,000 packages this week but the offer was not accepted, although only a fraction of a farthing under the sample. It is reported that the bounty offered by the Ceylon Government on green Ceylons will continue until 5,000,000 lbs. are prepared, when it will cease. Business in Japan teas is practically at a standstill on the moment. China and Ceylon blacks are unchanged. We quote:

Situation is unchanged from last week's report, market continues strong and indications still point to likely advances in the near future. Advices from London say strong market. Since last August Santos have advanced in that market 12s. 6d. per cwt. or exactly 50 per cent. RICE AND TAPIOCA.

Business quiet and no changes to report. "Never is much doing these days in these lines," said one jobber, "the consumer seems to use these goods in an even sort of demand, it's not like fruits, sugars or other staples where certain seasons of the year require an extra demand." Tapioca is reported higher. It is expected that rice prices will be advanced with the new year.

Green Fruits.

A quiet trade is being reported in green fruits this week. Lemons are a little lower again, having dropped about 50c. since last quotation. Malaga grapes are very scarce and are advanced 50c. to $1 per keg. Florida oranges advanced 50c. per box. California celery is selling at $5 per case of from 6 1-2 to 8 1-2 dozen. Tomatoes unchanged. Fish.

Trade during the week has been very quiet in all lines. The cold weather which seems to have come to stay will produce better orders from country points, and also improve the city business. Prices unchanged. We quote:

Vegetables.

The potato market is firm. Carlots of early rose sold at 63 to 64c., but 70 to 75c. appeared to be prices for 50 to 100 baglots. Onions steady at firm prices. Turnips, parsnips and carrots unchanged since last week. We quote:

Country Produce.

EGGS.

To our full report of the present situation in last week's issue there is nothing special to add. There is now no doubt whatever that the stocks held throughout the country are very light and a veritable famine is expected after the holiday season. For that reason prices are still very firm at the high level quoted in our last issue. For the best Montreal pickles the price is 21 to 22c. The cold storage fresh, known as market stock, is selling at 22 to 23c.; selects sell at 25 to 26c.; and strictly new laid eggs fetch the fancy prices of 35 to 45c.

BEANS.

The market is now more settled than at any previous time for the last three months. It is generally felt that prices have gone as low as they are likely to go and the opinion is freely expressed that the prices quoted below are likely to be maintained. We quote:

No. 1 hand-picked, carlots		1 75
Choice prime, per bushel	1 55	1 60
" carlots	1 45	1 50
Ordinary (off grade), per bush	1 35	1 40

HOPS.

The market is reported to us as quiet but steady at 30 to 31c. for choice goods, and 25 to 28c. for fair to good.

HONEY.

Prices as quoted in last issue remain unchanged. We quote:

Strained, white	0 09	0 10
Clover and basswood		0 08½
Buckwheat	0 07	0 08
Comb honey	0 13	0 13½

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

The market is only fairly active. Except for some Christmas trade in fancy boxes of sugar there has been little to note for some weeks past. Prices remain unchanged. We quote:

Maple syrup, in wood, per lb	0 05½	0 06
Maple syrup, in large tins	0 70	0 75
Pure sugar, per lb	0 07	0 07½
Pure Beauce sugar, per lb	0 08	0 09

EVAPORATED APPLES.

There are no new features to report. Prices as quoted below remain steady.

New, in carlots	0 05½	0 05½
New, in jobbing lots	0 06	0 06½

Flour and Feed.

FLOUR.

Trade is quiet at present as is generally the case at this season. Prices as quoted in last issue are unchanged.

Manitoba spring wheat patents	4 60	4 80
" strong bakers'	4 30	4 50
Winter wheat patents	4 25	4 35
Straight rollers	3 80	3 90
Extra	3 60	3 70
Straight rollers, bags	1 85	1 90
Extra, in bags	1 70	1 75

FEED.

A slight reduction in prices will be noted in our quotations below. Supplies have been considerably in excess of the demand. We hear of a sale of 1,000 tons of bran for export which should have the effect of relieving the pressure here. We quote:

Ontario bran, in bulk	16 00	16 50
" shorts	18 50	19 00
Manitoba bran, in bags		17 00
" shorts	18 50	19 00
Mouillie	23 00	28 00

ROLLED OATS.

The market continues firm owing to small offerings. The situation to-day confirms what was said last week as to the likelihood of an advance. We quote:

Rolled oats, in bbls	3 75	3 80
" " in bags	1 75	1 80

BARLEY.

Pot and pearl barley are hard to obtain. We quote:

Pot barley		1 85
Pearl "		2 85

Baled Hay.

Receipts are reported light as farmers are holding out for higher prices. The export trade is of very limited proportions. We quote:

No. 1 timothy	10 00	11 00
No. 2 timothy, choice	9 00	9 50
No. 2 timothy, ordinary	8 50	8 75
Clover, and clover mixed	7 00	8 00

Ashes.

The market continues steady at unchanged prices. We quote:

First pots, per cwt	5 95	6 00
Seconds		5 55
Pearls, per 100 lb	7 00	7 25

Hides.

Stocks are accumulating rapidly owing to large receipts from country points. Prices are as follows:

No. 1 beef hides	0 08½	0 09
No. 2 "	0 07½	0 08
No. 3 "	0 06½	0 07

THE WIDE FIELD OF THE GROCER.

THE circulation of THE GROCER is rapidly increasing, not alone in this Dominion, but also in foreign countries. Indeed there is scarcely a country of any commercial importance to which THE GROCER is not a visitor. We have frequently pointed this out, not merely as a matter of curious interest, but as one of importance to our advertisers.

Advertisers who are seeking connections with foreign countries are beginning to appreciate this fact, and not a few of them have shown us enquiries and orders received from foreign lands as a result of advertisements in THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Among the latest enquiries from abroad as a result of GROCER advertisements is one received by The "Force" Food Co. from Mulchanddas T. Shroff, Bros. & Co., of Bombay, India, reproduced herewith. Mr. A. N. Reay, manager of the sales department for Canada of The "Force" Food Co., was delighted at the receipt of this enquiry, and says that the Indian merchants shall have all the buttons, price lists and samples they can use. He is more than ever convinced of the wide field and effectiveness of THE GROCER as an advertising medium.

POINTERS FOR THE NEW YEAR.

The way to have a call for a thing is to supply it. A customer went into a little shop in an Ontario town recently and asked for a favorite comestible. "We don't keep it," said the man. "How's that?" he was asked. "There ain't no call for it," he replied. The customer stepped across the street to another shop. This grocer had the article called for. "Just put it in," he explained. "Think I can work up a right smart trade for it." The first man has since shut up shop.

Have a specialty. Pay particular attention to your preserved fruits, or let your one grade of tea be the best for the money. Tell folks about these things, talk about them continually, get other folks talking, too. What if you do lose a little profit on them? You will be repaid amply in the end. People who come in for the specialty will soon come in for other things.

Always send your customers good flour, good butter, good tea, etc., as workingmen's wives usually do a fair lot of gossiping and have a cup of tea with one another sometimes, and talk of the merits of their particular grocer and butcher. Wrap everything neat and clean, and pack in clean baskets or boxes; have your horse well groomed, your harness bright, and, above all, make your delivery man keep himself clean. Nine times out of ten it is safer to give credit to the poorly-clad person than to the overdressed swell.

If you cater for the workingman get a good, showy handbill and send it around the district you intend working, stating you will call on a certain day.

Do not rest satisfied in the belief that you control the trade and that it is sure to remain with you without effort.

KINNEAR-NASMITH.

A very pretty wedding occurred Wednesday, December 16, last, at the residence of the bride's parents, 207 Bloor street east, Toronto, when Miss Margaret Greenless Nasmith, daughter of Mr. J. D. Nasmith, was united in marriage with Mr. Thomas Herbert Kinnear, son of Mr. Thomas Kinnear, Toronto. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. B. Hyde, assisted by Rev. Thos. Eakin. The trade throughout Ontario will join in wishing the young people a long and happy married life.

May your Christmas be Happy and your
New Year Prosperous.

RECIPROCITY WITH JAMAICA.

IN a recent number of "The Grocer" there was published a communication from a resident of Kingston, Jamaica, arguing the expediency of a reciprocity agreement between his island and our Dominion. The matter is one that is being discussed very earnestly in Jamaica, the more especially in view of the United States-Cuban Treaty, now about to be ratified.

The attitude of the Jamaicans is indicated in the following special article, which appeared in The Kingston (Jamaica) Gleaner, of November 23:

"Truth has many sides, and to get a really correct view of any subject, it is generally necessary to view it from more than one standpoint. The subject of reciprocity in trade between Jamaica and Canada is essentially a subject of this kind. We have to consider the matter in its commercial aspect. Will reciprocity benefit the trade of Jamaica? We have to consider how it will affect our relations with the United States, now the largest buyer of bananas, our principal product. We have to consider the matter from the Imperial standpoint. Will reciprocity assist in that federation of the Empire so greatly desired by patriotic Britons? Again we have to consider how the revenue of this island will be affected.

"From the patriotic standpoint, there can only be one answer to the question. The British Empire is now merely a conglomeration of scattered countries, and these countries, instead of being helpful to each other, are often, especially in commercial matters, antagonistic. They treat each other like foreign nations. Thus we in Jamaica levy the same duty on flour grown under the British flag, as we do on that grown under the protection of foreign nations. Canada levies exactly the same duty on Jamaica cigars as she does on cigars imported from the foreign island of Cuba. Disunion is weakness; union is strength, and there can be no doubt that the strength of the British Empire will be immensely increased if each part seeks not merely its own prosperity, but the prosperity of the whole Empire, remembering that the different parts of the Empire are 'members one of another.' From the Imperial standpoint, therefore, it is distinctly advisable that the tariff walls between Canada and Jamaica should be broken down as far as is practicable.

THE UNITED STATES.

"But there is the question of our commercial relations with the United States to be considered. The United States are at present admitting our bananas free of duty. They are doing this, not out of any feeling of kindness to Jamaica, but because they want our bananas, and because they have so far been unable to grow bananas in any quantity in their own possessions. The United States tariff is essentially a protective tariff. They usually admit duty free the products they wish to import which they cannot themselves produce, and tax heavily importations of goods which they wish to produce in their own dominions. Thus Jamaica oranges are taxed to afford protection to Californian and Florida oranges, and sugar is taxed to afford protection to the Louisiana sugar interests. The tariff policy of the United States is not founded on justice or fair play, but is founded on national selfishness or patriotism, which ever we choose to call it. Thus England has for many years been admitting the most important products of the United States free of duty, while the United States in return has been levying prohibitive duties on the most important products of England. The prosperity of the United States has therefore been largely built up at the expense of England. They have, in fact, as they term it, been making money out of the stupid Britishers. Now, whatever may be said from an ethical standpoint about the tariff policy of the United States, nobody can deny that their leading politicians have displayed a remarkable degree of astuteness and political insight. It is reasonable to suppose that they will deal with further problems which arise in the same manner, and follow the policy which will best serve the interests of the United States. We have then to consider whether it will be to the interest of the United States to retaliate on the products of Jamaica if we arrange reciprocity with Canada.

NO RETALIATION.

"For the United States to retaliate would be obviously unjust. It is not generally good policy to do a thing which is obviously unjust unless there is great gain to be gained thereby. A good name is a political and commercial asset, and the astute politicians of the United States know this. They are now negotiating a treaty with Cuba which will be distinctly detrimental to the interests of Jamaica. Among other things they will give a preference to Cuban sugar and oranges. The result will be that the market of the United States will be practically closed to our sugar, and this will be a most serious thing to our planters, as hitherto the bulk of our Jamaica sugar has been sold in the United States. Our orange trade will also suffer through the increased competition of Cuba. Now the obvious counter-move for Jamaica to the treaty between the United States and Cuba, is to make a similar treaty or arrangement with Canada, thus compensating ourself in the Canadian market for what we lose in the market of the United States. On no principal of justice could the United States object to our doing this.

A FURTHER REASON.

"A further reason why it would not be expedient for the United States to retaliate against Jamaica is found in the present political condition of England. If the preferential policy of Mr. Chamberlain is endorsed by the British electorate, a staggering blow will be dealt to the agricultural industry of the United States. It would be extremely foolish for the United States to retaliate against Jamaica if we arranged reciprocity with Canada, as to do so would simply be to place a winning card in Mr. Chamberlain's hand, of which he would not fail to make political use, as he has already done of the proposed Cuban treaty. A tax on Jamaican bananas in the United States would of course tend to raise the price of bananas there, and this would not be appreciated by the American consumer. Further, it must be remembered that American capital is very largely invested in the banana trade in Jamaica, and it is not likely that the American Government would like to flog their own citizens in order to spite this island. Taking these different matters into consideration, it is evident that the American Government will not retaliate on Jamaica bananas if we arrange for reciprocity with Canada unless the American politicians are fools, which hitherto they have not shown themselves to be.

"There can be absolutely no doubt that a reduction of tariffs between Canada and Jamaica would be beneficial commercially to both countries. It is an axiom which needs no proof that high tariffs hinder an interchange of commodities. A reduction of tariff rates would inevitably mean that we should buy more from Canada, and that Canada would buy more from us. All our industries affected by the reduction of Canadian tariff rates would be benefitted. For instance, a substantial reduction of Canadian duty on Jamaica cigars would mean that in a short time the cigar output of this island would be at least doubled.

INCREASED ACTIVITY.

"A reduction of duties means an initial loss of revenue. An increase of revenue from other sources would, however, be received as a result of increased commercial activity. Thus if the cigar trade of the island were doubled, the result would be that double the amount of money would be earned by cigar workers, and the amount paid to the Government in direct and indirect taxes would be correspondingly increased. It is obviously much better to raise revenue by increased trade than to do so by restricting trade. Considerations of revenue should therefore on no account be allowed to prevent an arrangement which would promote the general prosperity of the country.

"A definite proposal is now before the governments of the two countries. It has been put there by that ill-used and overtaxed industry, the cigar trade. At present the cigar industry of Jamaica, groaning beneath the excessive taxation, is struggling to live. Given reasonable encouragement, it is capable of being developed into one of the most important assets of Jamaica. The cigars which can be manufactured here are among the best in the world. Men of ability and intelligence, with abundant capital behind them are engaged in the business. It remains to be seen whether our Government is going to 'take the current while it serves' and initiate reciprocity with Canada by securing preferential treatment for our Jamaica cigars and cigarettes."

Commenting on the matter editorially, The Gleaner, of the same date, says:

"As will be seen from another column an effort is now being made by a gentleman in Kingston to secure a preference for Jamaica cigars in the Canadian market. Everyone who is interested in the progress of this colony—in the development of its minor industries—must joint us in the hope that his laudable efforts will be crowned with success. Canada, as all the readers of The Daily Telegraph are aware, generously gave a preference to British West Indian sugars some time ago ; and we see no reason why the great and wealthy Dominion should not display a similar spirit of generosity in its treatment of British West Indian cigars. True, as Sir Daniel Morris pointed out at the Institute the other day, the preference granted to our sugars has conferred very little (if any) benefit on the planters in this part of the Empire—all the benefit, he seemed to think, has gone to the Canadian refiners. Still that is one of the little accidents that will happen in the best regulated families ; and we are strongly of opinion that if the Canadian Government could, by any means, be induced to give preferential treatment to the Jamaica cigars that are sent to the Dominion, our local manufacturers and tobacco growers would find that such preference was a real, substantial and direct benefit to them. This being so, we hope that the Jamaica Government will do everything in its power to back up and support the representations which are now being made to the authorities of the Dominion by the energetic manager of the Montpelier Cigar Factory. As we have often pointed out, the future prosperity of this island will depend on the multiplicity of its exportable products ; and on the principle that, 'every mickle maks a muckle,' we sincerely hope that the result of the efforts of the gentleman in question will be to give a healthy impetus to the tobacco industry of Jamaica."

TWO MILLION DOLLAR CELERY CROP.

THE fame of Kalamazoo, Mich., as a producer of celery has spread all over the length and breadth of this country, and the celery growers of that city have found a market for their product in hundreds of places unknown to the average citizen.

The Interstate Grocer, of St. Louis, Mo., in a recent issue, says :

Kalamazoo has become known all over the world as a celery producer. It is the peculiarity of the soil that has enabled the locality to distance all competitors. It is a muck to which there seems to be no bottom that produces such vast quantities of this popular and delicious vegetable. The acreage now exceeds 5,000. It is claimed that the Kalamazoo River formerly overran the district.

Thousands of acres have been reclaimed from the swamps and made to produce from $500 to $800 an acre. The soil is of a saline character, and in places it reaches a depth of from 10 to 12 feet. It is free from some of the forms of iron oxides, so that the plant grows clean and white. Iron in the soil causes the plant to rust and renders it valueless.

Celery seed is planted in a hothouse the same as cabbage. As soon as frost is out of the ground the plants are transplanted. The fields have been prepared with stable fertilizers and are cultivated the same as for corn. Animals used in cultivating must be provided with a set of shoes to keep them from sinking in the soft soil. The shoes are made of thick boards 10 inches square, and are clamped to the horse's hoofs. The plants are cared for about the same as a row of cabbages. After they have grown to a fair size, dirt is thrown up to make the plants stiff and stalky and to bleach them. In some instances the row is boarded, a plank a foot wide being set upon edge on each side. Celery may be bleached, when covered to the leaves with dirt, in 14 days.

Some growers raise three crops of celery in a single season. The second crop is planted from four to five weeks after the first, between the rows of the first crop. Then when the first crop is taken out of the ground it is immediately prepared for the last, or the third crop, which is allowed to stay in the field until freezing sets in.

Celery keeps a number of important plants going in Kalamazoo, where it is canned, put up in glass jars, making celery pickles, celery mustard and salt.

Ninety per cent. of the celery raisers are Hollanders, and a large per cent. of the celery raised is produced inside the city limits of Kalamazoo. Ground rental runs from $5 to $75 an acre. The renter gets from 1,500 to 2,500 dozen stalks per acre, and they bring from 16 to 18c. per dozen. A crop at the larger figure, reckoning 2,500 dozen, would make an acre produce $450.

Thousands of bunches of celery are sold by boys to passengers on the railroad trains as they pass through the city. A single commission firm will sell as many as 25 tons in a season, and in a week this season the output will run as high as 250,000 bunches. It is estimated that within a short time the annual crop of this product will be worth $2,000,000.

APPOINTED MONTREAL AGENTS.

A. H. Brittain & Co., Board of Trade building, Montreal, have been appointed agents for Montreal and district for Black Bros. & Co., the Halifax fish house, and will see that the trade is supplied with "Halifax," "Acadia" and "Bluenose" codfish. Buyers, by reference to Brittain & Co., will be supplied with full particulars, prices, etc., for anything in the fish line.

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Dec. 21, 1903.

THE Christmas trade is over for both the wholesale and retail trade. Dealers seem well satisfied, but, as usual, they have some fault to find. This time it is that there has been no snow. This affected the retailer, as many near-by country buyers did not get into the city. One of our large wholesale men remarked this week, "How odd it is that in some lines there seems to be only the Christmas demand. One would think certain things were not eaten at all at other times." Peels were particularly mentioned. Figs are another line, of which this is largely true. In general market, prices show little change, in fact, now and for a few weeks, trade from the wholesalers' standpoint, has been very light. Already they are getting in shape for stock-taking.

Oil.

This is the time of harvest. The very firm prices in burning oil continue. Already there is some future business being done in lubricatings. The market is very firm. Linseeds are weak, and for this reason orders so far booked are small. Turpentine, on the other hand, is too high for any special movement. Fish oils are much higher than usual on this market.

Salt.

There continues to be free arrivals of Liverpool coarse salt weekly. Quite a full supply is held, and large quantities have been shipped to outside points. Prices are quite firm. There is quite an advantage to the buyer to get supplies ex-steamer, as the price is at least the storing charges lower. In box salt, the fact that Canadian packers have been unable to ship forward supplies, has caused an increased demand for the English fine salt which is packed here.

Green Fruit.

The Christmas sale has been quite large. Valencia oranges have been affected by the cheapness and good quality of Jamaicas. Quite a few Floridas are sold ; prices are high and stock does not stand up. California oranges are in light stock here ; quality is not good. Lemons are low. Cape Cod cranberries while good are high. Bananas are only seen in a retail way. Apples move freely ; the quality is particularly good. Prices are well maintained. Auction sales this year were smaller than usual. This was the more noticed as receipts were large.

Dried Fruit.

In this line the Christmas sale is the time of active demand for the whole year. Some lines, as peels, and, perhaps, figs, have little sale at other times. Sales this season have been very large in nearly every line. Prices have been low and quality good. Particularly has this been the case in nuts. In prunes, low prices are quoted. In fact, our trade are selling small sizes lower than the situation warrants. Evaporated apples seem rather lower. Onions are firm ; the season is rather late. Peanuts have advanced and the outlook is firm. In raisins full stocks are held.

Canned Goods.

There is little of interest in canned goods. Corn and tomatoes stocks held are light ; full prices are asked. There seems a fair stock of fruits held. In salmon, the stock is quite ample. Cohoes chiefly are held. Springs are in light supply. There is little call for sockeyes. In domestic fish, clams are scarce. This is a line showing an increasing demand. Price has been low for this class of goods. All lines of domestic fish are firm.

Sugar.

There has been a fair sale. The market is somewhat dull, so there is nothing to encourage business except actual consumptive demand.

Molasses.

There is very little stock held except Porto Rico. December is never a month of large business. Prices are held firm. There is considerable comment in regard to the new customs regulations. Importers see no advantage to be gained. In fact, while it is in the interest of parties buying West India goods direct as against those buying New Orleans or any molasses from American points, it does not change the situation except being a purely vexatious order, compelling a larger deposit in one case than in the other, as entries have always been made subject to test. The writer knows of hundreds of packages of New Orleans imported here, with not a case of the molasses failing the test. As it is now the actual duty is accepted in the case of West India goods imported direct, while an unjust suspicion is placed on all molasses coming from other points—a most unfair proceeding—compelling the importer to deposit a sum six times as great as the duty, a refund to be made if the test is satisfactory.

Fish.

Receipts of fresh fish are light. In dry fish there is little demand. Prices are quite firm. The same is true of pickled and smoked herring. In smelt, on the North Shore a large business is being done.

Flour, Feed and Meal.

Business is light. Values in flour are quite firm. Feed has little sale. Oats and oatmeal are if anything rather easier. Beans are firm. The trade here take nearly all handpicked in barrels. Pot barley and split peas are firm and a light stock. A new cereal is meeting with a good reception here. The name is particularly attractive. It is "Orange Meat."

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Dec. 19, 1903.

IN grocery lines the trade is distinctly of a Christmas character, and all houses are very busy. Beyond an advance in canned chicken and turkey and a decline of 5c. in canned brawn, prices are pretty much what they were last week. There is not likely to be much change until after the change of the year.

In spite of some misgivings the bulk of stocks reached the city in time for the trade, which began much earlier than usual, and has been exceptionally heavy. The supplies of dried fruit have been liberal and of the best; indeed, there is little or no demand for anything else in Winnipeg or the West generally.

Green Fruit.

The fruit men are still worrying over the question of compensation for their frozen apples, and it is understood that suit is being brought against the railway company. The decision of Chief Justice Meredith in the case of the St. Mary's Creamery against the G.T.R. is considered to have a direct bearing on the case, and there is not a doubt that it has helped to encourage the men in the West.

Meantime there is an excellent trade doing in fruits, especially in the city, and all lines are in demand. Snow apples and Washington and British Columbia pears are out of the market, but bananas are being brought in by express for Christmas. Japanese oranges are offering for the Christmas trade. Natural holly is having a tremendous sale, as, indeed, are Christmas decorations of all kinds.

The Christmas market, which is always one of the sights of Winnipeg, is not yet completely decorated, but will be finished by Monday. The decorating has been somewhat delayed by the painting and cleaning that have rendered the market a much more sightly spot than it has been for some time.

Poultry.

The supply is by no means as lavish as usual, for the simple reason that it could not be got. Ontario turkeys are jobbing at 17 to 19c., and ducks and geese 12 to 13c. The demand is very heavy, and it looks now as if some homes at least would have to fall back on "the roast beef of Old England," instead of turkey and cranberry sauce. This would be no great hardship in Winnipeg judging from the beeves that are just being placed in the market. It is always amusing to take Old Country people to see the Christmas market. They have the preconceived idea that in England and England only can beef be produced. While it is freely admitted by people who have been all over the world that for its size the Winnipeg market makes one of the finest displays of carcasses that can be seen anywhere.

Fish.

A good supply of fresh Atlantic fish has been received for the Christmas trade. In cured fish, haddies have dropped with the arrival of freight shipments, and are now quoted at 9c.; this also applies to British Columbia halibut and white fish.

Cured Meats.

Cured meats are in good demand and without change for the week.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 19, 1903.

FROM the grocers of the West at the edge of the Dominion to the grocers of the East there should be Christmas greeting at this season. There is no doubt the fraternal feeling exists, if either party had the time to stop and think of it. Here the trade is busy with Christmas selling, and the hope is genuine, that the brethren of the provisioning craft in the eastern portion of Canade are also having their share of the good times which the warming of Christmas brings to the heartstrings and purse-strings of the people.

With balmy Springlike weather on the coast, very little rain, and the fogs which have been prevailing for two weeks past all dissipated, the time-honored Christmas weather such as it is known in the east is absent. Up-country, in the higher altitudes of the Kootenays, the Okanagan and other interior districts, there is snow of course, and even a certain degree of cold weather, but all round the climate here is unique in Canada, quite British Columbian, and one must leave the description at that.

To those who, in the east, have come to look for the association of Christmas with the Winter scenes, the Winter pastimes and the Winter occupations necessitated by cold weather, snow and frost, the transition to the sort of mild weather, with all the features of what used to be called a "green Christmas" is rather upsetting to settled ideas on what is appropriate for Christmas. But withall the Christmas season is a merry one here, the lack of snow and frost never seems to be noted. The small people, born and raised here know no diffrence between a Santa Claus in a mackintosh and one in furs. One thing which British Columbia has in perfection is suitable material for Christmas trees.

So, from the West to the East, Merry Christmas.

The most interesting feature of the Christmas trade at the present moment is the position of the poultry market. Nearly all the Christmas poultry, certainly all the turkeys, and most of the geese consumed, are shipped into the Province. The heaviest importations are of course from Ontario. Already there have been several carloads received, and all in excellent condition. The prices have not been soaring so high as was at first expected.

That is due to two reasons. Sales were made early in the season on a very close margin, and these orders, so far as known are being filled on the basis sold. Then the usual keen competition, which is the cause of many foolish moves on the part of otherwise shrewd business men, has caused sales to be made at fine prices even now. This is partly because the holders of stocks are somewhat nervous when they see pretty liberal supplies coming forward. A great deal is on order, but there will be a surplus to carry the market along, and this will be put into cold storage.

Present indications are that there will be ample for all demands of the holiday trade and a very fair amount for future consumption. The prices now being quoted to the retail trade by the produce men bringing stocks in are on a basis of 16c. per lb. for turkeys, with ducks and geese about 2c. lower. The prices now maintained in the east would warrant higher prices here but the market is apparently fixed on the lower basis.

It is a rather peculiar situation, that while the poultry jobbers here are quoting close prices for fresh frozen stock of all kinds, the wholesale grocers are paying 75c. per dozen more for tinned poultry from the eastern packers. That this is not altogether due to the new combine, is clearly seen from the advertisements appearing in "The Grocer" from leading eastern canners offering the very highest prices and urgently asking for stocks of poultry for their canneries.

Last year wholesale grocers ordered their supplies of canned turkey, chicken and other poultry on open prices, taking their chances of the market. They paid $2, and taking that as a basis, making due allowance for any changes caused by the new conditions, they figured that they might have to pay $2.25, but they were informed by circular received a few days ago that the price for turkey, chicken, and duck would be $2.75. Further it was stated that owing to the shortage in supply, the canners could not guarantee to fill more than 10 to 15 per cent. of orders, and these would be filled pro rata on orders placed.

Other canned stocks, as vegetables, have settled down, stocks being forward, and every one now being aware of what they are going to get. It is fair to say that nearly every dealer was pretty well supplied. It was found that some canneries did not fill on corn, while they might fill beans in full. On the other hand, canners who had not beans enough to fill orders in full were able to get in a larger percentage of corn. Tomatoes of course were short, as is expected every time now.

In the fruit market there are no new features. California oranges are extremely cheap. The selling price in San Francisco makes them about $3 to $3.50 on fancy navels. Few are moving even at the prices, for the market is so congested with an overload of the little Japs that nothing else is moving. There are so many Japanese oranges on the market that there will be heavy losses. The demand cannot possibly absorb them in time to prevent loss from decay. In fact some shipments have gone bad already. One warehouse at one of the wharves is filled with a big lot, composed of various consignments to firms here, and these lots have been lying there three weeks now. As the Japs are nearly all on consignment, the shippers will be losers. It is likely there will be a slaughtering of prices before long.

Grapes are now out, as the only stock is some Malagas, and the orders will not be repeated this season. Prices here have been very low, selling at 25c. retail. Local apples are fairly plentiful yet, but getting cleaned up.

In dairy produce, the receipts of butter are almost confined to dairy stocks from Manitoba and the Northwest Territories. There is not a big supply of first-class dairy. One car arrived this week for a local wholesale firm. Prices can be quoted at 20c. for first-class dairy, 15 to 18c. for the rest, and 23 1-2 to 25c. for good creamery, with below 23c. for held creamery. There is no creamery coming forward now as Manitoba is paying as much for creamery as this market is in a retail way. The supply of local made creamery is down very small. The price has again been put up to 30c.

Limed eastern eggs are quoted on about a 24c. basis here. Fresh or cold storage at 2 to 2 1-2c. higher. They are scarce and not many coming forward except at firm figures.

MONTREAL WHOLESALE GROCERS

THE annual meeting of the Wholesale Grocers' Section of the Montreal Board of Trade was held on Friday afternoon last, December 18th. Mr. Albert Hebert, of Hudon, Hebert & Cie, the president, occupied the chair. After the routine business had been concluded the election of officers for the ensuing year was proceeded with, resulting in the following gentlemen being selected:

President.—L. E. Geoffrion, of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie.

Vice-President.—J. E. Quintal, of N. Quintal & Fils.

Treasurer.—Alen Orsali, of Hudon & Orsali.

Directors.—H. A. Archambault, of A. Robitaille & Cie; S. J. Carter, of Carter, Galbraith & Co.; L. O. Demers, of Demers, Fletcher & Cie.

Mr. Albert Hebert who had occupied the president's chair for two years, was unanimously chosen as the association's nominee for election to the council of the Montreal Board of Trade, and his election to the council will add to that body a man of large business experience, an energetic and untiring wide-awake business man. A vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Hebert by the association for the unflagging interest and the valuable services he had rendered it during the two past years. Mr. Hebert was disinclined to allow his name to be put forward as the association's nominee, but at the solicitation of the members he finally consented, and the members expressed gratification at his acceptance. The "Canadian Grocer" expresses the hope that such an important branch of the trade of Montreal as the grocery, will be duly recognized by the members of the Board of Trade and Mr. Hebert selected as its representative.

The newly elected president, Mr. L. E. Geoffrion, is the managing member of the firm of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., and will, as he modestly put it, endeavor to serve the association to the utmost of his ability, and as he is recognized among his confreres in the trade as a man endowed with a keen grasp of commercial affairs, the work of the association will undoubtedly receive his best consideration and efforts.

SOME QUEER TEAS.

TEA is a term which has had some curious applications, says London Grocery. A great variety of beverages and decoctions made from herbs and plants quite unknown in China or India have been called "teas," in imitation of the genuine article, and have been drunk from various motives. In early tea-drinking days, when fragrant Bohea was sold for from twelve to twenty shillings and more a pound, poor folk, who could not afford such a luxury, endeavored to content themselves with decoctions from less expensive leaves. A great favorite of old was sage tea, which was regarded not only as a pleasant but a particularly wholesome drink. John Wesley, who was a determined opponent of the Chinese leaf, strongly recommended sage as well as mint and penny-royal, as an excellent substitute, while another enemy of the cup that cheers ventured to prophesy about the middle of the eighteenth century, that the pernicious foreign leaves would quickly become cheaper, wherein he was right, and that tea would then go out of fashion and be replaced by sage, wherein he was hopelessly wrong. At the time when this person wrote, an ordinary breakfast among the poor folk was bread and butter with sage tea; but the cheapening of the real tea simply drove such substitutes as sage out of use.

Another once popular beverage was ginger tea. Coleridge had a weakness for this decoction, and when writing to his wife strongly recommended it for his little son, Hartley. He thought that the boy would like it very well, because it was pleasant with sugar, and said that it would make him grow. Little Hartley's opinion of the preparation has not been preserved. His father declared that a teaspoonful piled up of ginger would make a potful of tea that would last the child for two days—allowing for the cup being always half-filled with milk. He was evidently anxious that the ginger should not be too hot in little Hartley's mouth. Coleridge himself was accustomed to take ginger mixed in his morning coffee, and a cup of ginger tea in the afternoon. Beverages known as "teas" were also made from cowslips and other flowers and herbs, including camomile, wild thyme, marjoram, balm, and calamint. The names of these old-fashioned herbs are as fragrant as their leaves and blossoms, but the uninitiated would probably need to serve an apprenticeship before they could appreciate the "teas" made from them.

In revolutionary days in America various verbal substitutes for tea were used from patriotic motives. After the Boston mob had thrown the cargoes of the three East India tea ships into the harbor, and the colonists had taken a vow to buy no tea which had to pay the obnoxious duty, their wives and daughters—"daughters of liberty" they called themselves—devoted their ingenuity to devising fragrant beverages to take the place of the boycotted leaf from the far East; and some strange decoctions were made and perhaps enjoyed. The stalwart New Englanders drank "tea" made from the leaves of rib wort, strawberry plants, and currant bushes, sage, thoroughwort, and other herbs. So-called "Liberty Tea" was made from the four-leaved loosestrife, while "Hyperion Tea," says Mrs. Earle—an invaluable chronicler of colonial life and habits—was from "raspberry leaves, and was said by good patriots to be 'very delicate and excellent.'" The beverage may have been so when tasted by patriotic palates, but we can feel pretty certain that many a colonial dame thought of Hyson.

GREEN FRUITS

British Columbia Fruit.

THE shipments of apples from the Okanagan district of B. C., which is locally described as "The Garden of British Columbia," have been so large this year that increased attention has been drawn to this profitable form of agriculture, and a local paper observes that "in a few districts of British Columbia is the progress of the past few years more remarkable than in Kelowna district, and its increased wealth and growth is most happily of such a sort as to guarantee richer and richer returns as the years go by. Many settlers have shown that the dry belt was one of the best favored apple growing regions of Canada, but it has been reserved to the Okanagan district to carry matters beyond the experimental stage, and establish aboriculture as one of the safest and most remunerative industries of the Province.

"Little by little the industry has grown until little colonies are now being established with their sole hope based on fruits and garden and field products. The latest of these is Summerland, on the site of old Barclay ranch, well down towards Penticton. Here good progress has been already made, but the progress of the little settlement may be seen in the demand for next Spring's planting, which will be of over 60,000 fruit trees.

"Peachland has already got its 17,000 fruit trees out, and hopes to treble that number within twelve months. Building operations are busy in both towns. Shops and stores have been started, and works of permanenence appear on all sides.

"At the present time, however, Kelowna is the largest shipping point on Okanagan lake. Hogs and cattle are still the products of the valley, but it is with potatoes and vegetables and apples and pears that the lake steamer is loaded down each trip to her full capacity. Then four and five carloads a day have gone out almost regularly for the past month, and the great stream of produce promises to flow on from this point for at least another month more. The old cattle ranches have been well sub-divided, and the work is still going on.

"Earlier in the season plums, strawberries, and all sorts of small fruits occupied the settlers' attention, but now the Winter apples have the call. Magnificent Spy, Snow, Baldwin, Ben Davis, and others of the hardier sort are seen on all sides. All through the day team follows team with their 50-box loads to the landing. Large and high colored, the eye is captured first by one sort and then by some other variety. Ben Davis is in greatest number; not perhaps the finest variety, as its flavor is inferior to that of the Spy, but it will keep until May, and is a most prolific bearer.

"A walk out of town soon brings one amongst the orchards. But with few exceptions none are over eight years old, but at six years they begin fruiting, and tree after tree is seen with its ten to twenty boxes of the finest fruit. One small orchard of twelve acres is netting its owner so much as $4,000 for this year's crop. And while the cost of production is not great, almost all of it is local distribution. The local sawmill has all that it can do in keeping up with its orders for boxes. All the available labor of the district is pressed into the picking and boxing of the fruit. On all sides, too, young and younger orchards are to be seen. Scarce a plantation exists but it has its additions. Yearly planting seems the recognized order of the day. Up and down the lake every bench where water may be brought has its little checkerboard of planting, whilst amongst the young trees are seen strawberries, currants, and all sorts of small fruits.

"Tomatoes have been tried this year with marked success, and thus another addition is made to the shipments of the valley.

"Of the recent settlers it should be said that most of them are men of means, and what is of more importance, men of energy and enterprise, in whose hands the future of the industry may be safely trusted."

Among the Fruit Men.

WHITE & CO., whoesale fruit and produce dealers, Colborne street, Toronto, are one of those fortunate Canadian firms which have forgotten their small beginnings and are now enjoying a season of unexampled prosperity.

Their business was founded about ten years ago by F. J. White and his father. Three years later the elder member of the firm died, and his son continued the business which has grown by leaps and bounds until during the past year it reached the splendid proportions of a million dollar turn over. The arrivals for 1903 have consisted of 500 carloads of fruit, etc., besides local part-car shipments. Never a day passes but a car of fruit arrives in Toronto for White & Co. from some distant point or other.

Among other interesting features of an up-to-date plant are White & Co.'s cold storage rooms having a capacity of 25,000 cubic feet with separate compartments for fruit and produce, the whole fitted out with the ammonia freezing system. White & Co. conduct auction sales regularly, two a week in Summer, for the disposal of foreign fruit. They are also the sole agents in Toronto for the California Fruit Distributors who handle yearly on an average 25,000 carloads of deciduous California fruit, such as peaches, grapes, etc. In addition they are one of the two Toronto agents for the banana trust which has such a big corner on the banana trade.

White & Co.'s importations consist largely of oranges, lemons and bananas. During the season of 1903 they have handled 165 cars of bananas, while no less than 6,200 boxes of lemons have been contracted for by them. Pineapples, fancy California fruits and vegetables, fancy nuts and grape-fruit also figure largely in their importatoins.

The past four years have witnessed an evolution in the fruit trade. There is at present a large demand for specials, such as the tangerine, a small, thin-skinned orange, with delicate flavor. Mexican oranges have practically cut out the Valencias on account of their good color, sweetness and cheapness. Canadians are being educated to use grape-fruit; a year or two ago it was a novelty; at the present time White & Co. are receiving regular shipments of grape-fruit in carloads. This Winter the novelties are cucumbers, imported from the South, Florida tomatoes and Okra, a vegetable used for making soups.

Oranges come from Florida, Mexico, Spain, Italy and California. So far the arrivals have been mostly of north California fruit. Southern fruit which is considered the best on the market is just arriving. Among the latter is a thin-skinned, sweet-flavored orange, known as the Bronco Brand, which is said to be exceptionally fine this year.

Fruit Men Sue Railway.

Wholesale fruit men, of Winnipeg, who had 7,000 barrels of apples frozen en route over the Canadian Pacific Railway, are entering action against the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the recovery of $15,000. The fruit men have confidence in winning the suit, because of a recent decision of Chief Justice Meredith, that by the Railway Act, the railway companies are precluded from contracting themselves out of liability. The frozen apples were sold in large lots at forty cents a barrel. The Canadian Northern Company had small shipments frozen, and are settling with the claimants.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

WHEN the excitement of Christmas is over and great demand for specialties has eased off, the merchant must not allow his vigilance in selecting good window trims to slacken. It is the store that maintains a good tone and a high standard that profits at the special seasons and obtains more than its share of business in the duller weeks. Groceries are necessary all the year round, and, if there is not such a run on fancy confections and table delicacies immediately after Christmas as there was before, it simply means that more will be bought in other lines. The grocer must never be asleep; his business is an all-the-year-round affair.

New Year's is a more festive season now than it was ten years ago, and there will be maintained all this next week a steady sale of high-class goods that call for continued special windows and interior decorations. Push these better-grade goods when the holiday season is on. It is better to sell them now, even at a slight reduction, than to keep them and to be forced to give them away some time hence. At any rate do not let the style of your windows drop off abruptly after the holiday is past. Show the public that you are not a one-season man, but a merchant who is after their business all the year round, and is willing to exert himself to capture it.

The evergreen as a decoration for window and interior is always an attraction. An ordinary arrangement with some accompanying strings of evergreen, or a few boughs, is made of great value.

A Jelly Window—Shown by G. A. Cook & Co., Halifax, N.S.

One grocery store has a holiday window, the background and roof of which were made entirely of evergreen strings. For this purpose the strings ran from the bottom back corner to the top, and were left loose enough to be caught back in the centre by strings attached to the ceiling at the back of the window.

This Week's Illustration.

The "Kkovah" window shown was arranged for G. A. Cook & Co., Halifax, N.S. The remarkable feature of the arrangement is the symmetry observed throughout, the square, uniform-sized packages, easily allowing for this. A pleasing variety is given by the use of advertising cards, and a practical demonstration of the merits of the jellies. The different sizes of packages admit of considerable variety in the display. The arrangement shown is very neat, and would no doubt be much looked at for a few days, but such excessively symmetrical windows must be changed in a very few days, or they lose all their value. "Stiffness" has to be fought against, and variety is hard to obtain. A very good point observed here is the making of the advertisement of the goods shown serve as part of the exhibit.

THE WORLD'S SUGAR, BEET AND CANE.

UNITED STATES Consul Walter Schumann, of Mainz, Germany, transmits the following estimated beet-sugar production of Europe, as compiled by the International Association for Sugar Statistics :

Country.	Plants in operation. Number.	Production. 1903-4. Metrictons.	1902-3 Metrictons.
Germany	384	1,803,160	1,750,670

WORLD'S SUGAR PRODUCTION AND CONSUMPTION.

A pamphlet recently published by Sir Neville Lubbock gives the following statistics of the world's production and consumption of Sugar. beet and cane :

Country.	Production. 1901-2. Tons.	1902-3. Tons.
Europe (beet) except Russia.	5,722,000	4,390,000
Russia (beet)	1,099,000	1,215,000
British colonies	545,500	513,000
Egypt	96,000	90,000
India	3,000,000	3,000,000
United States, Cuba, Porto Rico, Manila and Hawaii	1,804,500	1,920,000
Peru, Argentine Republic, Dominican Republic, Mexico and Brazil	738,500	582,500
Java	767,000	842,500
French colonies	110,000	104,000
Total	13,882,500	12,657,000

CONSUMPTION.

Of the foregoing India and Russia will consume their own product ; the United States will consume its own product and that of Cuba, Porto Rico, Manila, and Hawaii ; Europe will consume 2,656,000 tons and 2,750,000 tons of its own beet-sugar production for the years given. This leaves available for the United Kingdom and other Countries the following amounts :

Product of—	1901-2. Tons.	1902-3. Tons.
Europe (beet)	3,066,000	1,640,000
British colonies	545,500	513,000

Grain Shipments From Various Points.

A COMPARISON of the grain shipments from the various Atlantic and Gulf ports is interesting at this time, as showing the various changes which are gradually coming over the shipping trade of the Continent, says Montreal Gazette.

For the year 1903 up to November 28, the records show that New York takes first place as a shipper of grain, while New Orleans is second, Montreal third, Baltimore fourth and Galveston fifth, with Boston dropped back to seventh place and behind Philadelphia.

New Orleans as a centre from which grain is shipped in large quantities is now very much to the fore, whereas, only a few years ago it was hardly considered in the trade. Boston has in the same length of time dropped behind in proportion almost as great as New Orleans increase.

This increase in the trade of New Orleans is looked upon as a natural consequence of its being at the foot of navigation of the great American waterways, much in the same way as Montreal is situated in Canada. In fact as regards its trade there is much that is similar between the two ports.

From 1898 to 1900 Philadelphia was third among the grain shippers of the Continent and now has dropped into sixth place.

The figures giving the total from the first of last year to November 28, for all the ports on the Gulf and Atlantic, are as follows:

	Wheat.	Corn.	Oats.	Total.
New York	14,676,113	21,232,330	2,681,743	38 510,186
New Orleans	11,258,878	13,823 494	30 601	25,112,973
Montreal	16,282 286	7,209 982	1,155 734	24 648 002
Baltimore	2 904,328	18 659,820	161,858	21,725 806
Galveston	17 245 398	4,224,316	250	21,469 964
Philadelphia	3,185 548	9,962.187	400	13,148 130
Boston	6 034,378	6,881.814	147,902	13 064 094
Portland	7,792.794	1,660,155	1 890,200	11,343.149
St. John, N.B.	3,771 317	34,312	724,711	4,530,340
Newport News	374,448	3,416,661	.....	3,791 109
Quebec	498,326	411 866	.....	910,192
Norfolk	26,319	832 861	.....	859,180
Mobile	.....	166 784	9,715	176,499
Pensacola	85,288	.....	.....	85 288
Total	84,065,216	88,516,582	6,803,117	179,84,9123

From the above it will be noted that Montreal led all ports in the matter of wheat shipments, being one and one-half millions ahead of New York. The amount of American corn which came this way, however, was not nearly so large in proportion, Galveston being the only United States port which shipped more wheat than corn, while Montreal on the other hand shipped in exactly the reverse proportion.

The shipments of grain from the port of Montreal for the past half dozen years is as follows:

	Bushels.
1897	25 812,000
1898	39,575,000
1899	27 000 000
1900	24,000,000
1901	23 343,000
1902	22,157,000
1903	24,648,000

Northwest Grain Growers.

THE Northwest grain-growers' convention at Regina before adjournment adopted these resolutions:—

"That in the opinion of the association no system of transportation can be considered adequate for the requirements of the west that fails to give such facilities at every individual shipping point as will enable the shippers to deliver less than 50 per cent. of the crop at such point in each year at the great lakes before the close of navigation.

"That while recognizing the railway development in the west, both actual and prospective, during the past year, the convention desires again to draw attention to the total incapacity of the existing railways to properly handle western traffic, and to the necessity of compelling said railways to better equip their lines with rolling stock. To this end the association instructs the Executive to take prompt steps to put the whole matter before the railway commission so soon as such body is constituted and organized."

A resolution expressing sympathy with Mr. Chamberlain in his preferential campaign was also adopted, also one urging that the reinspection of Manitoba wheat east of Fort William, as provided in the present general inspection act, be abolished.

Flour Mill in Far North.

INSTRUCTIONS have been given from the office of the Hudson's Bay Company at Winnipeg for the building of a flour mill near the mouth of the Peace River, where its waters unite with those of Lake Athabasca. Hudson's Bay Company posts have been raising a little wheat for some years not only in this region, but also further north at Fort Resolution, on the shores of Great Slave Lake.

It is not unusual nowadays to hear of wheat raising in the far north, especially in Siberia. A few weeks ago N. L. Skalosubof, addressing an agricultural convention at St. Petersburg, cited many facts to disprove the popular idea that wheat will not ripen north of 60 degrees north latitude.

A clergyman at Wugansk, for example, in 61 degrees north latitude, is building a mill propelled by wind power to turn his Spring wheat into flour. At Masau, on the Pelym River in the same latitude, a farmer has extended his area under tillage and now has a surplus of wheat to sell. The speaker mentioned many other examples.

The fact that wheat is now grown successfully in the Peace River region, in the central part of this continent between 60 and 62 degrees north latitude, is chiefly due to the Chinook winds, the warm, dry winds which blow northward to the east of the Canadian Rockies. They temper the climate of the Peace River country in a remarkable manner, so that the Spring opens as early on the upper Peace River in latitude 56 degrees as at Montreal, and the seeding time is actually earlier.

The influence of these remarkable winds is felt as far east as Regina, in Assiniboia, and extends far to the northwest, east of the mountains, through 15 degrees of latitude.

WHOLESALE GROCERS AND TEA IMPORTERS,

Guelph, Ont.

Many thousands of square miles along the Peace River Valley in Athabasca are very fertile, growing luxurious grass and excellent wheat. But no settlers as yet are found in that far northern region, and the only purpose of the Hudson's Bay Company is to turn the local wheat into flour for its agents scattered through that region and thus save the high cost of importing flour.

Even if that country should be developed, its wheat is more likely to go to feed the mining camps in the mountains than to join the stream of Canadian wheat flowing to Great Britain. Alberta, further south, is raising much wheat, but not a bushel of it is crossing the Atlantic because wheat being cheap and heavy, cannot pay high freight rates. Alberta wheat cannot now be moved to the East at a profit. It all goes to feed the local population and the neighboring mining camps on the West.

Want Grain Standards.

AT a meeting of the Grain Section of the Toronto Board of Trade last week a resolution was passed favoring a return to the old method of the inspection of grain. In a recent amendment to the grain inspection act the striking of grain standards for the guidance of inspectors was abolished. The grain standards were formerly struck by a board of grain dealers and the grain men claimed that since this method was abandoned it is impossible for a miller to determine the grade of the grain he buys and that he is therefore not willing to go beyond a safe price, so that in the end the farmer loses.

The resolution, which was moved by Mr. C. B. Watts and seconded by D. Plews and which was adopted, set forth these facts and also the recommendation that the annual making of Government standards of grain should be continued. The resolution also contained the following clause:

That Messrs. W. D. Matthews, Thos. Flynn (L. Coffee & Co.), J. L. Spink, C. W. Band (Carruthers & Co.), J. Carrick, Wellington Hay, Listowel; Thomas Martin, Mount Forest; H. N. Baird and S. McNairn, the mover and seconder, be a committee to act in conjunction with Messrs. A. Campbell, M.P., Toronto Junction; Wm. Ross, M.P., Port Perry, to have the act amended as requested by this resolution and to carefully revise the whole inspection act, and secure such further amendments thereto as may be found advisable. Mr. J. G. McKeggie presided at the meeting.

Tobacco in Sumatra.

THAT the growing of tobacco on the island of Sumatra is of comparatively recent origin is proven by the recent death of the founder of the industry at the age of 84.

Mr. P. J. Janssen, who was a citizen of Holland, although he was born in Hanover, Germany, was the original founder of the Deli Maatschappij, the oldest and most famous of the tobacco growing corporations of Sumatra.

The company was founded on November 1, 1869, with Mr. Janssen as general manager. At that time it was not suspected that the industry of growing tobacco in Sumatra would assume such large proportions, nor that the tobacco would become such a necessary adjunct to modern cigar making. The original corporation was capitalized at only $120,000. After 25 years of business the capital had increased to $1,500,000, on which the average yearly divident was 63 per cent.

Mr. Janssen was a man of great modesty and simplicity of character. Among his friends he was reported to have a peculiar charm of personality. Much of his great fortune was given to charitable purposes, and his death is sincerely regretted by those who knew him.

National Preferences.

IT is a peculiar fact that no two countries import the same sorts of tobacco. The French Regie, or Government, Tobacco Department, takes several different kinds of tobacco from the United States, their total yearly import being about thirty-five million pounds. But two things they insist upon-that the stem shall be free from mold and the leaf loose enough to open freely.

Piebald or cherry-red leaves are the German favorites, says Stray Stories. The German tobacco manufacturers like a heavy, gummy leaf, and they prepare this by treating it with what are termed in the trade "sweet sauces." This makes the leaf black. Most of the leaf the Germans buy comes from Kentucky and Tennessee. Quantities of "spangled" tobacco are also imported into Germany. This is a pretty yellow leaf, with red spangles. Much of this spangled tobacco is imported into Bremen, where it is repacked in lighter casks and sent on to Russia, Italy, Austria and Spain all possess Government monopolies of tobacco, but in each case their requisitions are quite different. Italy likes a very long leaf, as much as 26 inches in length, of delicate fibre and dark-brown in color. It must be elastic and strong. Italy uses a large quantity of very coarse Hungarian tobacco.

Austria also manufactures much of the cheap Hungarian leaf, but her choicer brands and cigars are made of very good American tobacco. This is of firm texture and beautifully glossy. Spain, not being one of the richest of countries, purchases cheap tobacco. A nondescript leaf of light type is largely bought, and is not cut, but powdered. It burns very quickly and is hot to the tongue. Black, fat and heavy tobaccos suit the Dutchman; but the Netherlands buy a certain amount of what is known as "Dutch Saucer," a fine cigar wrapper of a silky type, which is used for making Dutch cigars. Going further north there are Denmark, Norway and Sweden, all with very similar tastes. Heavy tobaccos, cured by fire, are their favorites; and these leaves, before being manufactured, are dipped in sweet mixtures of licorice and sugar.

Montenegro's Tobacco Monopoly.

It is officially announced that the Government of Montenegro has leased its tobacco monopoly to a Venetian company, which has been formed with a capital of 1,500,000 francs ($289,000). Besides furthering the production, manufacture and export of Montenegrin tobacco and tobacco products, this company will reorganize the monopoly, building a factory, with head office in Montenegro's chief city—Podgoricza—and establishing stores in Niksicz and at the port of Antivari.

Prospects for Cuban Crop.

THE growing Cuban tobacco crop presents a most favorable condition, according to El Tabaco de Cuba. The Vuelta Abajo and Partido fields are beautiful, although a little rain is needed. The crops will, in all likelihood, be abundant.

From Santa Clara, Camajuani, Remedios, Cumanayagua and other places in Vuelta Arriba the same report is sent.

The seed plots having been watered during the month of September and the first half of October, under the most favorable conditions, the growth, favored by a mild temperature, has been going on to such an unprecedented extent as to excite the wonder of the people, within whose recollection there never was a season so abundant in well conditioned young plants. Not a single farmer has been obliged to buy for planting.

There are seed beds from which a few thousand plants could be withdrawn; but inasmuch as they all have a superabundance, and there is no demand from other zones, they will probably be wasted, it being impossible to plant the whole number grown.

Mr. Mortimer B. Davis.

THE GROCER presents to its readers in this issue a plate portrait of Mr. Mortimer B. Davis, president of the American and Empire Tobacco companies.

Once the owner of the firm of D. Richie & Co., he has become, by his ability and knowledge of business, the president of the two firms above mentioned.

A short biographical article written by one very conversant with the tobacco question thus summarizes Mr. Davis' position in the tobacco world:—"Mr. Mortimer B. Davis is one of the dominant forces in the tobacco industry of Canada. A young man of 37, powerful of build, a born fighter, cool, daring, and brooking no opposition, he has within the past six years made himself the new factor in the tobacco trade of Canada. Controlling, as he does, 80 per cent. of the cigarette consumption, and over 60 per cent. of the Canada tobacco consumption, he is one of the ruling powers in this industry."

A recently published article, the heading of which was "An Important Industry," quoted The American Tobacco Co. as one of the most progressive firms in Canada, and continued as follows:—"The secret of this rapidly acquired prosperity is to be found in the enterprising spirit, the activity and business knowledge of its president, Mr. Mortimer B. Davis. He is a man of good judgment, in whom are combined these two qualities, so seldom

It is said that Mr. Mortimer B. Davis is a millionaire.

R. McWhinnie is taking T. Wyndham's ground in Western Ontario for The American and Empire Tobacco Companies.

Cuba has been experiencing very cold weather recently, and to-day the residents of Placetas, in the Province of Santa Clara, and the other inhabitants of that neighborhood, were astonished to see a snow storm. It is reported that the fields are covered with snow, presenting a most novel sight to the Cubans.

According to the English correspondent of The Tobacco Leaf, there is a tobacconist in Great Britain who smokes his own cigars to the last half-inch, chews the stumps, and uses the ashes as snuff. He is now thinking of giving up the weed, as he cannot think of any way to utilize the smoke.

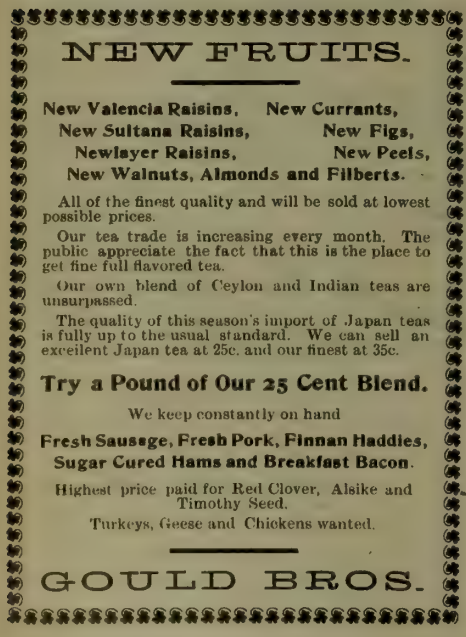
DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
John C. Kirkwood,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Kirkwood specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

THE accompanying advertisement serves very nicely for my talk on advertising this week. It is not all good, not all bad, and it illustrates a very common style of advertising seen in weekly newspapers.

This advertisement as it appeared originally was three columns wide and nine and a half inches deep, and was set up with an attractive border. A clean-looking, neatly displayed advertisement, it could not do otherwise than attract attention. It isn't a wordy advertisement, it will be noticed, and there is no jumble of type of different sizes and faces. It is distinctly pleasing and refreshing, so far



NEW FRUITS.

New Valencia Raisins, New Currants,
New Sultana Raisins, New Figs,
Newlayer Raisins, New Peels,
New Walnuts, Almonds and Filberts.

All of the finest quality and will be sold at lowest possible prices.

Our tea trade is increasing every month. The public appreciate the fact that this is the place to get fine full flavored tea.

Our own blend of Ceylon and Indian teas are unsurpassed.

The quality of this season's import of Japan teas is fully up to the usual standard. We can sell an exceilent Japan tea at 25c. and our finest at 35c.

Try a Pound of Our 25 Cent Blend.

We keep constantly on hand

Highest price paid for Red Clover, Alsike and Timothy Seed.

GOULD BROS.

as appearance is concerned, and sure to be read,—in part, at least. It fulfils the first condition of good advertising, namely, the securing of attention.

But it is disappointing when it begins to talk. Its weakness is in its matter. "New Fruits" is good. New fruits at this season of the year is a timely announcement to every mistress of a household. But the mere enumeration of the different varieties of fruits is not enough. The woman who is to buy fruit is very much interested in grades and prices. Nothing is told her in this advertisement concerning these points. Every other grocery store can duplicate the statement made by this advertiser, yet I venture to think that Gould Bros. are not ready to admit that all their competitors are selling fruit of equal quality or value. Good advertising consists in telling the points of superiority; in giving or suggesting a reason why the advertiser more than others should have the trade of his community in any particular line of goods. To state that these fruits are "All of the finest quality, and will be sold at the lowest possible prices" is too general to be convincing. Specific statements are what the reader wants and is asking for, and to withhold these is to make the advertisement ineffective.

The next paragraph relates to teas. The transition from fruits to teas is too abrupt, according to the setting up of the advertisement. The reader was not prepared in any way for a new subject to be introduced. There is a loss of impressiveness, of strength, by this rapid and unsuggested change of topic. The insertion of the words "Our Tea Department" in the same type as that used for the fruit list would have been natural; or perhaps, even a better and more symetrical display would be the large type used in "New Fruits."

Without being exhaustively critical of the talk on teas, I have to repeat what I have said about the fruit list, it is not specific; quite too general. It doesn't help the reader to make up her mind that she can get better tea from Gould Bros. than from any other grocer. It is just what she has heard a score of times from other firms.

"Try a pound of our 25c. Blend" is well displayed, but there is no reason given whatever, why this blend is to be preferred to any similarly priced tea. Yet I feel sure that there is a very strong conviction, backed up by several good reasons, for the advertisers' belief that their 25c. tea is well worth trying. By the way, I do not like the "Try" way of urging people to buy. "Try our bacon, our butter, our coffee, our raisins, etc.", is excessively commonplace. Why should anybody "try" any of these things? Give the reasons in addition to the appeal, by all means. Personally, I prefer such expressions as "Buy, or drink, or use, or serve —our 25c. Blend" to the "try" way of saying it, However, it is perhaps because of its being so common and consequently weak, that I object to the expression.

The rest of the advertisement is a sort of "I-have-paid-for-the-space-and-must-use-it" ending to the little talk on fruits and teas. When I began the reading of the advertisement, I thought I was to hear of Christmas fruits, but before I had done, I heard pretty much the grocer's whole story.

Let the foregoing suffice for destruction criticism. I shall endervor to rewrite the Fruit for Christmas.

Be particular to use good fruit. The result is your reward. Every pound of fruit we sell you is new stock, the best we can buy. As low-priced as good fruit can be.

Layer Valencia Raisins, 3 lbs. for 25c.
Choice Sultanas, 3 lb. for 25c.
Vostizza Currants, clean, large fruit, 3 lbs. for 25c.
Crosse & Blackwell's Lemon Peel - Peel not sugar 2 lbs. for 25c.; do. Citron, 1 lb. for 25c.

A Cup of Tea.

Full flavored, rich and sweet in the draw, delicious. Our experience protects us from inferior and unsatisfactory lines. Our teas are not chosen for us by tea houses. We choose for ourselves. Blend for ourselves. This is why our tea trade increases every month.

Our Own Blend, India and Ceylon, very fine liquor, rich flavored, 40c.
A remarkably good Japan, basket fired, full leaf, 25c.
Extra Choice Blend, a "talked-about-tea," 25c.

GOULD BROS.

advertisement according to my own ideas, suggestive of a more pointed, more forceful, more convincing trade announcement.

Of course neither Gould Bros. nor anybody else would rewrite this advertisement quite like the above. But I submit that the advertisement as rewritten will be more closely read and likely to sell more goods than the original. When one considers the hundreds of people who can be influenced to buy through the reading of advertisements, and all this at a comparatively small outlay of money, it becomes well worth while to write the advertise-

A VEGETARIAN TURKEY IN LONDON.

THE present has certainly been a poor year for the British poultry farmer, says London Daily News, judging from letters which continue to arrive, more particularly with regard to the rearing of turkeys. Indeed, so bad has been the season that we are promised a turkey famine at Yuletide owing to the great scarcity of birds both in England and in Canada. With the near approach of Christmas such a state of affairs would be calculated to distress those of us who are sufficiently old-fashioned to think that Christmas without turkey is equivalent to "Hamlet" minus the Prince, were it not for the fact that vegetarianism has come to the rescue and suggested "vegetarian turkey" in place of the genuine article. One is assured he would be unable to tell the difference. Fish, flesh, and fowl, it is said, may now be obtained undistinguishable from the real thing, and one restaurant not a hundred miles from Fleet street, London, has gone so far as to announce "A Specimen Christmas Dinner" on December 12.

It is devoutly to be hoped that the function will prove more successful than its predecessors, which the amateur vegetarian has not unusually left with a fixed determination to raid the nearest chop-house.

Of course you can't see if you close your eyes, nor can you hear if you plug up your ears.

That THE CANADIAN GROCER is a most valuable advertising medium for those who seek the trade of the grocers and general storekeepers of Canada is as plain as day—yet some folks can't see it.

Like the man who was looking all over the house for his glasses when they were on his forehead, there be some who are looking for more business among grocers yet can't see that the easiest and cheapest way to get it is through advertising in THE GROCER.

And as long as they won't listen to nor see the reasonableness of our arguments in favor of their advertising in THE GROCER, just so long are they going to be denied the business that GROCER subscribers are continually sending to GROCER advertisers.

MERCHANTS.

The Toledo Automatic Computing Scale SHOWS to EVERY CUSTOMER in LARGE INDICATIONS the EXACT WEIGHT they get. If you use a Cash Register you place it where the customer MUST SEE the INDICATIONS. This is for YOUR PROTECTION. Take OFF these INDICATIONS and you would consider the Register VALUELESS. The indications on a Toledo Scale PROTECT you from over and DOWN WEIGHT and IMPRESS your CUSTOMERS with YOUR HONEST PRINCIPLES. The CUSTOMER feels that he is PROTECTED when he buys goods over a TOLEDO SCALE, consequently it is a TRADE BRINGER. The customer values the GOODS he buys from you MORE THAN THE MONEY he hands you, otherwise he would not EXCHANGE the MONEY FOR the GOODS he gets. You are CAREFUL to count his CHANGE OUT CORRECTLY, and in plain view, why not use a Scale that COUNTS OUT the WEIGHT, it being to the customer of more VALUE than the MONEY he trades for the goods?

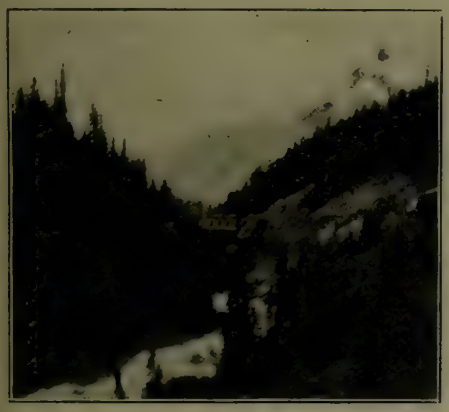
By W. L. E.

AMONG the good things that British Columbia provides for sportsman is pheasants — the real English pheasant. And they are abundant enough, in some parts at any rate, to assure good sportsmen good bags for their labor.



Kicking Horse River, near the First Safety Switch.

On the night of our arrival at Victoria a sportsman with a string of pheasants larger than one man could carry with comfort, registered at our hotel. And, as he was evidently a friend of "mine host," visions of pheasant for dinner loomed up before me. But dinner time came and went without pheasant appearing on the menu card. Pheasants in British Columbia, like rabbits in Australia, had their origin in the whim of an Englishman. At any rate that is according to the statement of an "old resident." The birds appear to thrive just as well as they do "at home;" and no doubt they provide just as good sport.

Another species of bird—not a game bird, however—which finds a congenial home in British Columbia, is the crow. But it is not the mere fact that there are crows in British Columbia that I desire to mention. It is the fact, as far at least as those in the vicinity of Vancouver are concerned, that they are different from any other crows I ever saw in a wild state. In Stanley Park they are as thick as sparrows on the streets of an eastern city. But they are as tame as chickens in a barn yard. They fly to the ground from the towering tree tops and strut around almost at one's feet, evidently without the least idea of fear. It reminded me of the big grey squirrels in Central Park, New York, which run up to one evidently expecting nuts or some other palatable food to be thrown to them. Crows, like squirrels, evidently become tame even when they have their freedom, provided they are not molested. And in British Columbia the law has so well protected the crow that the latter has learned that it can caw and strut about, none daring to do him harm.

When we reached British Columbia the salmon canning season was over and the canneries closed. We were thus denied the privilege of seeing this important industry in active operation. The season having been such an unsatisfactory one we naturally heard many complaints. According to chronological order the season of 1903 should have been a good one, and the canners made their plans in anticipation thereof. But instead of being a good season, it was a bad one. None were probably ever worse. "We prepared tins, etc., for packing 43,000 cases," remarked the head of one canning concern, the products of whose factories are well known in Eastern Canada and in Great Britain: "but 28,000 cases were all we were able to put up. And what was our experience was practically that of the other canners." In Victoria the sentiment is strongly in favor of trap fishing as a means of ensuring a larger catch of salmon. At present traps are prohibited, nets only being permitted. On the United States side of the gulf traps are employed. And while they catch their thousands the nets of the Canadian fishermen barely catch their hundreds. So far the agitation for traps has not induced the Department of Marine and Fisheries at Ottawa to grant the desired request. In Victoria they charge it to the jealousy of the canners on the Fraser river. But some of my friends in Vancouver pooh-poohed this idea. At any rate, whatever the cause, the powers that be have not yet given their consent to the use of traps in British Columbia.

A keener interest in the Chinese problem in British Columbia has naturally been awakened in us eastern Canadians after having been on the spot and caught a glimpse of things as they are. Please notice that I say "caught a glimpse;" for, under the circumstances, I cannot speak as one having authority. I can only speak as one who has gathered an impression during what was little more than a flying visit. I have never been able to take the extreme view in regard to the Chinese question. Aside altogether from the humanitarian point of view, I have felt that British Columbia could not get along very well without Chinese labor. "It is all very well for you to think so," declared a friend of mine, some time since, who had lived for several years in British Columbia, "but you should live among them as I have before you are qualified to express an opinion." My stay in British Columbia was not long enough to warrant my saying I have lived among the Chinese. But I have seen them; visited some of their stores, their theatres, and their Joss houses, and peeped into some of their haunts under the guidance of the police, and I must confess that while I am not yet converted to the views of the anti-Chinese extremist, I am much impressed with the gravity of the problem which is exciting so much interest in British Columbia. It is in Victoria that one is confronted with the problem in its most serious aspect, for it is there that John Chinaman is most in evidence. What is known as the Chinese quarter occupies quite an important section of the city. And what surprised me a great deal was the appearance of the buildings in that quarter. They were built of brick and were just as modern and respectable in appearance as the retail portion off the main streets of any city on this continent, and, in some instances, a great deal better. But—. And there comes the rub ! But they are not of our kith and kin. Their thoughts are not our thoughts, nor their ways our ways. The branch of the human family from which they spring is so different from the one from which we sprung, that there cannot possibly be an assimilation. They may become citizens, but they cannot become Canadians. And it is important that in this young country the immigrant should be the material from which Canadians in sentiment, as well as in name, can be developed. The conclusion of the whole matter with me, therefore, is that, whatever the necessities of the past may have been, the Chinese population of British Columbia should not receive further augmentation.

TORONTO GROCERS NOMINATE.

THE regular monthly meeting of the Toronto Retail Grocers' Association was held in St. George's Hall Monday night last with President David Bell in the chair.

The minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved, and Messrs. F. F. Higgins, Queen street east, and F. C. Armstrong, Shuter street, were proposed for membership.

Mr. Frank Johnston, on behalf of the committee appointed to interview the bakers and protest against the selling of bread to boarding-houses at wholesale rates, reported that they were courteously received and invited to visit their bakeries and see how things were being conducted. They regretted, however, that on account of an independent baker fighting the association, they were not able to meet the views of the grocers. The report elicited a full discussion. Some members contended that a bad precedent and example was set in giving consumers wholesale prices, while others were of the opinion that the bread problem was in much better position than formerly, and, that, as there was no prospect of accomplishing any result, they ought to let the matter rest.

The "At Home" Committee reported through the president that the 3rd of February was an open date suitable for the "occasion." On motion of Messrs. Bond and White the whole matter of the At-home with date and further arrangements was left to the Executive Committee.

Mr. Johnston gave notice that he would move at the next meeting that the constitution be amended to make the number necessary to constitute a quorum seven instead of eleven.

The decision of Magistrate Kingsford the other day to the effect that there was no legal standard for a bag of potatoes was brought to the attention of the association and was viewed with considerable astonishment. On motion of Messrs. Bond and Panter the president and vice-president were named a committee to look into the matter and report on the proper steps necessary to protect the interests of the grocers in the matter.

On motion of Messrs. Johnston and Bond it was resolved and the secretary instructed to have published in the city papers that the grocers would not give Christmas presents this year.

The proposed business tax came up for discussion, but the members found themselves lacking in information as to the vital points involved, and it was decided that the president should secure some one to address the association on the matter at the next meeting.

Notices of motion were given to amend the constitution so as to make the last meeting of the year nomination night and the first meeting of the subsequent year election night; also to institute a prize competition for the purpose of getting in new members.

Mr. Johnston remarked on the advisability of re-arranging the seating in the hall, and out of the discussion which followed, Messrs. Johnston and Panter were appointed a committee to look up new quarters.

On the card was the item, nomination of officers. According to the constitution as it at present stands, nominations and elections take place at the first meeting of the year. It was decided, however, to receive nominations and hold them open till the next meeting. The following names were placed before the association :

President—Frank W. Johnston.

Vice-President—H. Kelly, A. O. Robinson, C. F. Thorne, T. Clarke.

Secretary—Mr. Nettlefield.

Treasurer—Mr. Schoales, J. S. Bond, A. E. White, R. B. Snow, C. Coutts, D. Bell.

Executive Committee—H. Kelly, T. Clarke, B. Panter, VanLoan, C. F. Thorne, McArthur, R. H. Davies, David Clarke.

Trustees—A. E White, J. S. Bond, F. S. Roberts.

Delegate for Exhibition Board—J. S. Bond, B. Panter.

Inside Guard—R. H. Stewart.

Auditors—H. Kelly, Mr Thompson, D. Bell, B. Panter, Mr. Gibbins.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

To Make Provisions Pay.

HAVE the provision department well fitted and appointed, and a thoroughly competent staff, under the control of a competent manager, in charge, says New England Grocer. The window, counters and utensils should be kept scrupulously clean, and some palms and ferns tastefully arranged give an attractive appearance to the whole. The class of goods handled depends upon the locality, but always endeavor to maintain a reputation for quality and value. As goods well bought are half sold, knowledge, keenness and foresight must guide the buyer in his selections and purchases. Check the weight of all provisions upon delivery, examine tinned goods, and claim immediately for shortages or faults. Store all cheese in a dry, cool place, and turn over once a week. An airy place is best for bacon, but in Winter time it should be covered up to keep out the frost. Make the window display thoroughly attractive; bacon should be a prominent feature. Mark inferior cuts low to clear, while fresh prime cuts sell freely at profitable prices. Cut up and work out for cost a side of bacon occasionally to ascertain actual returns for same. An increasing and profitable trade can be done in butter by having a regular supply of finest quality. Work it up in rolls and prints under own brand. Poultry and game, eggs, cooked and potted meats, fancy cheese, etc., are profitable lines if disposed of while fresh. Take stock often, weigh closely, advertise conspicuously, personally supervise the whole, and the success of the provision department will be ensured.

Peterboro Provision Co.

A CHARTER has been granted under the Ontario Companies Act creating George Carton, Michael Carton, John W. Miller, Jos. H. McClellan, merchants; Jas. Middleton, farmer, and Wm. H. Jeffs, physician, all of the town of Peterboro, and W. M. Anderson, of the township of Otonabee, a corporation to carry on the business of a warehousing and cold storage company in all its branches, to establish and maintain abattoirs, wholesale and retail shops, and generally to carry on any business or undertaking that may be conveniently carried on with the above, and to acquire and take over the pork-packing business and goodwill appertaining thereto and all the plant and machinery thereof. The corporate name of the company to be The Peterboro Cold Storage and Provision Co., Limited. The share capital is to be $300,000 divided into 6,000 shares of $50 each. The head office of the company is to be the town of Peterboro, and the provisional directors the gentlemen mentioned above.

American Cheese in England.

The importations of American cheese continue to increase, writes James Boyle, United States consul at Liverpool, England. Canada has more than ever become the principal source of supply of cheese for the English market, and on the average the quality is considered better than that put up in the United States, and at present the price has been rather lower.

Armour Expects Higher Cattle.

Chas. W. Armour, vice-president of Armour & Co., was in Fort Worth, Tex., a few days ago to inspect the plant. He believes that livestock prices will react. Speaking of the livestock situation the other day, he said:

"I am looking for a reaction in the price of cattle at an early date. I believe that cattle are selling at as low a price now as they will sell for under present conditions. If we could get more hogs in Fort Worth, we could pay more for our cattle, for the reason we could turn the cattle over quicker. Nearly every order we receive for a carload of packing-house products calls for a great deal of hog products. If we had the hogs here, we could fill more orders from Fort Worth. While, of course, we would like to get hogs for 4c., or even cheaper, and sell them for as much as we could, still the law of supply and demand governs that price and we are governed by that law just like everybody else."

Want Canadian Cheese.

A despatch from London says the improved demand for Canadian cheese continues for good 48s. to 50s. Sellers are meeting buyers where cheese shows signs of heat, but holders are firm at 53s. to 54s. for finest quality. Butter, finest, 92s. to 94s.; good to fine, 84s. to 88s.; not much offered.

The Goat to the Front.

St. Louis is to have goat milk for the babies. A goat dairy company has been incorporated there for that purpose. The company has been incorporated with $12,000 capital with an expansive clause in its charter.

The corporation is to be located in St. Louis, and is to continue for 50 years. The business of the corporation is to be managed by a board of five directors. The physicians who are shareholders are to constitute an advisory board.

The start will be made with 900 goats. The livestock experts do not accuse the goat of being the habitation of diseases that kill mankind.

Fresh Eggs High.

There are practically no fresh eggs on the market, says The National Provisioner. The refrigerators are beginning to disgorge, and the storage stock is being marketed. Since the hens have ceased laying and the outstanding supply is virtually cleaned up, reputedly fresh eggs are selling in New York City, retail, at around 43c. per dozen.

London Provisions.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Provisions—There is very little change to note in cured meats, an average trade is being met and prices are maintained at about last week's level. Dressed hogs have reacted from last week's decline to $6.25-$6.50 for light weights, but whether or not this is permanent can not be told as yet. Beef is up 50 cents for choice and lamb is also somewhat stronger. Lard remains unchanged. We quote:

Butter—Receipts are more liberal than of late, especially of rolls and pound lots, and quality fair. The demand is fairly good for good stuff, but on the whole the market may be said to be dull. We quote:

Butter—The greater part of the trading is now confined to the October creamery as the late Fall butter now arriving is not of satisfactory quality. Of this there is not a great quantity of choice goods on the local market, and there is therefore every indication that prices will remain firm. A quantity of Western creamery was offered last week, but we learn this week that the exporters are operating and this means that supplies of Western creamery will be contracted for at least a month or six weeks to come. Nearly all the Eastern creameries have closed down for the season. There is very little dairy butter on the market, the trade being mostly confined to fresh rolls. We quote as follows: Fresh Winter made creameries, 21 to 22c.; finest October and November, 22c.; creamery prints, 22c. to 23c.; dairy rolls, 17c. to 17 1-2c.; dairy tubs, selected, 16 to 17c.; medium, 14 1-2 to 16c.

Cheese—English stocks are said to be diminishing under a good consumptive demand. The local market is quiet but some shipments are still going forward. Prices locally are unchanged. The mild, fresh make is selling at 11c. to 11 -12c.; Summer strong cheese, 12c. to 12 1-2c.

Trinidad Provisions.

GORDON, GRANT & CO., writing from Port of Spain, Trinidad, December 3rd, say of provisions: S. C. pork and lard continue to move downwards in sympathy with values in the United States. Loins, ribs, shoulders, tails, etc., of sound quality are saleable at fair prices. Beef is still plentiful with but a limited demand for all descriptions. The last French mail brought 300 firkins butter and should imports continue on this light scale, quotations, which remain unchanged at $12 for favorite brands, ought shortly to improve. Later on in the month there is likely to be a good demand for cheese and hams.

The Koran and the Pig.

Cable from London, England, says that the Sultan of Turkey recently instituted a reform which was not prompted by the Austro-Russian scheme. It carried dismay to the hearts of the beauty experts of Constantinople. Abdul Hamid, on learning that a great majority of cosmetics and pomades were mixed with pork and lard, immediately put the royal prohibition upon the sale of such impurity and invoked the command of the Koran bidding the faithful to abjure all things appertaining to the pig. The manufacturers of soap and other toilet articles were notified that only such as were exempt from all suspicion would be acceptable.

Small merchants trading with other countries are buying up all the existing stocks in Turkey at cheap prices.

INCREASING WAREHOUSE SPACE.

AN example of what energy, business ability and judicious advertising will do is seen in the case of The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers and tea importers, Guelph, Ontario. Three years ago Messrs. R. and J. H. Simpson thought they saw an opening in the thriving little city of Guelph for a wholesale grocery, and lost no time in getting in to the opening.

Since that time they have built up a very good connection in the fine district surrounding the Royal City, and this last year their turnover has shown a most satisfactory increase.

To meet this growth adjoining land was secured, and a new 45 x 60-foot addition with three storeys and a basement has been erected in the rear of the old warehouse. The new addition is of stone and brick, with convenient entrances at both sides and rear.

This additional room will give the house the room necessary to carrying out some plans under consideration for specializing in certain lines and increasing stock to meet the demands of growing trade.

A representative of "The Grocer," who, on a recent trip to Guelph was shown through the warehouses, found the hands busy arranging the stock in the new addition. The latter, when the final touches are added, will give The R. & J. H. Simpson Co. a stand admirably fitted for their requirements.

NOVA SCOTIA FISHING INDUSTRIES.

ONE of the largest industries of Nova Scotia is the fisheries, and it is an industry capable of great expansion, particularly if developed along modern and progressive lines. Fish are a fine diet, and once the public can be made to realize this, the more popular will they become. A great deal depends upon preparing these goods for market and drawing them to the attention of consumers. Efforts along these lines will probably do a great deal towards increasing the importance of Nova Scotia's fishing industry. It is a pleasure to note that a step in the right direction is being taken by Black Bros. & Co., Limited, of Halifax, who have fitted up a factory at La Have, N.S., and are now putting prepared codfish on the market under different brands—"Halifax," "Acadia," "Bluenose,"—which they are endeavoring to popularize. The goods are very attractively put up and lend themselves well to window display, being very attractive and inviting of appearance. No doubt the people of the West will take an interest in this article, not only because of its dietetic qualities, but because of the fact that it comes from the East. Storekeepers should find it a very desirable article to handle.

THE COFFEE SITUATION.

THOSE who have followed the coffee market during the past few months will have noticed a constant tendency to higher prices. There has been a very strong bullish feeling, particularly in the New York market, and though foreign speculators have been pessimistic in their views as regards the world's crop, the feeling is that the near future will convince them that they are on the wrong side of the market.

Canadian coffee roasters have been forced to make an advance, and though this advance has not been generally adopted, there is not the slightest doubt that coffee dealers and coffee roasters throughout the country will have to enhance their prices.

Henry Nordinger & Co. in their monthly circular succinctly gave expression to the statement that the present crop is less than is required for consumption, which should suffice not only to support present values speculatively, but also to infuse new life and confidence into the trade. Inland buyers have been successful of late years in their policy of abstention whenever sharp price advances took place, and they are, no doubt, now guided by those experiences, but the condition which prevailed then, of a production larger than consumption, is now reversed. A change of policy is therefore fully warranted. We have not only a smaller crop this year than is required by consumption but there are sufficient indications apparent to close observ?rs that the next crop will be smaller still. The September flowering left proportionately few buds on the trees; the November flowering, while more favorable, cannot altogether retrieve the loss already sustained, inasmuch as the trees are not in good shape, and if climatic conditions from now on should be in the least detrimental to the development of the fruit a condition may be created such as has not been witnessed by the trade in many years. We must not forget that prices are still low, nor should we be misled into comparing them with the abnormally low prices of a few months ago, which were brought about by unusual circumstances having no direct bearing on the merits or demerits of the position of the article. The trade in Europe seems indeed to be blinded by the low level then established and has fought the advance continually since; so much so, that important European speculators have sold on our market hundreds of thousands of bags for future delivery, which they will either have to buy back or ship over here when delivery time comes around. With all this abstention of the consuming trade, coupled with enormous short sales, our market has advanced about 2c. per pound, and firmly maintains this advance. Is it not natural to conclude that there must be a sound basis back of the buying movement here? This basis is nothing more nor less than the change from over-production to under-production, a change from a period of years of depression to a period of years of recuperation, a change from the seven lean years to the seven fat years for the trade and vice versa of crops. Inland jobbers have allowed their stocks to become reduced. The receipts at Rio and Santos have shown a pronounced falling off of late, in line with the expectations of those who believe that the crop will turn out to be not more than 11-11½ million bags. On the basis of the receipts for past fortnight and calculating on further reductions with the advance of the season we estimate the December receipts at 775,000 bags, against actual receipts of 930,000 same month last year and of 1,036,000 in 1901. Mild coffees—On account of recent reports of a virtual failure of the Java crop we cannot very well expect more than about 3½ million bags of all kinds, exclusive of Brazil's, for 1904-5, against about 4 million the current fiscal year, which is a very important reduction, taken in connection with the still greater decrease of the production in Brazil. The unrest in Colombia over the independent attitude of Panama, supported by the strong arm of the United States, may necessitate some decisive action on the part of our country, an action, perhaps, whereby shipments of coffee might be made impossible from one or more of the Central American States."

This strong report from such authority will no doubt have a tendency to firm up prices in all grades of coffee, and it may be expected that roasters and grinders will shortly advance.

CALGARY COMMISSION HOUSE.

MR. E. NICHOLSON, wholesale commission merchant, Winnipeg, as already announced in "The Grocer," will open a branch of his business in Calgary with the first of the year. Mr. Nicholson has rented for a term of years the warehouse now occupied by Codville & Co., wholesale grocers. He will carry on the spot all lines handled by wholesale grocers, and, in addition, wheat, oats, and flour sacks, twines and hessians, which will be a great convenience to the western trade. It is Mr. Nicholson's intention to sell only to Calgary and western jobbers; his business is purely commission, and his connections in Canada, United States, and foreign points are such as will enable him to sell at lowest prices to the western jobbing trade. Mr. Nicholson considers that Calgary has a great future before it, and has been assured by the Canadian Pacific railway company that it is their intention to build up Calgary as a jobbing point. The new traders' rates issued by the C.P.R. to points, north, east, south and west, bear this out, and is proof positive that it is their intention to make Calgary a large jobbing and distributing point.

Such a house as Mr. Nicholson contemplates opening will be welcomed by the trade in the Calgary district.

NATIONAL LICORICE CO.

Owing to the continued ill-health of Mr. F. P. Scudder, necessitating the relinquishment of his official duties, he resigned the presidency of The National Licorice Co., of New York, on December 8, retaining his membership on the board, the personnel of which remains unchanged. The officers elected on that date and members of the board are as follow:—Adolphe E. Smylie, president; Henry Rowley, vice-president; H. W. Petherbridge, secretary and treasurer; F. P. Scudder, Milton Hopkins.

PROVINCIAL WINTER FAIR AT GUELPH

Impressions Gathered From Inspection of Ontario's Fat Stock.

GUELPH is an agricultural city, and exults in the fact. It nestles under the sheltering wing of the Ontario Agricultural College at just sufficient distance to remove the dangers and temptations of a great city from the rural youths who throng the class-rooms and corridors of the farmers' college, and who can tell you to the fraction of a millegram the chemical composition of a Winter wheat soil, the proper proportions of a well balanced ration, or the "points" which tell in a bacon hog competition. The agricultural interests of the Province of Ontario centre in and revolve around the city of Guelph. It is fit and proper, therefore, that the Provincial Winter Fair and Fat Stock Show should be held in Guelph. The citizens of the Royal City recognize this fact and have taken the show into their bosom. A grey stone annex to the city hall, in the central city square, has been erected, and here, snug and warm, however the storms may rage without, are gathered each December the pick of Ontario's cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry. Here are judged the products of stall, pen, trough and run. Here the stock-raiser is pitted against his rival from perhaps the other end of the province, and his judgment and skill brought to the practical test of results. Here are set the standards for excellence in all lines of stock; the standards which the advance guard in the agricultural ranks are ever striving to improve upon and to which the rank and file are ever striving to attain.

GROWTH OF FAIR.

The show this year is said by old attendants to have excelled all previous years. It certainly excelled anything in the line ever seen by the representative of "The Grocer," who spent a very interesting and profitable day viewing the show from perhaps a little different standpoint than that of any other newspaper man present.

What is the influence of the show on our provision trade, local and export? is the question "The Grocer" young man kept before him. The answer to that question will be evolved in the course of this article.

You enter the show through a lobby which is devoted to all sorts of patent hay forks, cream separators, roller doors, etc., constituting a sort of purgatory through which the faithful must pass before reaching the Paradise of sleek, fat, well-groomed animals, where every prospect pleases and only man is lean. But, on second thought, this can hardly be said, for the sturdy yeomen did not appear to have stinted themselves any more than their cattle.

FAT CATTLE.

And what cattle they were! Near the entry a striking trio caught the eye: curly black fellows, low set, thick, square, blocky animals. They were Galloways, a splendid beef breed with coats that would do credit to a buffalo. All round one recognizes the red and white markings and the stocky well-covered frames of the shorthorns, thoroughbred and grade, the general purpose cattle par excellence, alike for beef or milk. Among so many fine specimens only distinguished merit marks an individual animal out from the ranks, and the judges must have had a difficult task in making their selections. A noticeable feature was the absence of the "monster ox." The cattle were not mountains of tallow, but smooth, well-covered animals, that immediately bring to one's mind the picture of a well-browned roast. Not quantity so much as quality first and quality after seemed to be the lines upon which the cattle men were working. The dairy breeds were also well represented, Ayrshires and Holsteins predominating.

THE BACON HOG.

The swine department was one of great interest to "The Grocer," as evidence of the progress the farmers are making in producing the proper raw material for our export bacon and provision trade. The hog has certainly been slandered. His reputation is unsavory, but without a doubt the hogs at the Winter Fair were unexceptionable. Clean, well-groomed fellows they were; well-built, long, wide across the back, and straight along the side. Indeed, it appears to be good form for an up-to-date hog to be built on the model of a daschund: the longer between fore and hind quarters the better. It was explained by an intelligent breeder that the bacon and hams were the most valuable portions of the hog. It was the aim therefore of the farmer to produce a hog with as much side and ham as possible. The shoulders were not so valuable, and so were of less importance, were it not for the fact that the general vitality of the animal required liberal development and consequent large girth around the heart and other vital organs.

The entries in the hog department were very large, red, black and white in color, but the bacon type, as above described, was approached to a greater or less degree in almost all the exhibits. The enormous, short-snouted, short-bodied, ridiculously fat hog that used to be common some years ago, was conspicuous by its absence.

A Glimpse at the Dressed Poultry.

SHEEP DEPARTMENT.

The sheep were stationed upstairs, and although the exhibit was not large, the animals shown were fine specimens. A few pens of rather thin sheep with ugly-looking drooping horns, drew considerable attention. "Dorset horns," replied a bystander to a question. "They have two crops of lambs a year." This seemed to be regarded as a very important feature, and with wool at its present low price the lamb crop has a relative high importance.

MONTREAL, P.Q.

FINE POULTRY.

The display of poultry was superb and away ahead of the exhibit at the Dominion Exhibition. The entries were larger and the birds were in the full glory of their Winter plumage. Plymouth Rocks filled a large section, and Leghorns and games magnificent birds—were there in full force. In the turkey class splendid birds were shown, and the geese and ducks were in no way behind. In fancy poultry there was a most creditable showing. Bantams, ridiculous reproductions in miniature of some of the larger breeds, were an interesting line; while foolish looking birds with huge chrysanthemum-like topknots, or with their feathers turned wrong-side out, were sights to attract the curious.

The judging of these various classes of live stock was in itself an education to the Ontario farmers, who crowded the show building from morning till night, but the educational feature of the show by no means end here.

THE BLOCK TEST.

The block test is the final test of a good animal, unless we follow it into the kitchen and dining-room. And to this test went the animals that were entered in the carcass contest. They were slaughtered right on the premises and hung up in the carcass-room.

In the bacon contest the sweepstake prize was won by Mr. J. E. Brethour, of Burford, for the best pen of three of any breed. The accompanying cuts show the prize-winners on the hoof and dressed. This is the sixth consecutive year that Mr. Brethour has carried off this prize. His entry was of a pure Yorkshire strain and were splendid specimens of the bacon type. They were fed on barley meal and weighed from 190 to 195 pounds on the hoof.

As showing the practical educational value of this part of the show it might be mentioned that the representative of "The Grocer" met Mr. Brethour, Professor Day, of the Agricultural College, and Mr. Gunn, of Gunn's, Limited, pork packers, Toronto, along with a number of other gentlemen, many of them farmers just in front of the prize winners. Here the requirements of the bacon hog were discussed from the side of the agriculturalist scientist, the practical farmer and the packer.

The interested auditors asked questions and the answers were illustrated by reference to the carcasses of the prize winners. Mr. Gunn in answer to the question whether he had found any considerable improvement in the type of hog produced by the Ontario farmer, replied that he certainly had. He was of the opinion that the show had done considerable to bring about this result.

Upstairs there was a similar exhibit of dressed poultry. It gave a capital object lesson on how to prepare poultry for the market, both as regards feeding and dressing. The photo published herewith will give an idea of what was on exhibition.

LECTURE FEATURES.

In one end of the building there had been fitted up a very respectable amphitheatre where daily throughout the course of the show, what might be called an agricultural college extension series of lectures was carried on. Here experts on various branches of stock-raising gave talks or carried on discussions on topics bearing on stock-raising. The Hon. John Dryden presided, and made an admirable chairman. Toying nonchalently with his gold-rimmed glasses, he was nevertheless keen to notice any uneasiness on the part of a member of the thickly-packed audience of farmers, and the doubting Thomas was encouraged to ask his question or state his objection. The discussions were anything but formal, and points were threshed out pretty thoroughly before the farmers allowed the speaker to escape them, and woe be to the lecturer who showed any hesitancy or betrayed lack of knowledge on his subject. There were keen auditors present who would like nothing better than to trip up a "professor."

IMPRESSIONS.

What is the impression left by the show? Rather what are the impressions? for they are many.

In the first place the impression that forces itself upon one is the keen and scientific interest the farmers are taking in the matter of stock-raising. No longer is farming merely a routine employment. It is a science. The farmer has learned the type of animal which is demanded by the market. He is studying the laws of nature and applying them to produce the type which he has set before him as the ideal. As a result farming has been lifted from the mere humdrum physical plane to that of an intellectual and scientific pursuit.

The result is seen in the farmers themselves. The hayseed type if it ever existed in Canada has gone out of vogue. The typical farmer at the Winter Fair was as well dressed and as well groomed as the city man. There were a no small number of fur-lined coats among the men, and the good wife in it might almost be said in the majority of cases was ensconced in a handsome astracan or Persian lamb jacket. The keen interest taken by the young men was a most encouraging sign in these days when we hear so much of the youth leaving the farm. They were there in force with note-book and pencil, with eyes and ears for everything, and at the lectures where their elders were inclined to combat new ideas, the younger fellows were making note of them in their note-books for later reference or consideration.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION.

A representative of one of the largest grocery manufacturing firms in Toronto, who recently returned from a trip to the Maritime Provinces, says that one can hardly realize the high estimation that "The Canadian Grocer" is held in by the trade in that section of Canada. He describes the reputation that this paper has with the grocery merchants as simply remarkable, and realizes that an introduction through the use of its advertising columns is sufficiently advantageous to be almost a necessity.

APPLES EXPORTED.

The following estimate of the apples exported from Atlantic ports for week and season ending Dec. 12 was prepared by Mr. Fred. Barker, apple exporter, Church street, Toronto:

Best for You.

There will be no half-way satisfaction when you sell Windsor Salt. "It is best for you and your customer, too." And we use the word "best" in its deepest meaning —best by test!

Pure, white, dry, crystaline. The Salt that doesn't cake because every particle of moisture is dried out. Sifted, not ground. "Best for you" because there is no half-way satisfaction in selling it.

THE GREAT CANADIAN FARMER.

CIVILIZATION is largely a process of increasing our wants. Every century, every decade, every year sees the transformation into necessities of luxuries and the discovery and use of luxuries before undreamed of. The laboring man of to-day demands and receives as the necessities of life what were regarded as luxuries even by those of royal blood a century or so ago. Progress is on every hand and never so evident as at the present day. The complaint is often made that we are living too fast. Whether the matter is just cause for complaint or no the fact remains. This fact must be recognized by the merchant who wishes to keep abreast of the times.

This is particularly applicable to our country merchants who cater to a large extent to the farming trade. It can not have escaped those of them who have been on the alert to note the signs of the times the higher standard of comfort that is being set by the farmers of Canada. The well-to-do farmer is now as well dressed, lives very often in a finer house, and sits down to a more bountiful table than his brother of the town and city.

In the account of the Provincial Winter Fair in another column, attention is drawn to the handsome furs worn by the agriculturist at the fair and the general smart and up-to-date appearance especially of the younger generation. The very best information from Western Canada is to the effect that there also the farmers want none but the best class of goods not alone for wear but for all uses.

The time when the country and the country town was the synonom for backwardness is passed and the country merchant who wishes to head off the best of his trade from the neighboring city has to keep in close touch with the very latest goods in all lines demanded by his customers.

In no department is this more applicable than in the matter of groceries. People are content to eat fat pork—when they can't afford anything more palatable, but with the accumulation of wealth consequent upon the clearing up of the country and the late good times with the farmers has developed more discriminating taste and now the merchant who caters to this custom is bound to get the best of the trade and keep it.

Say what we will the farmers are the backbone of this country. When they are prosperous the whole country is prosperous. The recent fat years have resulted directly in the prosperity we are now enjoying. The farmers as a rule have now plenty of ready money and are ready to spend it for first-class goods. It is the duty of the grocer to keep a finger on the agricultural pulse and be ready to anticipate every demand as it arises.

THE VALUE OF STAMPS.

THERE is a deal of value that we throw away every day because we do not recognize it or because we consider it too insignificant to deserve attention. For instance cancelled stamps are often of value that would astound one who has never interested himself in the pursuit of the stamp collector. The following clipping from a daily exchange shows what the little adhesive pictures are sometimes worth:

At a sale of rare stamps recently by Messrs Glendinning & Co., London, a New Brunswick 1s violet, with light cancellation, fetched £3 17s. 6d., and a Nova Scotia 1s., used, lightly penmarked, £4 7s. 6d.

What good are they? you ask. Simply they satisfy the acquisitive passion of some human being who has made the subject of his desire these interesting little bits of Government paper rather than the larger greenback variety of Government paper the majority of mankind prefer to accumulate.

But however that may be stamps have a value and sometimes a high value and for that reason the country merchant who has been in business any number of years may not be unlikely to have a not inconsiderable stock of valuable stamps still adhering to their original envelopes stored away in a barrel in the garret that have not seen the light of day for years. Perhaps unesteemed in a dark corner of the safe or stored away with legal documents in the strong box are stamps that would repay looking up.

The quest for stamps is in itself an interesting pastime and some disagreeable Winter afternoon when trade is dull time might be spent worse than looking over the old files and papers with an eagle eye for the elusive stamp.

It will do no harm to go over the old letters anyway. The writer recalls the case of a country merchant looking over some old letters and finding fifty dollars the returns for a consignment of butter which he had entered up replaced in the envelope and entirely forgotten.

It is not promised that a stocktaking of old letters will always yield a reward of fifty dollars, but the experiment is worth trying.

THE MERCHANT WHO LOSES TRADE.

BE adaptable as well as active if you would have your business active and profitable. The story was told the other day of a retail merchant who is discouraged and is thinking of selling out his business. Thirty years ago he established himself in a good business stand and opened an attractive store, or one that was then considered attractive. By dint of honesty and fair dealing he won the confidence of the public and built up a fair business. He is still honest, still industrious, and yet in the "growing time" he finds that trade is dull and his customers are leaving him one by one. He can not account for it himself and he is so thoroughly discouraged that he wants to quit. What is the matter?

Although the merchant may not see it himself the explanation is apparent even to the casual observer. The store was a good one thirty years ago, but the trouble is that it has done nothing more than mark time in the interval. It is just as good as it was thirty years ago, but it is no better. The business ideas and methods of thirty years ago are the only ideas and methods which the proprietor puts into practice now. The store has not kept up with the times.

Three decades have seen a revolution in store methods. Think of the multiplicity of devices for the display of goods which have been produced during the last few years. The up-to-date merchant knows that he can not afford to be without them, that they soon sell sufficient goods to pay for the initial cost, and that at all events if his business rival has them he must have them also. In the store in question the old-fashioned methods of display are still followed. That is to say, there is little or no display. The goods are hidden away in drawers, and there is little to suggest their presence. Many lines are nowhere in evidence and to find out whether the merchant has them in stock it is necessary to inquire. Few people will now take the trouble to do so.

In this store also can still be seen an example of the little old-fashioned windows with which stores were provided in the days before window dressing became an art, in the days before it was recognized that the character of a store is judged by the degree of excellence of its window displays. While his rivals have remodelled thir stores or built new ones, and have put in modern plate glass windows into which it is possible to enter conveniently from the rear the merchant in question has made no changes. The character of the window is such that it is almost impossible to dress it. It is a neck-breaking adventure to get into it and his window display has remained unchanged so long that as appearances go it might be the first display which he made 30 years ago.

In methods and standards of store lighting there has also been a revolution. The poorly-lighted store was nothing uncommon a few years ago, but times have changed and such a store would now repel customers. The modern progressive store is a blaze of light. In this respect also, the merchant in question failed to keep up with the times.

Did he advertise? He did, but his advertisements were changed less frequently even than his window displays. Moreover they were all of one style. "John Smith carries a full line of merchandise. Everything in stock from a needle to an anchor." The card was never changed, and its benefits must have been infinitesimal.

It is not necessary to give further illustrations. The lesson is self evident. If a merchant would make money he must not be afraid to spend it. The store that is always behind the times can not be expected to prosper. It may cost money to keep up with the times, but to fall behind spells stagnation and ruin. Parsimony in business is poor economy.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

THE giving of presents at Christmas is in the case of the grocer, a delicate matter. There are some customers to whom the grocer feels he would like to show his appreciation in this way, but at the same time he feels that he may possibly offend others by omitting a like attention. As to giving presents indiscriminately, that becomes a mere hold-up. There are some people so devoid of self-respect that they actually demand a Christmas present from the grocer and will wait till they get it, as they often do to get rid of them rather than from any good will.

"It has just come to this," remarked a grocer, the other day, "that, what with calendars, Christmas presents, and the extra help, and long hours required, the Christmas trade don't pay. There is nothing it it."

That there is considerable truth in this, is the greater pity. A Christmas gift which is not freely given by the donor with as much pleasure as it is received by the recipient is nothing more or less than "graft" in an odious form.

What is to be done about it? The Toronto Retail Grocers' Association passed a resolution and had it inserted in the city papers that they were not going to give presents this year. Of course there was no intention of carrying out this resolution. It could not be done, but it gave a lever for turning down insistent and impertinent beggars which the Toronto grocers thought would be not invaluable.

This by no means solves the problem and the man who can suggest an effective escape from this custom will place merchants generally under a lasting obligation. It is unreasonable and unjust that the grocer should work harder and longer when everybody else are enjoying the holiday season to the end that he should dissipate his profits in distributing presents to gentile beggars.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

A new line of fine English plum pudding is offered to the trade by The Greig Mfg. Co., Limited, Montreal. It is put up by The "Kkovah" Jellies Co., and packed in 1-lb. and 2-lb. self basins. This is the first shipment that has been imported into Canada, and is on a par with the high-grade goods sent out by the "Kkovah" people. They are well known in England and command a large sale in that country. Buyers should communicate with The Greig Mfg. Co., Limited, Montreal, sole agents for Canada.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, are quoting new California prunes at very attractive figures.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie, Montreal, have received into store a carload (620 cases) of Blanke's celebrated "Faust" brand high-grade coffees, whole or ground, in 1-lb. or 2-lb. tins. They have been appointed exclusive agents for the Dominion of Canada. Freight prepared on all orders of 96 lb. and over to any railway station from Halifax to Vancouver.

McWilliams & Everist have received this week a car of Southern California Rose brand oranges. The stock is fancy and well colored.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, have arriving this week a car of fine cohoe salmon, which at their quotation is particularly good value.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering special value in brooms, to retail at 25 and 30c.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal, offer a bargain this week in 1902 Canadian figs. Price is 50c. per tap. This price should clear them out rapidly.

The Eby, Blain Co. have a snap in skinless codfish in 100-lb. cases.

The Edwardsburg Starch Co. report very good business in small packages of syrup. They are pleased to state that they are in a position to fill all orders for both 25 and 38-lb. pails.

Buyers of Elemne figs should get quotations from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal, report arrival into store of 50 bales of Mayette Grenoble walnuts. The prices at which these are offered are interesting.

H. P. Eckaret & Co. are selling choice and fancy California seeded muscatel raisins in 16-oz. pkgs. at very low prices.

A carload (500 boxes) of choice Golden Hallowee dates are in store with L. Chaput, Fils & Cie, Montreal. Quality is the finest seen for years.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. E. H. Betts, Ballinafad, Ontario, has succeeded his brother, Mr. F. W. Betts, in the general store business at that place. He reports trade good in his locality.

Mr. S. W. Ewing, of S. H. Ewing & Son, wholesale teas, spices, etc., Montreal, is laid up ill at his home. From the nature of the illness it is not expected that Mr. Ewing will be able to resume his duties for some weeks.

A visitor to Montreal is Mr. J. Lockhardt Watt, of Messrs. J. L. Watt & Scott, Toronto. Mr. Watt is also a senior member of the firm of Watt, Scott & Goodacre, of Montreal. Both these houses are recognized among the leaders of importing houses, representing, as they do, some of the large Mediterranean and foreign fruits, as well as British and continental firms.

Mr. J. F. McGovern, of the New York branch of Thos. Lipton, has just returned from a trip through the Eastern Townships in the interest of Lipton's teas and coffees. He reports very satisfactory business in Sherbrooke, which city, outside of its business activity, impressed him by its natural beauty and location for manufacturing concerns. Mr. J. D. Poulin, representative of Laporte, Martin & Cie, Montreal, the Canadian agents for Lipton's teas and coffees, made a good running mate, and business had to come their way.

Mr. George C. Lloyd, manager grocery department at Scroggie's, the large Montreal departmental store, is a subscriber to and close reader of "The Canadian Grocer," and acknowledges with candour the great pleasure and interest he derives from perusing it. Mr. Lloyd, who was assistant to Mr. Hower, manager of The Robert Simpson Co., Limited, Toronto, before taking charge of Scroggie's grocery department, is an experienced, wide-a-wake, and up-to-date grocer, and even on the look-out for modern ideas of interest to his trade, and full of originality himself. Scroggie's grocery department is in good hands.

A GOOD OPENING.

The readers attention is drawn to an advertisement in this paper under Business Chances, which offers a most profitable opening in one of the best and largest wholesale produce companies in this country.

A NEW TEA PROPOSITION.

AMONG the recent callers at the Toronto office of THE CANADIAN GROCER were Mr. Eugene Rosedale and Mr. J. A. Curtis, of New York, representing the tea and coffee interests of Sir Thomas Lipton.

Mr. Rosedale tells THE GROCER that after an up-hill fight the coffee-drinking Americans are taking hold of Lipton's teas in a most encouraging manner.

The Lipton Co. are now turning their attention to Canada, and an aggressive campaign is being begun. Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, and The Canada Grocers, of Toronto, have been appointed agents for the eastern and western districts respectively. Mr. F. H. McGowen will look after the interests of Lipton's with Laporte, Martin, in Montreal, and Mr. J. A. Curtis with The Canada Grocers, in Toronto.

The retailers are being seen as rapidly as possible, and a rather novel proposition presented to them. In order to introduce it into Canada, with every initial order of 50 pounds of tea 10 pounds of Lipton's special 35 cent coffee is given absolutely free.

The tea is put up in half-pound and pound packages. These packages are square, and made of tin. This is the only tea put up in tin packages and presents a very handsome appearance.

Mr. Curtis informs THE GROCER that he has met with great friendliness on the part of the trade so far he has yet got around.

CORNWALLIS VALLEY.

Mr. M. G. DeWolfe, of Kentville, N.S., writes THE GROCER in an optimistic mood from the Nova Scotia apple district. "The valley is in good shape," he says; "there was a grand apple crop. It was a sight to see the orchards, and we had a chance to drive two parties of the Empire Congress to Wolfville via Cornwallis. It was a snap for our Board of Trade. The delegates admitted it was a big surprise to see such quantities of fruit."

A CORRECTION.

In THE GROCER of last week it was stated as coming from The R. Greig Mfg. Co. that "Kkovah" jellies in Halifax were catching on. This should have read, "The Greig Mfg. Co., Ltd., Montreal," who ask us to state that they are the sole agents for "Kkovah" jellies and other "Kkovah" specialties; also, that they are sole manufacturers of "Greig's" and "Crown" brand flavoring extracts.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Groceries.

Toronto, Dec. 17, 1904.

WHOLESALERS' report this week that business is contracting as Christmas approaches, and is now largely confined to sorting up orders, especially for dried fruits, nuts and other Christmas specialties. The business for the year will be practically wound up when this reaches the reader, as the travellers come off the road on Tuesday and will remain off to the beginning of the year. Payments are reported from fair to very good. In the lists given below the only changes of price of importance are in coffees. Canned goods are firm and unchanged. A rise in vegetables is prophesied by an authority who should be in a position to know. Coffees, as above indicated, are still advancing and exhibit a firm tendency in that direction. How far they will rise is a question. There is no feature to report in spices. Syrups and molasses are higher in New Orleans but unchanged here. Things are dull in rice and tapioca, while tea has shown no particular activity for the past week. Dried fruits, as for some weeks past, absorb the attention of the trade, although business is largely confined to sorting orders. In sugar there has been a further decline in raws in the United States but no change as yet in refined either there or here. The local demand is very fair considering the season.

CANNED GOODS.

The situation is unchanged and prices remain firm. From a good authority it is learned that an advance in vegetables is not unlikely early in the new year. There is a steady market for fruits, the demand being fair for this time of the year, although a large demand can not be expected till later, when the household supplies have been exhausted. Meats are very quiet. We quote:

COFFEES.

The market is still strong with an upward tendency. New York is very bullish, and some profess to be looking for 10c. coffee. Arbuckle's have advanced their coffees fully 2½c. above three months ago. Mild grades are very strong and selling well. Wholesalers are not in the market to any extent, but a very fair demand from retailers is being filled. We advance several quotations as below. SUGAR.

There have been further declines in raw sugar for week under review, sales having been made of Cuba centrifugals for January shipment at 2 5 32 C. & F. New York, which would be equivalent to 3 1-2, duty paid, should the Reciprocity Treaty take effect. Refiners are buyers at a further 1-32c. decline, or, say, 2 1-8c. C. & F., but the market has assumed a steadier tone and there are no sellers under 2 5-32c., at which price about 25,000 bags have just changed hands. It is understood that fully 100,000 tons Cubans for January shipment have been p,aced thus far. Sales of sugars on spot and afloat have been light, about 15,000 bags centrifugals from other countries changing hands on basis of 1 15-16 C.I.F., which is equal to 3 5-8c., duty paid, these sugars paying the full duty. The foregoing quotations record a decline of 1-16c. for the week on January shipments, but maintain former quotations for December delivery. European markets have fluctuated between 8s. 5¼d. and 8s. 4½d. for basis 88 per cent. December shipment, closing at the latter figure, showing no change from last week's quotations. Cable received from Mr. F. O. Licht, Magdeburg, dated December 15, reads: "No change in the situation." There are no sugars afloat from Europe to the United States. The market may be called a nominal and waiting one, pending settlement of the Cuban Reciprocity question which is at present under discussion in the Senate at Washingson, and the vote is probably being taken on same as this is being written. Grinding of new crop has commenced in Cuba, and there are five central factories working as against four last year and eleven in 1901. There have been no receipts at shipping ports yet, and exports of old crop have temporarily ceased, the stock in the Island remaining at 122,000 tons against 60,597 last year. Combined stocks of United States and Cuba are 5,262 tons less than this time last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,430,791 tons, or 156,329 tons increase over same period last year. The statistical position at United States Atlantic ports shows little change, meltings being 24,000 tons, or 2,000 tons less than previous week, while receipts were only 22,387 tons, thus reducing stocks by 1,015 tons to 98,771 tons, of which refiners are holding about 80,000 tons, or slightly over three weeks' supply. The New Orleans campaign is nearing the end, and the total crop will probably be not much, if any, over 200,000 tons. Cable from Cuba indicates a probable crop for next campaign of 1,200,000 tons. There are no changes to record in the refined situation, and there are no particular indications for the immediate future, though some United States refiners are believed to be now selling freely, and this is regarded as a favorable sign. However, there are those who believe that prices will be fairly maintained for the balance of the year, and the same feeling seems to prevail in local circles. Our prices remain as below, and the demand is very fair for the season. We learn that the Dresden beet sugar factory has completed its operations for this season. We quote:

SPICES.

New York advices report the market dull and featureless, there being neither buyers nor sellers in large amounts. No cable advices of interest have been received or any changes of consequence reported. Pepper, cloves and cayennes are actively higher for futures again, but no reflection of this has as yet appeared on the local market. The wholesale trade report a fairly good seasonable demand of a sorting character, but the great mass of business for the year has been transacted. We quote:

TEAS.

Teas are quiet, although prices are firm. The demand all along the line is light. Ceylons and Japans, however, are rather better inquired for. In London there is little change in the situation. Complaint is made of the unattractive quality of the Indian coming forward. The same may be said of the Ceylon, a good deal without point or cup quality coming on the market. These facts are considered responsible for the recent dullness. China also has been dull. The last letter from Japan, dated November 26, reports the market almost closed, the only transactions reported representing small business for pressing requirements only, while no apparent depression has been observed owing to the scarcity of suitable stocks. Foreign Dried Fruits.

Saturday cables indicate a firm market at advance for Grenoble, Bordeaux and Marbot walnuts. The market for Valencia raisins is firm. Sultanas are unchanged. Choice qualities of the latter are very scarce and prices decidedly firmer. For lower grades it is thought that prices have certainly touched bottom, and a reaction is not improbable with the turn of the year. Indeed, recent advices say that if vines, as is not unlikely, give indications with the first of the year of a moderate yield for next Summer, prices will be pushed up several points. A cable received Tuesday advises an advance of 1p. on last quotations for Comadre figs. Prunes are quiet, houses buying cautiously. The latest California reports would indicate that lower prices are not warranted by conditions in view of the small fruit crop in Europe, the shortage of apples in the Eastern States and the small crop of both prunes and apricots in California. Wholesalers report a very fair sorting trade still doing in Mediterranean dried fruits for the Christmas trade. Figs and dates are well inquired for. California evaporated fruits and prunes, however, are dull. Demand for nuts is active, and for shelled very active. The same applies to peels. We quote :

EGGS.

Eggs are becoming more and more scarce. Storage and pickled stocks are rapidly growing lower, and the supply of fresh laid has no immediate prospect of increasing. The demand keeps firm, and prices have therefore an upward tendency. From what can be learned there is prospects of still greater scarcity before there is an improvement. We quote :

DRIED APPLES.

The export trade in dried apples is dull. Foreign buyers are not asking for quotations, and it looks like as if we would have a falling market after the first of the year. The frost, which nipped many apples in the orchards before they could be barrelled, resulted in many apples being dried which otherwise would have been sold green. We quote :

Apples, dried, per lb	.... 0 04½

POULTRY.

The poultry market shows a stronger feeling this week, especially in turkeys, for which there is in some quarters anticipated a famine for Christmas. Others, however, think the increased price will bring out ample supplies. In any event turkeys are away up and other poultry are firm in sympathy. We quote :

Fish.

There is a brisk market for most lines of fish. Supply is good and demand fully up. The cold snap and the holidays are expected to put up the price of oysters shortly, but no change has occurred as yet. Frozen fresh water herring are now on the market. We quote :

Green Fruits.

The cold snap has had a detrimental effect on the fruit trade, necessitating the use of refrigerator cars for the Christmas fruit to leading points and express for lesser points. The fruit, however, is arriving in good condition, and orders are numerous. Florida oranges are showing considerable waste owing to the rains. Southern California navels have just arrived. They are fine fruit. Mexicans are large and cheap. Valencias arriving this week are in light supply. Prices show no very radical change. We quote :

The vegetable market is rather dull. Potatoes are dearer and scarce owing largely to the cold weather. Sweet potatoes are advanced upwards of 50c. Imported cucumbers are now on the market at $1.25 to $1.75 per dozen. California celery is selling at $5 for large case and $2.75 for small. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, Dec. 17, 1903.

Groceries.

INQUIRY among the jobbers as to condition of trade elicits comforting information, taking every aspect of business into account general satisfaction is expressed as to the volume of trade as well as outlook. The only feature that is complained of at all is the one ever with us, custom of cutting prices, and little discrimination seems to be used in this respect. Why grocers should desire to give away a fair profit is hardly explicable, there is business for all at a profit, and volume of trade should be the result of business energy, up-to-date methods and liberal treatment of the retail trade—the millenium is far off as yet. Tea brokers and dealers report very quiet business in all lines, cable offers on green Ceylons continue to be declined abroad. Sugars are quiet and little doing, business continuing on a hand-to-moth basis. Mixed molasses have been the subject of some discussion lately, and it is claimed that the mixing is done in this market and not in New York or at point of origin. The fact is apparent, however, that there is mixed Barbadoes sold here thought in not large quantities, dealers and handlers of Barbadoes as a rule are careful on this point and none of the mixed is bought in preference to the genuine article. Syrups are in good demand for small package goods, this style having commended itself to both retailer and consumer. In canned goods the circular issued last week by the Canadian Consolidated Canners' Co., on the subject of poultry and canned meats goods, is appreciated, and in some quarters sarcastically. One jobber intimated to your correspondent that the canners must have a humorist on its staff in thus sending out instructions to the trade with the privilege of allowing the members of the trade to buy their canned meats elsewhere, without losing the rebate. "Where do they suppose we can buy our turkey, chicken, etc. now, after restricting us to their product? If they cannot buy their supplies, where do they suppose any other packer can? Funny, isn't it?"

Coffees are again firmer and the day is not far distant when prices must advance. Several of the largest American coffee dealers have already advanced their prices from 1 to 3c. per lb. Local spice men are holding prices firm on all lines. Foreign dried fruits locally are in good demand, heavy business being done in raisins, nuts, figs and dates. A scarcity is reported in shelled almonds of the better grades. Shelled walnuts firm with higher prices asked for future deliveries. No change in Velencia raisins, latest advices from Denia report stock in first hands to be limited. Sultanas show an advance of from 1s. to 3s. per cwt. Currants unchanged. Dates are quoted very low and 4 to 4 1-2c. seems to be the jobbing price. In green fruits lemons are 25c. box easier. Malaga grapes advanced 25c. to 50c. a keg. California navel oranges are coming in. Apple shipments are light as usual at this end of the year. Rice and tapioca are dull and little doing. Fish business is very good, all kinds in good demand. Western fish are receiving more attention on account of the lower prices prevailing at this season. Vegetables are quiet, potatoes especially so during the week.

Information is given below as to the stock of eggs on hand at the principal centres. As will be seen, the report confirms the remarks in these columns from week to week as to the scarcity of eggs. Prices are now rapidly soaring as buyers anticipate a famine. In beans there has been a sharp advance for No. 1 hand picked. Higher prices are paid for this grade owing to the poor quality of this season's crop. The situation in honey is unchanged. Comb and buckwheat honey continue scarce and in good demand. Rolled oats are firm with an upward tendency. Prices are likely to advance with the new year and retailers would make no mistake if they commenced to stock up. Pot and pearl barley are still very hard to obtain. High prices for hides have atracted large shipments and prices have declined in consequence.

SUGAR.

The condition of the sugar market shows no change from last week's report. Business is still of a hand-to-mouth character. New York market in raw cane is reported easier, while refined sugar is quiet. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Trade in both lines is somewhat on the quiet side. The feature of mixed Barbadoes molasses being sold in this market as has been referred to in this section lately, has caused some discussion among jobbers and importers. It has been said that the molasses arrived mixed, and it is also claimed that the mixing was done here by certain jobbers. While we are unable to locate the mixer the fact still remains that mixed molasses has been sold here at from 3 to 4c. per gallon under legitimate pure Barbadoes. We quote:

TEAS.

Business in teas has dropped off very materially during this week and there is no feature particularly noticeable of interest to the trade. Offerings continue to be made for low grade green Ceylons, but as has been the case for some weeks none are obtainable. CANNED GOODS.

Trade is reported very quiet. There is nothing to report from the jobbers and it is not expected that much trading will be done until the Lenten season, or until consumers' home supplies are used up.

A circular has been received by the jobbing trade from the Canadian Consolidated Canners' Co. stating that owing to the difficulty experienced by them in securing poultry they are unable to fill their orders. Jobbers are in consequence at liberty to purchase their requirements of canned meats such as chicken, duck, turkey, etc., from other sources without suffering a loss of rebate. The association claim being able to deliver only about 10 to 15 per cent. of their orders. This concession will no doubt be appreciated by the jobbing trade. We quote:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

In foreign dried fruits a scarcity is reported in shelled almonds of the better grades. Shelled walnuts are firm at the recent advance with higher prices asked for, for future deliveries.

Valencia raisins, ordinary, show no change in prices. Latest advices from Valencia report stock of raisins in first hands very limited. There is scarcely more than sufficient to supply the holiday demand. The market in sultana raisins shows an advance from 1s. to 3s. per cwt., according to quality. There is no change to report in currants. They are still offering at old prices and there is little or nothing doing. The first tide shipment of dates via London are now due. It is hoped shortly to be able to anounce the date of the forthcoming

SPEAKING OF FOODS.

"WHEN the Food consumers of the United States and Canada rebelled against many of the 'Ready-to-Eat' foods which were being placed upon the markets by concerns who had not built a reputation by announcing their goods to the public, the question arose of appointing an intelligent and experienced person to protect the interests of the housewives whose duty it is to purchase the family food supplies. This movement resulted in the election of "Sunny Jim" by a unanimous vote of more than two million people who gave him the title of 'The Food Censor.' He accepted it for their health's sake.

"He is the greatest food man in the world and his word is taken as an authority on this subject, because he has made a life study of the food problem and he has solved it too. Evidence of this statement is handed to 'Sunny Jim' each business morning by the Buffalo postmaster in the form of complimentary letters from nearly every state and province.

"His main offices are located in Buffalo. His largest mills are also there. He has another one at Hamilton, Ontario. He is selling more 'Force' now than he ever did before, and those who buy 'Force' say that it is the quality of the food alone which induces them to buy it. A good product coupled with judicious advertising and fair play to the grocers make his proposition the strongest in existence."

The above will give you an idea of how the Press is interested in my work.

Out of the 8,000 grocers who read my advertisement in the last issue of THE CANADIAN GROCER, only one of them doubted the fact that my Canadian mail is as heavy as I said it was. For his benefit and for all those who think the same way, I have reproduced a few of the postmarks taken from Canadian letters received within the last day or two. All of these letters come from people who are interested in the "Force" spirit and those who eat "Force." Any grocer who has not applied for my buttons or booklets, I shall be pleased to send some upon request.

I also have a new supply of booklets. They are invaluable trade builders for grocers. Send for some.

Supplying "Force" advertisements for grocer's announcements in the local papers is one of my hobbies. It's so easy for me to do this and the ads. sell so much "Force" that I write them without charge to you. Send for some.

Yours truly,

Sunny Jim

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of The Canadian Grocer,
St. John, N.B., Dec. 14, 1903.

THE wholesale grocer is now looking forward to stocktaking and is buying from hand to mouth. Quite large stocks are held. The Fall and holiday business has been large but all shipments have been made and the balance of trade, till the holidays will consist of small sorting orders. The retailer reports business good. There have been few years when the laboring man and the mechanic have had such steady work at good wages. This is a good foundation. The jobber, perhaps, has not had so good a year, as in many lines there has been a falling market.

We started the month with beautiful Winter weather, but at the time of writing our snow is gone. It means much to trade whether we regain it.

The very large export business which passes through St. John in the Winter for the United Kingdom, has, during December, been the largest yet. St. John also does a large export business to the West Indies. This Fall a large quantity of stuff has been shipped and the market has proved favorable. This is particularly true of potatoes. Some St. John shippers have also sent quantities via Halifax.

In burning oil the market continues very firm at the high price, and shows no change this week. Lubricating business for Spring begins to have attention. Values are very firm. Linseed will rule low, turpentine is quite high and firm. Fish oil is scarce.

Salt—The Winter port boats seem to prefer to bring English coarse salt during the early weeks of the season as general freights are larger later. Rather over sixty thousand bags came here during the season and already local importers have received over fifteen thousand bags. Prices keep quite firm.

In canned goods business is rather more quiet. The trade expect soon to be importing American tomatoes. The market there is quite firm. Oysters are quite high this season and the outlook is for higher prices once the packing season closes. Salmon are still being received. Spring and cohoe fish are chiefly sold. Blueberries are in fair supply. While in domestic sardines pack is light some are still held in first hands. Clams are rather scarce.

Green Fruit—First shipments of Valencia oranges are to hand. Each lot arriving shows rather lower cost. Jamaica which are largely bought in Boston for this market, are quite low. Apples are plenty. In spite of the large Nova Scotia crop some Ontario fruit is here. Lemons are plentiful and quite low.

In dried fruit dealers find shipments of dates are late. Prices are rather lower than quoted for first arrivals. Some late shipments of Malaga seeded raisins which are here look much better than the earlier goods. In California prunes low prices are quoted. A fair stock is held. The shipments of Valencias have been larger than was expected. Trade is well supplied in all dried fruit except perhaps peels. Evaporated apples show just a fair business. In onions the market is somewhat dull. This line suffered from poor American stock being brought here. In nuts prices have been low and the quality of goods received better than for some years. Peanuts tend higher.

In sugar values are unchanged, the agreement made with the refineries by the larger part of the wholesale trade to handle only Canadian sugars has caused several dealers to import foreign sugar who did not previously handle this line. The manufacturers also chiefly handle foreign.

The molasses held here is chiefly Porto Rico and is held largely by one party. The market is quite firm. New Orleans, which had begun to come in quite freely, has advanced.

There is a better supply of fresh fish but still not enough to have much effect on prices. Finnan haddies have been moving west in large quantities. The market is firm at a small decline from the highest point. The shipping of frozen smelt from the north shore has been very large this month. Good prices have been obtained. As yet no frozen herring or cod have been seen here. Very few herring are expected. In smoked and pickled herring full prices continue, though demand is not large. Dry fish are quite firm.

There is a large sale here of Manitoba flour, it grows with the high price of Ontario grades. Values are unchanged. Oatmeal is not a large seller and is rather easier, as are oats. Cornmeal continues quite low. Beans seem rather higher. The scarcity of barrels in the west has effected business. Barley and peas are scarce. In yellow eye beans the market has been quite bare, but a car is expected.

Because of the large lumber interests here, the sale of barrelled pork and beef is a large factor in trade. In order to compete with Boston and local packers at least one Chicago house now carries stock here. The market seems easier. Compared with last year, values are low. Pure lard which has continued to drop off in price during the past month is still easy. Fresh meats are low. Pork being lower here than at other parts of Canada. Beef is very plentiful. Lamb sells freely at even figures. There is a fair demand for veal at good prices.

Cheese is reported rather easier.

In eggs higher prices rule. We have to depend on Prince Edward Island for our supply.

Butter is quite plentiful but for best stock full prices can be obtained. It is always in light supply.

Gilbert Bent & Son have a car of yellow eye beans to arrive. Supply is very light and market has been quite bare for some time.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Dec. 14, 1903.

COLD, clear weather, bright sunshine, good sleighing, all conditions favorable for a heavy holiday trade. Trade in all seasonable staples is excellent, but in addition there is an enormous trade in holiday goods. Christmas shopping has started in fully ten days earlier than last year when it was a week earlier than in 1901, so that in this respect there is a marked improvement. Wholesale houses report that the class of goods called for is better than ever before and they have had difficulty in supplying the demand in some lines.

A noticeable feature of the trade this season has been the increased demand for olives, chutnies, mango pickles, stuffed mushrooms, expensive varieties of cheese, nuts and dried and candied fruits. An anamoly offered is a "French made plum pudding" and English plum puddings are meeting with an extensive sale.

So far as staple groceries are concerned a careful review of the list shows absolutely no change from last week. Pretty well all the stocks are now in, a few lines being still delayed and every house has of course its own specialties.

The green fruit situation has improved since last week in that the country customers who were so incensed over the new regulation about buyers assuming all the risk on fruit shipped during the Winter and some firms that had cancelled orders renewed them. Fruit men report their stocks coming in very well and that all seasonable lines will be in full supply for the holiday trade. Prices generally are about the same as last year.

Eastern poultry is not yet in, so that it cannot be talked about. It is rumoured that dealers here have experienced difficulty in getting all the supplies they wanted. The domestic receipts are in about the same positon as last week. Chickens and turkevs are in limited quantities and generally poorly fed and poorly dressed. Geese and ducks are abundant and very well fed and put up.

Preparations are underway for the decoration of the market, always an important feature of the holiday trade in Winnipeg. This year the market has been repainted throughout and when all the evergreens and colored decorations and elctric lights are in place it will look like the larder of fairyland.

Last year the mutton for the Christmas trade nearly all came from the east, this year it is coming from the ranches of the west and a very fine lot of sheep they will be.

Christmas beef is talked of and will soon be on view in the stalls. In fact every class of business has but one end in view and that is the Christmas trade. The city is full of goodfellowship, labor is well employed and though rents and fuel are high, people are generally in good spirits.

The grain trade is in the rut that usually follows the close of navigation and trading all week has been very light. It is doubted by many of the dealers if there will be any revival of trade until January and possibly not then. There is a hand-to-mouth business being done and that is all.

Country members who have been operating on the Winnipeg Exchange are leaving for home and the Exchange is beginning to have a deserted and sleepy air.

Notes.

Mr. Hugh N. Baird, manager for Richardson & Co., of the Grain Exchange, leaves on the 24th instant for Montreal where he is to be married on the 2nd of January.

Mr. Jim Black, who was lately transferred from the Winnipeg office of the Ogilvie Milling Co., to the head office in Montreal, is also slated for the role of bridegroom during January.

Mr. A. S. Lock, secretary-treasurer of the wholesale grocery firm of Foley, Lock & Larsen, was the recipient of a handsome cabinet of silver during the week from the staff of the house. Mr. Lock is one of the bachelors marked for a benedict before the year is out.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 12.

THE peculiarity of Christmas trade in Vancouver as exemplified by the business being done at the present moment is that the people do not buy until the eleventh hour. The wholesale trade has been bringing forward stocks suitable for Christmas demands, for months past. The retail trade, partly stimulated by the preparations made for them by the jobbers are pretty well stocked.

But the goods do not move. It is a fact to-day that the retail grocery business is quieter than it was a month ago. Of course every merchant is looking for a good trade, and there is no reason at all for the business to fail. The last moments will be busy. The Christmas trade will all be done with a rush. As one business man said the other day in talking of the peculiarity of Vancouver's Christmas purchasing: "I remember last year seeing more than one instance where housekeepers were buying their raisins, currants, candied peel and what not at 10 o'clock on Christmas eve. Their Christmas plum pudding would be made on Christmas morning. That was not the way of the housewives of a generation or two ago. They made their preparations long ahead."

But it is a tribute to the service which the purchasing community gets. There is such a certainty that the articles required may be secured at a moment's notice that the public have gotten into a hand-to-mouth style of buying. They never buy a day ahead. And it is having its influence on the retail men. (It was a wholesale man who spoke.) The retail merchants not knowing ahead what the requirements will be depend on the wholesale houses to provide them at short notice whatever their customers may order. Thus it is that the wholesale trade is so well stocked. It is safe to say that no other wholesale centre in Canada has better wholesale grocery stocks.

The first stocks of Christmas poultry were received this week direct from Eastern Canada. The shippers were Dundas & Flavelle Bros., of Lindsay. The goods were received by P. Burns & Co., and were exactly the same as put up by the eastern packers for the English trade. In fact it was "Export" stock as the markings on the packages showed. It came forward in cold storage and as Burns & Co. have cold storage equipment in their premises, the stock should be in good shape.

Most of this first shipment will be absorbed by demand of local trade before the Christmas holiday season begins. Other lots are, however, on the way and other dealers have also large stocks already moving. One firm had last year to hire a tug especially to get its Christmas orders round to various points in time for the Christmas day deliveries. This was because of the C.P.R. freight service falling down. This year the same firm is taking time by the forelock and has its cars ordered ahead. In fact they are now on the road.

Prices for Christmas poultry are high and holding firm. The fixed quotation from Seattle for turkeys is 28c. there, and with freight and duty the price laid down in prohibitive. But it tends to hold the market here very firm. Add to this, advices from the east of higher prices and the chance of cheap turkey for Christmas fades away. A peculiarity of the market is that the price for the lot of eastern poultry, mentioned above puts chicken at even higher prices than turkeys. Fowls, as the older birds are classed, are cheaper.

The price of fresh eggs has fallen somewhat. To an easterner not used to our climatic conditions, this might seem a rather premature change in the market quotation, as in the east the price will not be less for strictly fresh laid, for some months. But here it is different. The climate of the coast is such that the younger birds, last season's raising, and even the older stock, are through the moulting season and now in condition to lay. The mild weather makes it more favorable for egg production. Price is now only 50c per dozen. The pickled stock is bringing about 22 to 23c. per dozen. Any small stocks of fresh eastern case eggs bring from 28 to 30c. as to quality.

Butter is not showing any particular new feature. Local creameries have kept up the quantity of their deliveries beyond the usual figure for this season. Prices are firm and not changed.

Fruit is at a standstill so far as changes show. There is no new stock coming in. The local B. C. apples still supply the market. In oranges, there are a few California goods coming forward, the movement being somewhat stimulated by the coming of Christmas trade. But the demand is light, almost nil. The little Jap orange is still king of the market. The quantities of this fruit now on the market are enormous, every steamer bringing more, so that the surplus never is worked off. The Empress of India arriving on Thursday morning, brought another big consignment of several thousand boxes. Shipments as far east as Calgary have been large for the first time since this fruit began to come on the market here. Several lots of a carload at a time have been sent out, one or two for Calgary in bulk and the rest for distribution.

Mr. D. Mowatt, of the Western Canadian Fish Co. left this week on a four weeks' trip through the Northwest and Manitoba. He is selling the cured fish products of his company. They include the first halibut successfully cured and bricked similar to cured codfish, and also the first Behring Sea black cod to be cured and put on the market from Vancouver. The firm is establishing a big business and can supply the whole of the west with their goods.

GREEN FRUITS

California Fruit Trade.

TOTAL shipments of deciduous fruits from California this season have been 7,495 cars, compared with 7,122 cars during last season, says New York Times. The importance of New York as a distributing centre can be understood when it is noted that 1,500 cars came to New York. Chicago ranked next with about 1,300 cars, and Boston was third with 750 cars. Minneapolis took 420, Philadelphia 295, St. Paul 267, Pittsburg 276, and the rest were scattered through a long list of cities in lots of 100 cars or less. New York's purchases are practically all consumed in or very near the city. Formerly all of this class of fruits consumed as far away as Buffalo, Montreal, and Boston were distributed from New York. Now the distributive system includes these cities, and New York gets only what can be consumed here. It is better for consumers, but New York dealers complain bitterly of the competition thus created.

In the varieties of fruit shipped, pears take the lead. Statistics compiled by the transportation companies show that the fruits run about this way: Pears, 2,011 cars; peaches, 1,777; grapes, 1,033; plums and fresh prunes, 1,473; cherries, 245; apricots, 222; apples, 359; quinces, 10; nectarines, 2; figs, 2; persimmons, 2.

During the past few years the market for California deciduous fruits shipped fresh has expanded very rapidly. In the United States it includes 125 eastern cities. This year shipments to foreign countries began on an extensive scale, and one large firm established an office in London to attend to the receipt, sale, and forwarding, throughout England and on the Continent, of the deciduous fruits which a few years ago could not be carried 50 miles with safety. Now they are shipped 3,000 miles across the American continent, transferred to the holds of steamships, and sent 3,000 miles across the Atlantic, and arrive in prime condition. Proper picking, scientific packing, and perfect refrigeration have accomplished this.

The principal difficulty in shipping is the irregularity of the transportation service. Fruit scheduled to arrive at a certain destination Thursday or Friday may be delayed so it will not reach there until Saturday, which means that it cannot be sold until Monday. Any other fruit but that grown on California soil would spoil; but the solid, well-filled fruits from there seldom show much decay after such an experience. The exhaustion of the ice between icing stations will frequently cause more damage than a delayed sale. A great deal has been done to facilitate the movement of fruit trains across the continent, but there are numerous junction points, and lay-overs are inevitable. One road inaugurated a fruit schedule which made almost as fast time as passenger trains, but gradually the advertised speed was lost and it finally degenerated to the usual fruit train speed.

For the past four years shipments of deciduous fruits from California have been: 1903, 225,000,000 pounds; 1902, 200,824,000 pounds; 1901, 187,350,000 pounds; 1900, 182,374,000 pounds.

About two-thirds of the deciduous fruits shipped from California are distributed through auction markets. The organization of growers and packers known as the California Fruit Distributors has established auction rooms in all the large cities and many of the small ones. At these points the fruit is handled almost exclusively through these auction rooms. It is maintained that prices obtained in these auctions are fairer to growers and purchasers alike than prices made between receivers and buyers. At first the trade objected, but finally accepted the auction system as the proper one, and now everything is handled in that way.

Handling Bananas.

AN American fruit company has adopted a newly-invented and efficient device for unloading bunches of bananas. The capacity of each machine is 15,000 bunches an hour. Before this invention was installed the fruit was unloaded by stevedores, and the highest attainable speed by that system was 1,200 bunches an hour, while the handling resulted in the bruising of much fruit. With the new system the fruit is handled without the likelihood of bruisings. The machine is operated by an electric motor, and its principal features are adaptations of the main points of the electric parcels and cash carriers in use by department stores. The carriers are fitted with canvas receptacles of the proper size for holding bunches of bananas, and can be manipulated, first from the warehouse on the wharf or levee to and down into the ship's hold and then back to the warehouse. By the adoption of certain forms of receptacles or clutches the machines may be used for handling other sorts of fruits and merchandise.

Home of the Orange.

The natural home of the orange is doubtful, but it is considered this fruit was first grown in the sub-tropical climates of the Burmese peninsula and Southern China. It is now cultivated in almost every warm country in both the old and the new world. The orange tree is not as large as an ordinary apple tree, but is very productive, from 400 to 1,000 being borne in favorable seasons. When intended for export they are gathered long before maturity, and ripen after picking. It loses in this way the delicious flavor of the orange maturing on the tree, the natural way.

The Original Lemon.

The wild stock from which the lemon sprung is a native of Kumaon and Sikkim in Northern India. It is now grown in all tropical and sub-tropical countries. The tree grows ten to twelve feet high, and is very prolific, some trees in Spain and Sicily ripening as many as 3,000 in favorable seasons. In the south of Europe the fruit is collected more or less every month, but those collected in Sicily from October to December are considered the best keepers. It is gathered green for export. The principal European point from which lemons are exported are Messina, Palermo, the Riviera in Genoa, and Malaga in Spain. Canada receives large quantities from California and Florida.

Montreal Apple Shipments.

The total number of apples shipped from the port of Montreal this season was 728,132 barrels, as against 476,756 for 1902, and 122,406 for 1901. This has been the largest shipment recorded from the port of Montreal, the next largest was in 1896, when the total reached 700,274, and the smallest since 1880 was 7,445 barrels in 1883. Total number of barrels shipped on the largest year on record for the total season of 1896-7 was 2,919,846. It is thought that by the time this season ends the shipments will reach 3,500,000; end of season will be about April, 1904.

Apples vs. Oranges.

The abundant apple crop this year seems to be having a bad effect on the orange market in New York, at least the recent slump is attributed to that cause by some of the New York fruit merchants.

"Not in many years," remarked one of the latter recently, "have the public enjoyed a chance to eat such good apples at such low prices. For many years past the apples at the stores and on the fruit stands and barrows on the streets have been unattractive in the extreme both to eye and taste, but this year one can get a first-clas apple at a very cheap price without the slightest difficulty, and the show made on the fruit stands is attractive to the eye to a most remarkable degree. This is bound to have a bearing on the orange situation. Take my own individual case, for instance, to show you how things work out. I sent over a barrel of Almeria grapes and a barrel of apples for my household use a week or so ago. The grapes are practically untouched; the barrel of apples is almost gone. I am not asserting that when a man wants to eat a grape or orange that he is going to be satisfied with an apple, but I do say that a full supply of excellent grade apples obtainable with the greatest ease and at moderate prices is bound to injure the consumption of other fruits."

Eight Cars of Oranges.

Hugh Waker & Sons, Guelph, report a most satisfactory season in the fruit line. They took care of eight cars of oranges as their share of the Guelph district Christmas trade.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

Frost on the Glass.

EVERY grocer will be bothered for a few months with frost gathering on the glass, unless he has taken the necessary precautions, or knows how to remove it when it has gathered. The very best plan, but one which is not so useful to the grocer, on account of the perishable nature of most of his stock, is to enclose the window, and thus prevent the collection of moisture on the glass. This moisture is caused by the warmer air of the interior striking the cold glass.

An absolute preventive for this is to build the window in, and keep the temperature in the window very near what it is outside. When the background is built in, a cold draft must be brought into the window from outside, and this is accomplished by cutting an opening to the outside under the floor of the window, and connecting it with holes above the glass. The opening enters directly into a cold air box below the flooring, and this is connected by pipes with holes in the floor close to the glass, and 6 to 10 inches apart. Above the glass other holes are bored through to the outside, and the cold air, entering the bottom, flows over the glass to the upper openings. The only fear is of the dust entering the windows, but this can be prevented by closing the outer opening when the dust is blowing.

The average grocer rather fears to close all heat off from his window, and there is no doubt many fine displays will be impossible in the cold window. He will be surprised, however, at the variety of lines which will admit of display in any temperature, and with practice he will find good arrangements available. Anything is preferable to a glass that cannot be seen through.

Electric fans can be used to keep a costantly moving flow of air on the glass, and this will prevent any formation of moisture, when, of course, there cannot be any frost. A super-heated atmosphere next the glass is maintained in some windows by means of hot-water coils close to the bottom, or by a gas pipe with many openings which supply a sufficient number of flames to melt the frost for a couple of feet up. The two latter plans are, however, not entirely satisfactory.

There are also various liquids which, when applied to the frost, not only remove it, but prevent its reforming for some time. The best of these is sulphuric acid, which does not discolor or give a greasy appearance. Other liquids that can be used with more or less success are glycerine, aqua ammonia, hydrochloric acid, benzine, nitric acid, aqua regia, alcohol, etc. The difficulty met with in the use of them is that there is usually a greasy deposit left, or a discoloration. Glycerine is oily, and ammonia and benzine produce a bluish tint that detracts somewhat from the clearness of the glass. An alcohol flame will remove the moisture left by some of the liquids, and thus prevent the gathering of the frost for some time.

This Week's Illustrations.

This Fairbank's soap display was dressed by Mr. J. E. Whitesides for F. Carne, Jr., Victoria, B.C. The background was white cheese cloth pleated on a frame, and the floor was covered with puffed purple cheese cloth. Plentiful use was made of the pictures and calendars of the Fairbank's Company, both on the floor and the walls. The artificial palms render more attractive a window which has been very attractively arranged. The butterflies on the background give a touch which does not spoil the advertising value of the window, and yet adds to the general appearance. Mr. Carne appreciates the value of well-dressed windows, and Mr. Whitesides has grasped the ideas which go to make a window what it should be. As a rule windows with small panes are extremely difficult to trim to advantage, but in this window one scarcely notices the breaks in the glass.

AMERICAN TEA CULTURE.

IN his annual report, signed November 28, 1903, Hon. James Wilson, Secretary of Agriculture for the United States, says of tea growing in that country:

"During the year the work on growing tea has been continued at Summerville, S.C., and a new station has been put in operation at Pierce, Tex. At Summerville further work has been carried on in the testing of new varieties, new machinery and new factory methods. The work at this point has now reached a state where more attention can be given to the improvement of the teas after being harvested. To this end a number of physiological and chemical studies have been made of the product at different stages with a view to improving methods of curing and increasing the flavors and aromas of the teas. The new methods and apparatus introduced by Dr. Charles U. Shepard, and used in the manufacture of green teas, have proved most satisfactory. Experiments have been carried on quite successfully in the preparation of tea tablets. These tablets are prepared in a special machine of great power, the result being a firm, polished product which readily falls apart in boiling water. Improvements have been made in the matter of polishing and finishing the teas, all of which will add value to the American product. Despite the fact that the season has been a very unsatisfactory one for a number of reasons, the yield of tea will probably approximate 9,000 pounds, or about what was raised last year. A favorable season would have given a much larger production.

"At Pierce, Tex., co-operative arrangements have been made with Mr. A. P. Borden, who has placed at the disposal of the Department a large tract of land suitable for tea growing, and has arranged to provide buildings and a portion of the labor. The Department has an experienced man located at this station and is making preparations to put out at least 50 acres of tea the present Autumn. It is planned to set out at Pierce at least 100 acres and extend the plantation as the funds permit. The labor question plays an important part in this work, but it is believed that conditions are such in Southern Texas that proper labor can be secured without difficulty. Altogether, the tea investigations are in quite a satisfactory condition."

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Milling of the Wheat.

NO stone is being left unturned by the Minneapolis millers to secure for themselves the grinding of our Canadian wheat en route for the European markets. The latest step is the introduction of an act in Congress to so amend the law relating to the milling of wheat in bond, that bran and shorts may be taken out of the bonded mills and sold for local consumption by paying the ordinary duty had these by-products been imported from the country which produced the wheat. It is argued that the bran and shorts would greatly encourage stock-raising in the vicinity of the mills, while the flour would not come in competition with the home-grown article in the local market.

There can be no doubt that such an arrangement would be very advantageous to the United States, but, for the same identical reasons it would be advantageous to Canada to retain our wheat at home and mill it here. "The Grocer" has often in the past urged a more energetic development of our milling industry in order to meet the growing output of our Northwest.

Instead of sending our wheat to be ground in England, paying freight on the bran and shorts and giving the English stock-raiser the advantage of these foods, we should grind our own wheat at home. We would then retain not only the profits of raising the grain and the transportation charges, but the milling profits, and would have at the same time a vast quantity of bran and shorts that could be used to finish our stock before putting them on the British market. This alone would mean no small item, as first-class stock always bring good prices, while that which is not up to the standard is depreciated on the slightest provocation.

The Minneapolis millers already have practically a monopoly of the American Northwest flour trade. It is not to be desired that they should also secure control over the Canadian Northwest. What we need is a Minneapolis of our own.

Japan Taking Flour.

In commenting upon the fact that Minneapolis shipped to Japan in the first nine months of the present year 8,000,000 barrels of flour as compared with 307,000 barrels for the same period last year. F. W. Thomson, vice-president and managing director of The Ogilvie Flour Mills Co., stated to-day that these breadstuffs which are being shipped from United States centres are for the greater part low grade, of which Canada does not produce any great amount. Mr. Thomson went on to state that the Canadian flour trade in the Far East was comparatively small, but at the same time was eminently satisfactory for the reason that what Canadian flour was consumed in this market was of standard brands and well worthy of the country from which it came.

To Sue C. P. R.

The Grain Growers' Association of Indian Head indignant at the shortage of cars on the C.P.R. as a result of which they claim they were unable to get a single car between November 7 and November 22, have passed a resolution that the association take into consideration the advisability of having action taken in court to compel the C.P.R. to supply sufficient cars and to stand a suit for damages.

Canadian Flour in Japan.

MR. Tamura, Japanese merchant, who is visiting Ottawa, says he expects to see a large demand created in Japan for flour from Manitoba No. 1 hard wheat. At present most of the flour imported by Japan comes from the Pacific coast States of the Union. It is a softer, cheaper and whiter flour than the Canadian, but the Manitoba product is really the cheapest in the long run, because it yields more bread and contains more gluten. The Manitoba flour gives 30 pounds more of bread per 100 pounds of flour than does the American. The visit of Hon. Mr. Fisher to Japan and the exhibit of Canadian products at the Osaka Exposition, says Mr. Tamura, have done a great deal to stimulate the demand for Canadian products. Mr. Tamura himself handles Manitoba flour. Whereas formerly he imported none, he now takes regularly between 200 and 300 tons a month. He has a bakery especially for making bread from Canadian flour, which he calls the Canada Bakery. He also has deliver carts bearing the name "Canada." The millers of Canada should not be satisfied with what has been accomplished, but ought to redouble their efforts, remembering that they have a formidable competitor in the western States.

Lake Grain Shipments.

THE official returns of the wheat shipments from the ports of Fort William and Port Arthur during the Fall of the present year are issued from the office of the Dominion Grain Inspector, F. E. Gibbs. The total receipts from September 1, 1903, to December 6, 1903, were :

Wheat—Received, 16,413,372.40 bushels ; shipped, 16,023,290.50.

Oats—Received, 67,652.32 ; shipped, 127,180.08.

Barley—Received, 59,755.80 ; shipped, 31,513.36.

Flax — Received, 146,539.35 ; shipped, 152,123.54.

The excess of shipment over receipts in oats and flax is due to quantities held in store. Comparing the wheat shipments with the two previous years, we find that in 1902 during the same period there were received 20,076,970, and shipped 19,381,441 bushels, and in 1901 there were received 12,613,471 and shipped 12,817,598 bushels. Of other grains in 1902 there were received and shipped during this period as follows : Oats, received, 309,885 bushels ; shipped, 270,017. Barley, received, 45,728 ; shipped, 23,190. Flax, received, 69,154 ; shipped, 44,666.

White Clover Honey in 60-lb. tins.

Sometime ago an advertisement appeared reading: "Hoge's Horehound Honey—Wherever a bee flies within the virgin wilderness of Hoge's Canon along the banks of the river, along the bluffs and headlands and deep leafy glens, the horehound blossoms in lavish abundance. It is the work of the honey bee to gather this sweet treasure, Horehound Honey so divinely prepared, and bear it off saying: 'Eat, it is the soul of the blossom.'"

New Steamer for Grain Trade.

THE CANADIAN TRANSIT CO. have published in London their prospectus inviting stock subscriptions to the extent of £300,000, of which £165,000 consists of one pound ordinary shares and £135,000 of five per cent. first mortgage debenture gold bonds of £20 each, secured upon the company's fleet.

The company have made a contract with The New Canadian Co., Limited, for the supply of a fleet of 12 new specially designed vessels for the grain-carrying trade between the Great Lakes and Montreal, at a price of £275,000, also for working capital up to £25,000. The New Canadian Co. are receiving £165,000 in ordinary shares and £135,000 of The Canadian Transit Co.'s bonds to be delivered within seven months.

With the prospectus are published letters from Hon. Raymond Prefontaine, Minister of Marine, and Mr. Hugh Allan, indicating the excellent prospects of success in inland transportation. The directors are: John Torrance, Robert Bickerdike, Alphonse Racine, all of Montreal; Charles Carpenter, director of The New Canadian Co.; and Joseph Mellowes, of London. The issue is made through the London City Midland Bank.

Breadstuffs in Trinidad.

Gordon Grant & Co., writing from Port of Spain, Trinidad, November 18, says:

Breadstuffs.—The New York trading steamers Piedmonte and Maraval have both arrived since last mail with assorted cargoes. The demand for flour, which has been restricted of late, is now beginning to improve, which will afford some relief to the overstocked market. The price of bakers' is maintained, but both No. 1 and No. 2 extras are being sold at about cost of importation, holders at this dull season being afraid of deterioration on account of the excessive heat we are experiencing.

U. S. Winter Wheat Area.

Returns to the chief of the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture indicate that the newly seeded area of Winter wheat is about 32,000,000 acres, a decrease of 6 per cent. from the area estimated to have been in the Fall of 1902. The condition of Winter wheat on December 1 was 86.6, as compared with 99.7 in 1902, 86.7 in 1901 and a nine-year average of 92.7.

The newly seeded area of Winter rye is provisionally estimated at 98. per cent. of the area sown in the Fall of 1902. The condition of Winter rye on December 1 was 92.7, as compared with 98.1 on December 1, 1902; 89.9 December 1, 1901; and 96.6, the mean of the averages for the last nine years.

Wheat Marketed.

A circular issued by the Manitoba and North-West Grain Dealers' Association, estimates that 25,654,522 bushels of this year's wheat crop have been marketed to December 1. After allowing for the quantity required for seed, it is estimated that 10,536,452 bushels remain to come from farmers' granaries.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by W. Arthur Lydiatt, TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

"The Man Who Persistently Talks Quality Usually Makes More Money Than The Man Who Cuts Prices."

THERE were four lots of ads. sent in for the Advertising Competition during November, and of an average better class than those which were entered during the preceding month.

J. A. McCrea, of Guelph, sent in a half dozen good ads., and as any one of them is considered better than any other ad. sent in, the prize for November goes to him.

As this is a very busy time of year, with every moment of time fully occupied in every retail store, it is considered advisable to discontinue the competition for the present.

Three of the ads. sent in by Mr. McCrea are reproduced herewith, and ads. sent in by other contestants will be commented on later.

Ad. number 1, on Russian Caravan Tea, might be improved by telling why the points mentioned make it superior to other teas. Few people have ever heard of the famous Ancoombra Gardens—it is doubtful if anyone outside of the tea trade has ever heard of them—and very few people have any idea what makes Ceylon tea superior to the products of other countries (if it is.)

It is not desirable to string the story out too long—it would be an improvement to make it a little shorter than it now is. But I understand from Mr. McCrea's letter that this is a new brand of tea he is pushing. In some particulars it is likely to be superior to other teas which he handles, so that to mention these points in a way that would be understood by those who are not "tea connoiseurs" would be calculated to excite more interest.

People prefer one tea over another because of the taste. Most of them don't know why one tea should taste any better than another, so that if it were possible to explain briefly why one blend makes a better-tasting cup of tea than another, such an ad. would, I think, bring the best results. Sampling and demonstrations really afford the best means of introducing a new blend of tea, but it is usually desirable to also create an interest in it through other forms of advertising.

Some interesting paragraphs about tea appear in a copy of a store paper which has come to hand, and on which I intend to make comment in some future issue. While no essential points of excellence are mentioned, the talk is such as is calculated to encourage interest in the teas handled by the advertiser:

Are You a Tea Connoiseur?

If so, we would like to draw your attention to.

a 50c. pure, black Ceylon. It is cultivated, cured, and sealed in air tight lead packets on the famous Ancoombra Garden, Ceylon. We believe it to be the finest black tea selling at 50c per lb to-day, and if you will follow the directions given below, you will be delighted with its delicate, fragrant aroma, and its refined delicious flavor

To Brew Successfully.

To obtain the true purity and essence of the leaf, two pots should be used, and it is also of first importance that the water should be fresh boiled. The following instructions will then be sufficient to secure a perfect cup.

"First, well warm the tea-pot,

"Then, add the required amount of tea, calculating one teaspoonful for each cup required.

"Then, pour on the full quantity of water required, making sure it has reached the boiling point,

"Then, stand in a warm place for five to eight minutes to infuse,

"Then, pour the whole contents in a well-warmed pot, and a delightful, refreshing and fragrant liquor will be the result."

Our Teas Are Talked About.

"My, what a delicious cup of tea," said Mrs. So-and-so at a small supper-party recently. "How do you make it—or rather, where do you get it?" was naturally the next question.

"Oh, I always get my tea at Meyers' Grocery," came the reply. "One can't make a good cup of tea unless the tea itself is good. Of course, we are very particular about our tea—like most English folks—but what we get at Meyers' always suits our taste—in fact, we all think it is simply delicious."

The result of this conversation was that we secured another tea customer. The new customer is pleased, too, because she has at last found a blend of tea that is "just right."

Naturally among all our customers there is a variety of tastes to suit, but all the different varieties we handle are so good, that when we strike a blend to suit some particular customer it cannot help but be best.

There is one blend, however, that suits nearly all of our customers, and that is one which is the result of a lot of experimenting with the local water. It is the kind of tea that whets the appetite and creates a desire for more.

A finer flavored, more wholesome tea cannot be secured anywhere. If you'll ask for the Meyers' Blend Ceylon Tea—that's a name we give it—it is likely you will find it is "just what you've been looking for." 40c. a pound.

We have other blends at higher and lower prices, so if you'll give us an idea what blend you like best, you'll find we will be able to suit you in every particular.

Some like the green Japan tea best, and for these we have a fine grade of young Hyson which has a peculiarly fine touch and flavor to it.

The idea in the No. 1 ad. of suggesting the proper method of brewing is a good one. The suggestion of proper methods for the preparation of food and drink appeals to me as being a very fruitful source from which a grocer can get many very effective ads.

The other ads. are also interesting. No. 2 illustrates an argument mentioned in these columns recently with reference to introducing price lists with some remarks calculated to excite interest in the items priced. No. 3 is an example of a number of fairly good coffee ads. which have been instrumental in securing for Mr. McCrea an enormous local trade in good coffee.

Cuban Tobacco Crops.

RELIABLE data as to the size of the Cuban tobacco crops in the first half of the 19th century are not obtainable. Pezuela reports the average exports from 1813 to 1826 to have been 7,000,000 pounds, yet the crop of 1827 is given as 12,500,000 pounds, while exports in 1841 he reports to have been only 5,750,000 pounds of leaf tobacco and 150,836 pounds manufactured. In 1845 he reports exports of leaf 7,200,000 pounds and 1,022,525 pounds manufactured tobacco, while he gives the crop of 1846 as 25,000,000 pounds and that of 1858 as 40,000,000 pounds. The largest crop ever made in Cuba, amounting to 560,000 bales, or about 62,000,000 pounds, was harvested in 1895 and was valued at $22,000,000. Something over 60 per cent. of this crop was exported, the remainder being retained for home consumption and manufacture. According to government reports the crop of 1897 amounted to 375,000 bales of 110 pounds each, while that of 1898 is given as only 88,000 bales. The government reports and those of the Tobacco Manufacturers' Union do not agree as to the size of the crops of 1899 and 1900, being given as 220,000 and 460,000 bales and 280,000 and 434,514 bales, respectively. The crop of 1901 amounted to 420,972 bales and that of 1902 was 398,844 bales. The crop of 1903, already harvested and cured, is said to be less than 300,000 bales, due to excessive rains during the growing and harvest season.

Rules for Smokers.

Dr. Gaze writes in The Berlin Revue that a man can smoke without doing himself the slightest harm by following eight rules.

1. Smoke only mild cigars.
2. Smoke only good cigars.
3. Never smoke the last half of a cigar or the end of a cigarette.
4. Never relight a cigar.
5. Do not sit in a cloud of tobacco smoke.
6. Do not chew the end of your cigar.
7. Use a cigar holder.
8. Use a long-stemmed pipe.

(The above may be utilized for advertising purposes by adding : "And smoke only the —— cigar.")

Tobacco Monopoly in France.

THE state tobacco monopoly in France was established in 1811, and since that time the manufacture and sale of tobacco, as well as its cultivation, have been regulated with the greatest care. The gross amount received by the state from the sale of tobacco in its various forms is 414,000,000 francs yearly, representing a net profit of 330,000,000 francs. The greater part of the tobacco used is grown in France, and, although the regulations under which it may be cultivated are very strict, permits to be allowed to grow tobacco are in great demand.

In 25 departments in France there are 56,000 planters, and an area of 16,000 hectares, or 40,000 acres, is under cultivation. In 1902 the quantity of home-grown tobacco purchased by the administration was 25,000,000 kilograms, at a cost of 23,000,000 francs, or 89c. per kilo. This would represent a gross income of 1,400 francs per hectare—say £22 8s. per acre—which is only equalled by vine growing; hence the demand for permission to grow tobacco.

Sixty per cent. of the French tobacco crop is grown in five departments, viz.: Dordogne, with over 4,000,000 kilos; Lot and Garonne, Isere, Gironde and Lot each produce from 2,000,000 to 4,000,000 kilos. In Algeria the cultivation of tobacco is free, and considerable quantities are exported to France, which also buys from Maryland, Kentucky, Ohio and Virginia.

Supplies of choice tobacco are obtained from Havana, Mexico, Sumatra, Java and Brazil. Foreign cigars to the extent of about 11,000,000, at an average value of 220 francs per 1,000, cigarettes and tobacco are also imported from America, Turkey and Great Britain.

The total of French purchases of foreign tobacco is 19,000,000 kilos, of an aggregate value of 30,000,000 francs. The sales in 1901 were as follows: Cigars, 2,600,000 kilos; cigarettes, 1,846,000 kilos; cut tobacco, 27,873,000 kilos; hard tobacco, 1,084,000 kilos; snuff, 485,000 kilos.

Varieties of Cuban Tobacco.

IN Cuba tobacco seeds are sown in nurseries in the month of September and are transplated when several inches high, six to seven weeks later. The plant matures in about four months after the sowing of the seed. The greatest care is used in its cultivation, especially in keeping it free from worms. There are five general classifications of Cuban tobacco, viz.: Vuelta Abajo, Semi-vuelta, Partidos, Remedios and Cuba. Vuelta Abajo tobacco, which is the choicest grown in the island and has made the Havana cigar famous the world over, is grown in the hilly region of Pinar del Rio Province, extending from Consolacion del Sur to Guano. Semi-vuelta is grown in a district extending from Candelaria, in the same province, to Herradura, and is second in quality. Partidos, which is next in quality, is grown in the Province of Havana and that small portion of Pinar del Rio west of Artemisaf Remedios tobacco, the crop of which is second in size to that of Vuelta Abajo, is that grown in the Province of Santa Clara, and Cuba is the name given to the tobacco raised in the Province of Santiago de Cuba. According to the census if 1899 in the Province of Pinar del Rio about 59,000 acres were devoted to the cultivation of tobacco, 10,600 in the Province of Havana, 10,800 in Santa Clara, 1,100 in Santiago, and a little over 5,600 in the Provinces of Matanzas and Puerto Principe. The same census and other statistics prior to 1899 showed the number of persons engaged in the cultivation of tobacco to be about 80,000.

Brazilian Tobacco.

According to the report of the English consul at Bahia, Brazil, tobacco is the most important article of export. The exports last year of tobacco amounted to £1,024,856 ($4,991,000), which is about half of the total. The greater part of this is shipped to Bremen and Hamburg, Germany, being her best customer.

A Suicide Tournament.

"In Alden, Ia., according to a local paper, users of chewing tobacco have been holding a tournament to determine which brand is easiest to commit suicide with," and adds: "The merchants have got into the habit of pulling off all the tags and keeping them to get sewing machines and shot guns with, so the customer never really knows just what kind he is getting until he finds what particular way it makes him sick."

Cigar Means Betrothal.

In Siam the lighting of a cigar may indicate a betrothal. A man offers the girl of his choice a flower, or takes a light from a cigar or cigarette, if she happens to be indulging at the time. This action is construed to mean willingness on both sides, and steps are at once taken to arrange for the payment of the dowry. The families of both bride and bridegroom must each provide a considerable sum for the newly mated pair.

In Calabria, as in many parts of India, a lighted taper or a lighted pipe betokens the acceptance of a suitor.

In Siberia it is customery for the girl to present her suitor with a box of cigars as a sign that he is to be master of the house.

It is fitted with the very best British Plate Glass THROUGHOUT, including the mirrors in the doors and the shelves, in short, it is the MOST EXQUISITE and most UP-TO-DATE floor case on the market anywhere in the world to-day.

A large number of Grocers throughout the Dominion are now handling cigars as a special branch and ARE doing WELL with them. Are YOU right in line with these progressive and wide-awake men? If not, YOU OUGHT TO BE. If you desire to fall in the ranks by taking up this GOOD PAYING side-line you cannot do better than consult us about the very best and most modern display cases made especially for that line of business. In order to make a good display of, and to keep your cigars right it is necessary to have a first-class case of OUR manufacture. We turn out nothing but the very best goods, and our prices ARE REASONABLE for such goods.

The W. H. Steele Co., wholesale tobacconists, Toronto, speak of their Christmas trade as being greatly in excess of previous seasons, the inquiry for the better class of goods being particularly noticeable.

A traveller who recently returned from the Province of Quebec, in referring to the town of Granby, says that the Payne cigar factory has all the business it can possibly attend to, their output continuing to show a steady increase.

T. J. Fair & Co., cigar manufacturers, Brantford, purpose making extensive additions to their factory, the present one being entirely too small for the requirements of their rapidly increasing trade. The demand for the "Lord Roberts" cigar during the past year has been simply great, the inquiry in the Northwest Provinces being especially satisfactory.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

Proceedings at the Eighty-Sixth Annual Meeting.

A SATISFACTORY REPORT.

Hon. Geo. A. Drummond Touches on General Trade of Country Which Has Been Prosperous—Election of Directors.

THE eighty-sixth annual meeting of the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal was held in that institution at noon yesterday.

There were present: Hon. George A. Drummond, Vice-President; Sir William C. Macdonald, Hon. Robert Mackay, Messrs. R. B. Angus, A. T. Paterson, E. B. Greenshields, R. G. Reid, Charles Alexander, E. K. Greene, G. F. C. Smith, A. T. Taylor, Hon. J. K. Ward, Donald Macmaster, K.C., C. J. Fleet, K.C.: F. S. Lyman, K.C.; Henry Dobell, Angus Hooper, Richard White, Thomas Gilmour, James Tasker, James Moore, Geo. Hague, B. A. Boas, James Croil, D. Forbes Angus, George Filer, R. H. Clerk, John Molson, John Taylor, H. Macdongall, Robert Archer, Hugh Cameron, W. D. Gillean Robert Hampson, H. M. Foley, W. Howard, W. H. Evans, Fraquhar McLennan, H. J. O'Heir, Alfred Piddington, J. J. Robertson and John Morrison.

On the motion of Mr. John Morrison, Hon. George A. Drummond, Vice-President, was unanimously voted to the chair, in the absence of the President, Rt.-Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal.

Mr. B. A. Boas moved, seconded by Mr. Henry Dobell: "That the following gentlemen be appointed to act as scrutineers: Messrs. F. S. Lyman, K.C., and G. F. C. Smith; and that Mr. James Aird be secretary of the meeting."

DIRECTORS' REPORT.

The report of the directors to the shareholders at their eighty-sixth annual general meeting was then read by Mr. A. Macnider, acting-general manager, as follows:

The directors have pleasure in presenting the report, showing the result of the bank's business for the period from 30th April to 31st October, 1903, in accordance with resolution at the special general meeting held 7th January, 1903:

Balance of Profit and Loss Account, 30th April, 1903	$ 724,807.75
Profits for the half-year ended 31st October, 1903, after deducting charges of management, and making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts	917,156.31
Premiums received on New Stock	416,024.00
	2,057,988.06
Dividend 5 p.c., payable 1st December, 1903	684,000.00
Amount transferred to Rest Account	1,000,000.00
Balance of Profit and Loss carried forward	$ 373,988.06

Since the last annual meeting of the shareholders, branches of the bank have been opened at Edmonton, Alta., Indian Head, Assa., and Brandon and Gretna, Man., and a branch at Sherman avenue, Hamilton, has been arranged for, to be opened on the 1st December, 1903.

The bank also established a branch at Yarmouth, N.S., through the purchase of the business and premises of The Exchange Bank of Yarmouth.

The bank is at present erecting premises for the branches at Edmonton, Alta., and Birchy Cove, Newfoundland, and has acquired properties on the corner of St. Catharine street and Papineau road, Montreal, and the corner of Greene and Western avenues, Westmount, where premises are being erected for the occupation of branches to be established at those points.

The bank has also, since last annual meeting, gone into occupation of the new premises on Craig street, Montreal, and the reconstruction of the St. James street building is proceeding satisfactorily.

With deep regret the directors have to record the death of their esteemed colleague, Mr. A. F. Gault, who had been a member of the board for upwards of ten years.

The vacancy on the board has been filled by the election of the Hon. Robert Mackay.

It has been thought desirable to provide an assistant to the general manager, and Mr. H. V. Meredith has been appointed to the position of assistant general manager, retaining also the position of manager at Montreal.

The issue of $2,000,000 new capital stock authorized at the special general meeting of 7th January last, has been all subscribed for, and all taken up with the exception of $12,660, which will be paid up on the 23rd December, making the capital stock, all paid $14,000,000.

The head office and a number of the branches have been inspected since the meeting last June. All the branches will be inspected, and reported on at next meeting.

STRATHCONA AND MOUNT ROYAL,
President.

Bank of Montreal, head office, 31st October, 1903.

THE CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

Hon. George A. Drummond then said:

The statements now presented show clearly the position of the Bank, and will, I feel assured be accepted as satisfactory.

In Montreal the new banking room in the rear has been occupied, and, giving as it does, ample and convenient accommodation to the public and the staff, has proved most satisfactory.

The old building has long been outgrown by the business of the Bank, which was being carried on in it under crowded and most unsanitary conditions.

The reconstruction of the old building in modern fireproof manner is now proceeding, the original facade alone remaining, and when finished the premises of the Bank in this city will no doubt be accepted as creditable alike to the architects, the bank and the city.

It may be mentioned that the original building, fronting the square, was first occupied in 1847, at which period the liabilities of the Bank to the public were $3,660,000, as compared with $93,534,000 at present, figures giving some indication of the expansion of the Bank's business and the accommodation required.

Turning to general questions, the most striking event of the year has been the serious decline in the market for securities.

Primarily, this has been the result of over production of stock certificates, bonds, debentures and all marketable securities, in some cases the necessary consequence of great industrial activity, but in others due to excessive capitalization, the disclosures of which excited public distrust.

It is to be noted that such cases have been rare in Canada, but we have by no means been exempt from the consequences.

Notwithstanding these drawbacks, which have made the receipts of wholesale houses occasionally slower than usual, the general trade of the country has been prosperous, as the following summary will indicate:

Dry goods—"An unusually good year."

Wool—"A good demand at good prices."

Iron and hardware—"An excellent year's business at fairly remunerative returns, equalling those of any former year."

Leather exports—"An increase of late at prices netting shippers good returns."

Boots and shoes—"A very good year's trade."

Grocery—"A satisfactory year's business, materially greater than last year."

Lumber—"A very satisfactory year, at prices 10 to 15 per cent. higher than last year."

Cheese—"The most profitable for years."

Summarising the figures approximately they stand thus:

Exports of lumber	$ 33,000,000
Exports of butter and cheese	27,000,000
Exports of bacon, hams, eggs, poultry	16,000,000
Exports of grain of all kinds	28,000,000
Exports of flour and meal	7,500,000
Exports of live stock	12,500,000
	$ 124,000,000

And it will be noted a large proportion of the year's crop has yet to come forward.

The opening of the trade with South Africa promises well. Already an extensive trade in flour, meal, lard, meats, canned goods and lumber has been established.

As regards the business of the port of Montreal, very full information is already in the hands of the public, and it need only be stated that the tonnage visiting the port shows a steady increase over the past three years, the excess being 41 vessels and 350,662 tons for 1903 over 1902.

The abolition of tolls on our canals has been effective in increasing the business of the port, the exports of wheat for the season from Montreal being larger than from New York; nevertheless, our grain exports are below the figures for 1896 and 1899.

The cattle exports for the past season show a very great increase over any previous year.

The rapid development of the Northwest Territory, and the consequent increase in exportable produce, is amongst the most important of recent events. During the past sixteen months the Canadian Pacific Railway has sold for settlement over three millions acres of wild lands; add to this the sales by the Government and private holders, and the aggregate must reach into large figures. It is known that at least 115,000 immigrants have entered these territories since the 1st of January last.

If disposed to attempt a forecast, which I have no intention of doing, it would undoubtedly be necessary to give weight to the great factors already alluded to. The prosperity of our farmers, the wealth pouring into territories only recently a barren waste, the full employment of labour of all kinds at high wages, and the great industrial activitv caused by the establishment of many branches of manufactures; but I should also be compelled to enforce the counsels of prudence and economy.

I have much pleasure in moving:

"That the report of the Directors now read be adopted and printed for distribution among the Shareholders."

This was seconded by Mr. A. T. Paterson, and was carried unanimously.

THANKS ARE TENDERED.

Mr. Donald Macmaster moved:

"That the thanks of the meeting be presented to the President, Vice-President and Directors for their attention to the interests of the Bank."

Mr. Angus Hooper seconded the motion, which yas unanimously agreed to.

The Chairman—In the absence of Lord Strathcona, and in the name of my brother directors, I beg to express sincere thanks for the honour done us.

Mr. R. B. Angus—I beg to move:

"That the thanks of the meeting be given to the General Manager, Assistant General Manager, the Inspector, Manager of other offices of the Bank, for their services during the past year."

The ability, integrity and zeal with which the officers of the Bank have displayed deserve this recognition at our hands. It is a matter of regret to us all that the General Manager is at present absent, having been detained in England by business matters, and also by a slight indisposition. But he is now well, and will be here in a few days.

The motion was seconded by Mr. R. G. Reid, and was carried unanimously.

Mr. H. V. Meredith, Assistant General Manager, said: I regret that the General Manager, whose duty and pleasure it is to reply to this resolution, is not in his place to-dav. He is, as Mr. Angus has said, detained in London undergoing treatment for an ailment, which we are all glad to know is not a serious one, and we expect to have him back with us in the course of a few days, I am aware the vote of thanks to the staff, which you have been good enough to pass, is to a large extent one of form and usage. At the same time I feel that the words of appreciation and confidence which the mover of this resolution has used, coming as they do, from one of our old and most successful General Managers, must prove an incentive, were incentive wanting, to greater exertions in obtaining the best possible results for your investment, and at the same time safeguarding the large responsibilities you have confided to our care.

Mr. A. Macnider, Acting General Manager, returned thanks, on behalf of the other members of the staff, for the kind words of appreciation that had been spoken.

Mr. George Hague moved, seconded by Mr. A. T. Taylor:

"That the ballot now open for the election of Directors be kept open until 2 o'clock, unless fifteen minutes elapse without a vote being cast, when it shall be closed, and until that time and for that purpose only this meeting be continued."

This was unanimously concurred in, and a hearty vote of thanks was then accorded the chairman, who acknowledged the same.

THE DIRECTORS.

The ballot resulted in the election of the following directors:

R. B. Angus, Esq.
Hon. George A. Drummond.
E. B. Greenshields, Esq.
Sir William C. Macdonald.
Hon. Robert Mackay.
A. T. Paterson, Esq.
R. G. Reid, Esq.
James Ross, Esq.
Rt. Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G.C.M.G.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held the following day, Lord Strathcona was chosen President and Hon. Geo. E. Drummond as Vice-President.

ARGUMENT.

We now offer a practical time piece for the Grocery Trade of Canada, and base our statement upon the following:

First—It is absolutely guaranteed to keep accurate time.

Second—It stands rough usage and does not get out of order easily, making it the only watch for dealers outside of the jewelery trade to handle, and also making it a practical one for sportsmen, boys and all men who give a watch hard usage.

Third—Its low price and high quality insure a tremendous sale, which we further augment by furnishing many handsome advertising devices for your store.

Fourth—Last but not least, these watches offer a handsome profit. Price cutters are not supplied.

Sold by several leading Grocery Jobbers of Canada. We will tell you who they are upon request.

Trial Offer—To any Grocery Dealer who will write to us upon his business letter head and inclose 75c. we will send a sample watch (duty not paid) and our catalogue, so that he can test its accuracy and durability.

The Toledo Automatic Computing Scale SHOWS to EVERY CUSTOMER in LARGE INDICATIONS the EXACT WEIGHT they get. If you use a Cash Register you place it where the customer MUST SEE the INDICATIONS. This is for YOUR PROTECTION. Take OFF these INDICATIONS and you would consider the Register VALUELESS. The indications on a Toledo Scale PROTECT you from over and DOWN WEIGHT and IMPRESS your CUSTOMERS with YOUR HONEST PRINCIPLES. The CUSTOMER feels that he is PROTECTED when he buys goods over a TOLEDO SCALE, consequently it is a TRADE BRINGER. The customer values the GOODS he buys from you MORE THAN THE MONEY he hands you, otherwise he would not EXCHANGE the MONEY FOR the GOODS he gets. You are CAREFUL to count his CHANGE OUT CORRECTLY, and in plain view, why not use a Scale that COUNTS OUT the WEIGHT, it being to the customer of more VALUE than the MONEY he trades for the goods?

IMPRESSIONS OF THE GREAT WEST

By W. L. E.

WHEN we took the steamer at Nelson for our trip down the Kootenay lakes a day had elapsed since we landed at Robson at the foot of the Arrowhead lakes. The morning was dull, but the rain had ceased. The Kootenay lakes, as their name implies, was a widening out of the Kootenay river, and, as on the Arrowhead lakes, are walled in on either side by towering mountains, most of which are snow-capped. At their widest part they are about four or five miles wide, and one would think that it would be impossible for heavy seas to arise upon them, but the crew in our steamer, the Movie, informed us that there were occasions on which the waves became quite tempestuous and of dangerous force. Indeed, we had one slight experience of the suddenness with which storms come, and some idea of their force. In one of the illustrations in this issue is a snapshot I took of a storm as it was approaching us, and was taken a few moments after the other, showing the lake in sunshine. When the storm was upon us one could not see either shore, and the choppy sea soon drove us all into the interior of the boat; but it was soon over and soon forgotten. When it is remembered that the Kootenay lakes stretch for about 100 miles between a wall of mountains on either side, one has not to search far in order to find an explanation for the suddenness and the fierceness of the storms which are sometimes encountered upon them.

The four blue-grey walls of the sky line are the fences one commonly sees in mid-prairie. A fence of the orthodox eastern type is a rare thing indeed. It is nothing to travel all day and fail to see one. Those that we saw were marked by the scanty supply of wood that went to construct them. Here and there a substantial post was supporting the strings of wire, while between these at equal distances, were sticks about the size of broom handles driven into the ground to aid in strengthening the fence. Nature has been liberal in her bestowal of everything else but the material from which timber can be made. There is land to grow wheat and meat upon it enough to supply Europe; coal lands by the thousands of square miles; ozone to fill and expand the lungs of many millions of people, and water enough to quench their thirst and water their cattle and their crops, but scarcely a stick to burn, much less with which to build fences. I am speaking, of course, of the prairie land which comes within our range of vision as we speed along in the train. Away to the north, beyond the present fringe of civilization, Nature has not withheld her hand in this respect, and from the foothills westward to the Pacific, trees are relatively almost as thick as grass is on the prairies, while meeting our astonished eyes as we emerge from the 500 mile journey through the Rockies are the cedars and pine trees, many of which penetrate into the "blue" one and two hundred feet, with a girth at the base, in some instances, large enough to enclose a moderate sized room. But while the Rockies can boast of their trees, the great plains beyond them to the east have their No. 1 hard, their herds of rugged, healthy cattle; their bunches of sturdy horses. The one is thus able to supply what the other requires but does not produce, at any rate only to a limited extent. Nature was not without foresight when she rolled out by the thousand square miles the rich prairie land between Winnipeg and the foothills of the Rockies, and built up to the West as far as the shores of the Pacific towering mountains, on whose slopes she planted wealth of timber and in whose interior she hid untold mineral wealth.

Twilight lingers long in the Great West. A lengthy twilight is pleasant under all circumstances; but it is particularly so when one is travelling in a strange land and desires as much time as possible for sight-seeing. To a Canadian whose home is in Ontario or Quebec, the experience of an evening on the prairie is delightfully surprising. "My, how long it takes to get dark!" was an ejaculation that one often heard from a fellow-passenger. The length of the twilight was particularly impressed upon me on the evening we stopped at Lethbridge for a couple of hours to witness a cattle rounding-up contest, horse races with Indians mounted bareback, and exhibitions of bucking bronchos. Evening was well upon us when we stepped from the train and hurried nearly two miles across the prairie to the scene of the sports. We watched for nearly an hour the various events which were provided for our entertainment, but darkness was not really upon us till our train was reached. That return walk across the prairie there is one at least in the party who will not forget. The light was too faint to allow objects to be clearly discerned upon the prairie, but there was a gread deal of grey light still left in the sky, and it was a picturesque and amusing sight to see the heads of the scores of "broncho busters" and cowboys bobbing into view above the sky line as they rode along on their cantering ponies unmindful of the gopher holes that abounded. But bronchos have the faculty of evading gopher holes in darkness as well as in daylight ; and even when a layer of snow covers the prairie.

Speaking of twilights reminds me of sunsets on the prairies. I do not know that they are any more beautiful than the sunsets of Eastern Canada, but they are different, particularly when the Rocky Mountains present themselves as a background. The sunsets, like the twilights, linger longer. The sun dances down behind clouds and mountain peaks just as quickly as he does behind clouds and commonplace hills in the east ; but the light he leaves in his wake does not go out as quickly. It just stays there as if magnanimously bent on giving us tenderfoots from the east our money's worth of beauty. And as if the mountain peaks were not high enough and glorious enough for the setting of the picture, fleecy clouds are piled up one upon another, until one has to look twice before being satisfied where the snow-capped peaks of the mountains end and the fleecy clouds begin. And even then one would hesitate to take an affidavit as to the exact line of demarcation. The majesty and beauty of the scene is too awe-inspiring to run the risk of even an unintentional equivocation. Late in the afternoon of the day we emerged from the Rocky Mountains at the Crow's Nest Pass the sun was getting low behind what is indicated in the guide books as Cathedral Peak. No one needed to be told it was Cathetral Peak. It was possibly a hundred or more miles from us, but the outline of a massive cathedral was so well defined that some of our fellow travellers who had never ever heard the mountain's name, remarked how closely it resembled a cathedral. There was no sunset in all our journey of 7,000 miles that so impressed itself upon my memory. It was magnificent, and seemed more supernatural than real.

IMPORTATION OF TEA.

At the suggestion of Mr. P. C. Larkin, of The Salada Tea Co., Mr. George Johnson, statistician of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, has prepared a table showing the amount of tea imported into Canada since 1893. The table is as follows :

Year.	Dutiable Lbs.	Free Lbs.
1893.....	567,306	17,480,548
1894.....	1,444,805	19,106,934

A WORD FROM JAPAN.

THE GROCER has received from Mr. Andrew R. Tufts a souvenir post card showing a partial view of the Osaka Exhibition Grounds. The effect is very pleasing, indeed. The card was dated Osaka, Japan, October 10.

ANTIGUA SUGAR.

The Dominion Department of Trade and Commerce has received a report from Agent Bryson, of St. Johns, Antigua, stating that arrangements have been completed between the government of the island and a firm in London for the erection of a large central sugar factory, to be operated by a vacuum pan and centrifugal process of the most modern type, with a capacity of 3,000 tons of crystals per annum. Up to this time Antigue sugar producers have followed the old Muscovado process, and it is hoped the new departure will give a great impetus to the sugar industry of the island.

SUGAR BEETS VS. WHEAT.

"Mr. S. S. Detweiler," says The Berlin News-Record, "has made the following comparisons of profits in growing wheat and sugar beets :

"Cost of growing one acre sugar beets : Manure, 10 loads per acre, at $1, allowing one half to be utilized by preceding crop, thus making $5; Fall preparation of land, $2; Spring preparation of land, $1; seed, $2; seeding, 30c.; cultivating four times, $1.60; blocking and thinning, $5; second hoeing, $2; lifting with team, 75c.; pulling and topping, $5; delivering 10 tons 5 miles, $7.50. Total, $32.15.

LAING'S CREAM SAUCE.

W. G. Patrick & Co., Toronto, are putting on the market a new line in Dr. Laing's cream sauce. This sauce was compounded after several years experiment, and combines pure Devonshire cream and rich grape juice as its principal ingredients. It is handsomely put up in 10-oz. bottles, to retail at 25c., and gives, at this price, a good margin to the retailer.

F. X. Brassard, general merchant, Amqui, has made an assignment and G. Lafaivre has been appointed provisional guardian.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Poultry For Cold Storage.

THIS is the cold storage season for poultry, and especially for turkeys, says The National Provisioner. Between this date and the middle of January great quantities will find their way into the freezers. As to the preparation of the bird for the freezers, it will not be amiss at this time to give the result of experiments which have been made to determine the most approved and satisfactory method in getting the bird ready to be frozen.

Only the finest stock should be selected. The birds should be dry picked.

If the stock is to be packed it must be absolutely dry and cold when placed in the cases.

Where outside temperature is low enough, the best results are obtained by the natural freezing, but care must be taken that the birds are protected from the wind during the process. In localities and at seasons where natural cold cannot be used the stock may be put directly into the freezing room of the cold store and frozen either singly or packed in cases.

Cases should be made of well-seasoned planed lumber, 1 inch thick.

For old tom turkeys the size of the case is 36 x 22 x 18 inches, and for young toms 36 x 22 x 15 inches.

For geese, ducks and chickens the size is 30 x 20 and about 10 inches, or deep enough to allow for two layers. These boxes should be of ⅝-inch lumber.

Two layers should be packed in each case. Turkeys with backs up and legs outstretched, old toms, young toms and hens should be packed separately. Never pack old and young in the same case.

Geese, ducks and chickens should have the breast down on the bottom layer and up on the top layer. Each case should be plainly marked on the outside with a description of its contents.

When stock is frozen outdoors in cases and the temperature is below zero, the cases may be filled at once, but if above zero only one layer will be frozen at a time. No packing material should be used. When frozen solid the stock should be immediately placed in cold storage.

When the poultry is to be frozen in cold storage, the cases may be filled and placed in the freezer, but a slat in the side of the box should be left off until the stock is frozen; the lower the temperature and quicker the freezing the better the result.

In cold storage the cases should be separated so as to allow a free circulation of air.

Excellent results in freezing the poultry have been found by putting birds separately into the coolers and then packing after it is frozen. In some instances it is frozen. In some instances it is not packed until ready for market, when it may be shipped in straw if the weather is cold enough. In handling large lots which must be sent long distances and then be placed in cold storage, it has been found to be better to pack the goods in cases before freezing.

A Well Provisioned City.

Chicago is always in the face of strikes. The city is in a state of siege all the time from an industrial and labor point of view, and is well provisioned, says The National Provisioner. Chicago could not be starved out in months. The daily food supply on hand in that city averages about as follows:

Daily milk supply (gallons)	200,000
Meat and game in cold storage (lbs)	20,000,000
Fish in cold storage (lbs)	3,000,000
Flour in storage (barrels)	2,000,000
Butter in cold storage (lbs)	18,000,000
Eggs in cold storage (dozens)	12,000,000
Fruit and vegetables in cold storage (lbs)	2,000,000

The development of cold storage plants in the city during the last decade has made it impossible to starve Chicago by strikes. The margin of 20,000,000 or more lbs. of meat on hand at any one time assures the city plenty of food in any emergency. The other edibles in cold storage are relatively as abundant. A strike would starve the worker before the other citizen felt the pangs of hunger. He might grumble a bit at the price.

Montgomery & Colquhoun, general merchants, Deloraine, will dissolve partnership January 1, 1904.

PROVISION AND DAIRY MARKETS.

TORONTO.

Provisions—Trade on the whole is quiet in these lines, as is to be expected till after the new year. Dressed hogs are somewhat firmer than a week ago, especially for light weights, probably 15 to 20 cents per cwt. up; but smoked meats are weak and lard is off from a week ago. We quote:

Long clear bacon, per lb	$0 09	$0 09½
Smoked breakfast bacon, per lb	0 13	0 13½
Roll bacon, per lb	0 10	0 10½
Medium hams, per lb	0 12½	0 13

Lamb	6 50	7 00
Veal	6 00	9 00

Butter—The market is quiet. Receipts of creamery are increasing and as a consequence prices are easier. Dairy is also coming forward in larger volume and is exhibiting a lower tendency. The closing of the cheese factories has resulted in considerably increased production of butter with the above result. We quote:

	Per lb.
Creamery prints	0 21	0 22
" solids, fresh	0 20	0 21
Dairy rolls, large	0 17	0 17½
" prints	0 18	0 19

Under qualities	0 14	0 15

Cheese—Owing probably to the late made and fodder cheese the quality of late coming on the market has not been up to the standard of September, with a resulting easier tone to the market although as no quotable change has developed. We quote:

	Per lb.
Cheese, large	0 11	0 11½
" twins	0 11½	0 11½

MONTREAL.

Provisions—There has been an improvement during the week, the lower prices tending to stimulate trade. Lard and smoked meats are in good demand. Receipts have been somewhat heavier than previous week. The pure lard market has been firm. Hog lard buyers, however, are cautious, though there is no indication of any change in the immediate future. Business is fairly good. Pure lard is quoted at 8 1-2 to 8 3-4c in pails. We quote:

Canadian short cut mess pork	$18 50	$19 00
American short cut clear	17 50	18 00
American fat back	18 00	18 50
Bacon, Wiltshire, per lb	0 13	0 13½

Butter—Stocks are still light and prices continue steady. The quality of the winter make is not quite up to the standard. Owing to cold weather the body is crumbly and the public are demanding fall makes. We quote: Winter creameries, 21c.; fall make in boxes, 22c.; prints, 23c.; winter prints, 21c. to 22c.; dairy rolls, 16 1-2c. to 17 1-2c.; dairy tubs, 15c. to 16c.

Cheese—There is said to be a good demand at present on the English market. Prices locally are unchanged. The mild, fresh make is selling at 11c. to 11 1-2c.; summer strong cheese, 12c. to 12 1-2c.

ST. JOHN, N.B.

Provisions—In fresh meats there is little change. Western beef is quite largely used. Lamb is the chief line offered. Deer and Moose meat has been very plentiful but the season is over. Poultry continues high. In pickled pork and beef, prices are quite low but the market is thought to be more firm. Lard is very low but with signs of firmer prices.

Butter—Is in quite ample supply and the large quantity of poor stock offered keeps prices down.

Eggs—Are tending higher, but prices will not yet admit of bringing down western stock.

Cheese—There is just a fair sale. Prices high and stock light.

Provisions in Trinidad.

Gordon Grant & Co., in their commercial review, dated Port of Spain, Trinidad, November 18, say:

Provisions.—The continued decline in the United States for both pork and lard makes values easier in our market, with dealers buying very cautiously. For pork loins, ribs, tails, etc., full rates are procurable. Dealers are still well stocked with their own importations of family beef bought at previous low rates, and values improve but slowly. Supplies of butter are still ample and fresh arrivals of V. A. and P. Y. have sold at $11.90 to $12, but with an upward tendency in Morlaix we should see some improvement before the end of the year. For oleomargarine there is a steady demand at quotations. The demand for cheese continues restricted, but should shortly improve again, all old landings being now nearly cleared out.

SAVE 25% on your HOUSE PAINTING.

If the grocers who intend painting their residences next Spring will follow the directions given below and wash the buildings with a solution of GOLD DUST Washing Powder, they will use one-third less paint than if they merely attempted to brush the dust off the house without washing it.

DIRECTIONS.

Dissolve one-quarter pound of GOLD DUST in a pint of water, then add the solution to 4 gallons of hot water; apply with a stiff brush, and follow with use of a hose. The stronger the hose is turned on the quicker and more effectual the work will be.

The use of less paint can be accounted for by the fact that after washing the house with GOLD DUST it leaves a smooth surface, so that the same quantity of paint will go fully one-fourth further. Furthermore, it leaves no layer of dirt between the paint and the woodwork, and, as a consequence, the paint will wear longer.

We have letters from several of our customers who used this method, and after washing their houses with GOLD DUST they were so well pleased with the appearance of them that they concluded not to paint them at all.

Retail grocers will do well to call this matter to the attention of their customers, as $3.00 worth of GOLD DUST Washing Powder will make the house look as well as the expenditure of $100.00 in re-painting it would.

Any grocer may experiment with a 5c. package of GOLD DUST by emptying the contents into 8 gallons of hot water, which should convince him that it will pay him to continue.

GOLD DUST can be used for any kind of outdoor work that needs renovating.

Railways Liable.

The inefficiency of the cold storage service on Canadian steamship lines is a side issue in an appeal heard this week at Osgoode Hall. The St. Mary's Creamery Co. shipped a consignment of butter to Manchester, England, under a through contract with The Grand Trunk Railway Co. The butter was damaged, and Chief Justice Meredith awarded them $488 damages. The railway company contended that by their contract the butter was sent at the owners' risk, but his Lordship held that by the Railway Act railway companies were precluded from contracting themselves out of liability.

Argentina's Provisions.

A CONSERVATIVE estimate of the live stock in Argentina to-day places the sheep at 110,000,000 (more than in Australia and New Zealand combined)and the cattle at 25,000,000, or two-thirds of the number of horned stock owned by the United States, the premier cattle country of the world. When the pampas, which now stands idle or unfertile, have been brought under the influence of the wire fence and the gang-plough, the Southern Republic will easily carry double its present stock, and that without calling upon the yet undeveloped resources of Patagonia. With a clear political horizon and a home population of only 5,000,000 souls, the Argentine output, if the present ratio of increase is maintained, seems within a measurable distance of controlling the world's meat market.

A side issue of the Argentine stock farm, ten years ago wasted or disregarded, now bids fair to take a place among its leading exports. In 1895 the butter sent from the Platte to England was 390 tons ; in 1902 it was 3,000 tons. The exports for the current year cannot fall far short of 10,000 tons. One firm alone is manufacturing at the rate of 6,000 tons per annum, and during the past 12 months over 200 creameries have been established. This rapid growth of the dairy industry is greatly assisted by the fact that four-fifths of the crossbred herds in the country are already of the Shorthorn strain, a breed which combines better than any other the requisites for both a dairyman's and a butcher's cow.—MacMillan's.

PRINCELY SALARY OF HOTEL MAN.

FIVE hundred thousand dollars a year for managing a hotel is a staggering idea, one that might have come out of a dreambook ; but nevertheless that is the sum which George C. Boldt is said to receive for conducting the Waldorf-Astoria, of New York, for the Astors. This princely income is based on a profit-sharing arrangement, and is contingent upon Mr. Boldt adding a certain amount to the annual income of the Astors, a condition which he finds little difficulty in fulfilling.

Five hundred thousand dollars a year is a dizzy height to be reached by a German emigrant, who failed as a chicken farmer in Texas, and returned to New York in 1871 penniless. Yet such is the story of the suave and resourceful head of that luxurious caravansary, known the world over for the brilliance and lavishness of furnishings and for the excellence of its appointments, the Waldorf-Astoria.

Returning to New York after his failure to make a success of poultry raising in Texas, Mr. Boldt first found his true vocation. Beginning as an "omnibus," a waiter's assistant, in a second class restaurant on Broadway, he rapidly rose to a full-fledged waiter, then to checkman and, finally, by cultivating his influential customers, was given an appointment as steward of one of the largest hotels at Cornwall-on-the-Hudson.

With the approach of the Centenial in 1876 he turned his eyes toward Philadelphia, and got a place in the Philadelphia Club, where he made himself immensely popular with the clubmen and made his position unassailable by marrying the daughter of the steward.

Mr. Boldt now had no difficulty in securing backing to enter in the hotel business on his own account. The Bellevue, as he called his new venture, was an astonisher. It was more like a club than a hotel. The food was delicious, the service perfect ; but the prices were extravagantly high. It was a great success.

Here came one day William Waldorf Astor. He recognized in Mr. Boldt the man for the new hotel he was contemplating in New York. Some time after Mr. Boldt was summoned to the presence of the millionaire and his plans unfolded. The terms demanded by the Philadelphia German manager fairly staggered the capitalist, but he acceded. Boldt insisted on the hotel being built after his ideas, and it was. The innovations were startling and the luxury daring. But it paid ; paid beyond the most sanguine expectations. And now, the rather tall, straight, comfortably round, carefully dressed, spectacled man, with the direct, forceful, but unassuming manner, who is seen so often around the corridors, has the distinction of being the largest salaried man in the world.

KEEPING SWEET POTATOES.

SWEET potatoes need to be handled carefully if they are to be kept through the Winter, and, unlike most other vegetables, sweet potatoes should be kept in a warm, dry place, says The Chicago Record-Herald. In the first place, sweet potatoes must be dug at the right time. They should be dug before hard frosts have killed the tops, for this injures the quality of the tubers somewhat. And after digging, the potatoes must be handled as carefully as though they were eggs. Irish potatoes can be shoveled around rather carelessly, and often a bruise on one end of the potato, or even a decayed spot, will not affect the other part, which is left in a sound condition. But not so with the sweet potato, for a bruise at one end will affect the quality of the sound portion at the other, and will render it unfit for use. This fact is not generally understood by many growers, who handle sweet potatoes as carelessly as they do Irish potatoes. This fact is responsible for many of the potatoes of poor quality which are served during the Winter.

After being handled thus sweet potatoes should be stored in a warm, dry place. A temperature of 60 to 70 deg. is about right for the proper keeping of sweet potatoes. Some persons have stored them in sand or dust from the country road, gathered in late Autumn, but this is not necessary, the chief benefit of this plan being that the sand or dust will help to preserve an even temperature. If the potatoes are stored in dust or sand care must be taken that the latter is perfectly dry.

CHRISTMAS PRICE LIST.

McWilliam & Everest, of Toronto, have issued a very handsome little price list and Christmas greeting to the trade. The list is in the shape of a folder, with three wings. On the inside are the prices, and on the back are cuts of a country store, flanked by a beaver and a maple leaf. Lists may be had on applying to to McWilliam & Everest, Toronto.

WHOLESALE GROCERS
TORONTO, - CANADA

MR. HENRI JONAS, OF MONTREAL.

THE CANADIAN GROCER this week presents to its readers the photo of a gentleman whose features are familiar to almost every grocery jobber in Canada, and whose goods are known from the Atlantic to the Pacific, Mr. Henri Jonas, of Henri Jonas & Co., Montreal, manufacturers of flavoring extracts and importers of fine grocers' sundries.

Mr. Jonas commenced business in 1870, and since that time has been established continuously within a few blocks of his firm's present premises at 389 St. Paul street. It is with pride that they point to having retained the confidence of their customers during all this time, and on their books to-day are the names of merchants who dealt with them in 1870.

It has been the aim of Mr. Jonas to place upon the market only goods of highest quality, and from the inception of the business to the present day this rule has been followed—Jonas' flavoring extracts, French mustards and military dressings need no commendation.

As an importer of fine grocers' sundries the firm of Henri Jonas & Co. stand in the front rank in Canada, particularly in the finest lines of French table delicacies. Mr. Jonas, who is an acknowledged connoisseur of fancy groceries and delicatessen, visits France, Spain and Italy once or twice every year, and spends no little time making his selections and looking up the finest and best goods obtainable in those markets. A glance over the list of a few of the houses represented by H. Jonas & Co. is a sufficient guarantee of the qualty of the goods supplied.

Mr. Jonas is a firm believer in judicious advertising, and is ever ready to place the grocery trade into touch with the finer and higher grades of specialties, and though Mr. Jonas may personally not be known to many of the readers of THE CANADIAN GROCER, his striking advertisements are familiar to all.

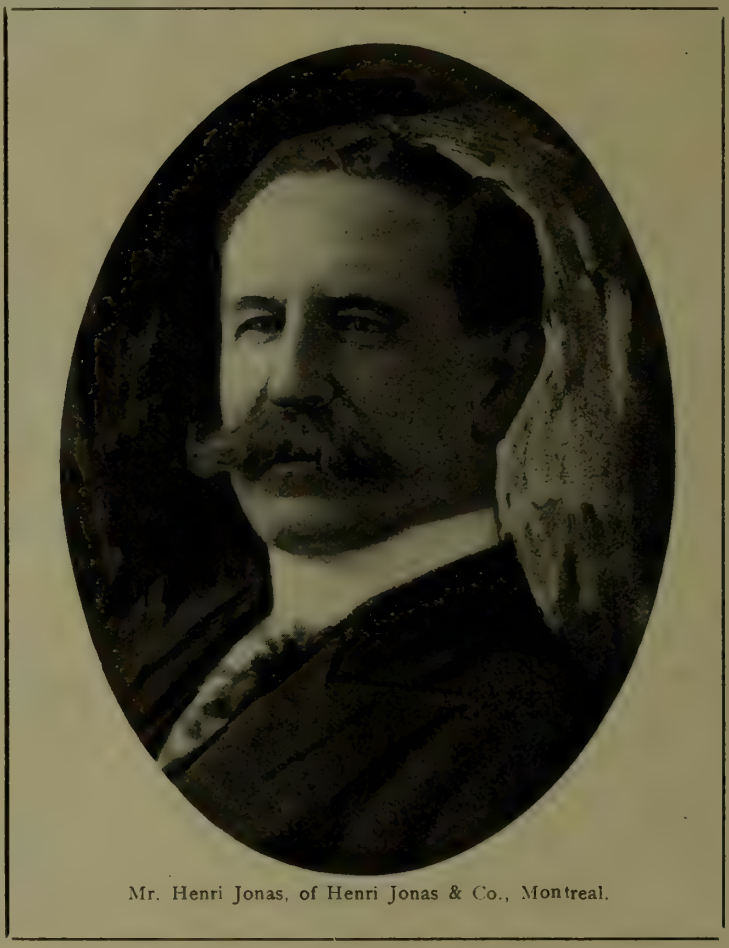
In commercial circles of Montreal Mr. Jonas is recognized as an up-to-date, progressive business man, and has been honored by his fellow-citizens with the office of president of the French Chambre de Commerce. This confidence is well understood by those who know Mr. Jonas.

The following are a few of the foreign firms represented by Henri Jonas & Co.:

Establissment F. Delory, Lorient, France, packers of French peas, sardines, etc.

Bertrand & Co., Havre and Lyons, France, manufacturers of macaroni, vermicelli, etc.

G. Blachard & Co., Paris, France, potted meats and mushrooms.



Mr. Henri Jonas, of Henri Jonas & Co., Montreal.

Bernard Bizac & Co., Souillac, France, packers of truffles.

A. Durand, Carcassonne, France, manufacturers of crystalized and glazed fruits.

Dunipe & Co., Seville, Spain, growers and packers of olives.

Jonas-Hanart, Anzin, France, refiners of pure olive oils.

Mamias & Co., Bar-le-Duc, France, manufacturers of the celebrated Bar-le-Duc jellies.

L. Fichot, Landrin, France, the famous Breton vegetable colors for confectioners.

Brillant-Buhler Co., Neuilly s/Seine, France, silver and metal polishes and brass water.

Lichtwitz & Co., Bordeaux, France, exporters of sardines.

Cailhol - Tornatore, Marseilles, France, fruit pulps, capers, etc.

WESTERN ONTARIO TRAVELLERS.

A MEETING of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Western Ontario was held in the Masonic Temple, London, Saturday afternoon last, when reports of the financial standing of the association were received and officers elected for the ensuing year.

President Wm. Turnbull occupied the chair, and among those present were: John T. Green, William R. Grant, W. A. Wilson, E. R. C. Struthers, Sid Screaton, Wesley Smithson, James Smith, Harry E. Buttrey, William Lind, William Connor, John M. Dillon, George F. Brickenden, L. C. Johnson, R. M. Morrison, William Gray, W. L. Underwood, W. H. Escott, S. F. Glass, Robert Tait and C. W. Nicholls.

The president submitted a report on the standing and work of the association that was most satisfactory. Three hundred and seventy new members had been received during the year, bringing up the membership to 1,800, while the reserve fund had now reached $95,000, a gain of $11,500 for the year. Reference was made to the deaths during the year, some of the oldest and most prominent members, viz.: T. P. Blackwell, the first vice-president; Nicholas Jeffrey, Isaac Waterman, Reuben North, P. M. Lawrason, Harold W. Southam, of London; Herrman Waterman, Buffalo; John Wardlaw, Galt, and W. R. Thompson, Teeswater.

Death claims paid during the year amounted to $8,010.

The financial statement showed receipts of $40,744.85, as follows: Balance in Canadian Savings and Loan Co. Bank, $5,109.87; travelling certificates, $17,530; associate members' fees, $510; duplicate certificates, $56; interest on debentures and savings bank account, $3,538.98; loan companies' debentures paid, $14,000.

The disbursements included: Death claims, $8,010; loan companies' debentures purchased, $15,000; loan companies' debentures renewed, $14,000; commissions to agents, $572; secretary's salary,

MR. P. C. LARKIN.

AN interesting article on the subject of British-grown tea appears in a recent number of The American Grocer from the pen of Mr. P. C. Larkin, of The Salada Tea Co. The article is replete with what must be enlightening information to American readers. No more competent authority on the subject than Mr. Larkin could have been secured. The article is illustrated by the accompanying very lifelike cut of Mr. Larkin.

PEANUT CROP SHORT.

IN their report on the condition, quality and yield of the peanut crop of 1903, Holmes & Dawson say :

"It appears from the replies as to the acreage planted in peanuts that there has been a substantial reduction accounted for by the fact that the farmers being influenced by the high prices for both cotton and tobacco which prevailed last year planted more largely of these crops. Some of the best peanut lands in North Carolina were changed off to tobacco and cotton, and the reported reduction is well founded.

"The fact of a reduction in acreage necessarily results in less than an average crop being made. Only 16 per cent. of the replies say that an average crop will be made, while 84 per cent. give the opinion that the crop will be short of an average anywhere from 10 to an extreme of 60 per cent. below. Right here we wish to say that it is a difficult thing to determine what view is in every instance taken of what is meant by an average crop. To some minds it means a full all around crop of ideal conditions and features, while others make the stricter distinction of the real or actual meaning of an average crop.

"The quality of the present crop is unusually and uniformly good. All of the replies with the exception of eight per cent. report quality fair to very good. Where the quality is reported fair a number report a slight damage attributable to stormy weather prevailing at time of some early digging. This damage, however, has been slight, and since that time the farmers have had ideal weather for saving and curing. Quite a proportion of the crop is yet in the fields in stacks, but no fear is entertained that there will be any further damage, and sunshine and wind are all doing the work of curing satisfactorily.

"Probably the most noteworthy item is that of the yield. Last year, with fine weather conditions throughout the growing period, and with luxurious growth and spreading of the vines, there was much above an average yield, as was shown by our last year's report. This year the conditions are somewhat reversed ; weather conditions were unfavorable, particularly during the late months of the life of the plant. Cool and unfavorable weather conditions through August and September to an appreciable extent stunted the growth, and pegging down and the bulk of the crop was made in its earlier history, June and July. Our replies give only 13 per cent. as having an average yield, while 87 per cent. give a less yield and 11 per cent. say a much less yield.

"The already strong position of the new crop of peanuts is the best evidence that there is a shortage. The market last season opened at 2¾c. for best grades of farmer's stock, as against a market to-day of 3¼c. for the same grades. The question now foremost in the minds of the distributors of factory cleaned goods is how will their trade take the new crop at the advanced prices ; will the trade take as many peanuts at the prices they will be forced to charge this season as was done last season, when factory cleaned goods were three-quarters of a cent a pound cheaper. The prevailing opinion of the factory people is that the demand will not be as heavy as it was last season."

We look on each grocer in Canada as our agent.
On every pound of Blue Ribbon

we see that you have a good profit. We don't do this at the expence of the quality of the tea. That is as it always has been and will be—the finest "hill grown" tea in Ceylon. That's our policy.

The quality tea of Canada. Push the Red Label Brand.

COCOANUT

In installing our new Cocoanut plant no expense has been spared in having every detail up-to-date in every single particular.

Then too, this department is in charge of workers whose long and successful experience in preparation of Cocoanut for the Canadian trade is warrant of the quality being made.

The Cocoanut is packed in barrels, pails, boxes, tins and packages, and lowest prices are guaranteed.

We cordially invite inquiries, and samples will be cheerfully sent on request.

THE OPENING IN SOUTH AFRICA.

THE New York Journal of Commerce in the issue of Tuesday of this week, gives a two-column review of the report of Mr. H. Berchenough, special commissioner appointed by the British Board of Trade to investigate trade conditions and prospects in South Africa. The report is a remarkable one not alone in the light it throws upon conditions in South Africa, but in the information it gives as to the methods so successfully employed by our American neighbors in gaining an entrance to the South African market. In 1902 the exports of Britain to South Africa were £29,247,743, an increase of about 40 per cent. over the preceeding year. The American exports for the same year, while but £4,429,879, showed an increase of 67 per cent. over the previous year. This remarkable increase was sufficient to cause England to take alarm.

Of American exports £2,284,088 represented food stuffs, fodder, timber and natural products. In this they do not come in competition with Britain, but they do most decidedly with Canada and Australia.

The report deals most particularly with the other lines, but the methods pursued are the same. Americans owe much of their success, the report says, to the extraordinary activity and alertness they show in the conduct of their business and the careful measures they take to retain and extend their connection. Instead of endeavoring to force the sale of goods they are in the habit of making, they strive to find out what their customers want and make it for them. American methods of packing and care as to the appearance of their goods are also commended. Indeed the whole substance of the report may be summed up in saying that the Americans go after the trade and do what is necessary to get it. And they do it quick. They were putting up steel frame buildings a whole year in South Africa before the British firms woke up and got in position to compete with them.

Mr. Berchenough is very sanguine as to the future of South Africa. The mines, he says, have not yet begun to be worked to their capacity, and for many years South Africa will be dependent for her supplies from abroad and for rapidly increasing population.

For this trade Canada has made some little feeble efforts and has met with some little success, but with the Americans as competitors we must rise to the occasion and beat them with their own weapons. Our manufacturers must make themselves acquainted with what the South Africans want and how they want it. When that is done it is then necessary to put it up in a more attractive form than the American competitor does and then see that it is landed and put on the market in good shape. It may cost a little money to open this market at first, but the market is a growing proposition that can be had better now than later. If Canada is to become an exporting country we can not afford to let the South African market escape us.

DECLINE TO SUBMIT TO SERFDOM.

A TENDENCY is discernable in the case of not a few of our business men to labor with their hands rather than with their heads, to allow themselves to become encumbered and weighted down with a mass of detail which should be relegated to subordinates.

This is often due to the lack of a nice discrimination between what belongs propertly to the sphere of the manager and what to the ordinary office man. Yet such is not always the case. But the other day a gentleman distinguished in Canadian financial circles, confessed that he frequently went down to his office in the ordinary course of routine, when there was no necessity whatever for his presence there, and when he might have been immeasureably better engaged recuperating mind and body out in the open air and sunshine, on the golf links or at the sea side. Why did he keep so close to his office? Simply for fear that he might appear to be neglecting his business.

So have we enslaved ourselves. Whether needed or not at the office, we must at least make a pretence of it. This is an old game which men have used to hoodwing each other and themselves since time immemorial. Chaucer describing the Sergeant of The Lame, the 14th century prototype of the modern business man, says, with gentle irony

> "Nowher so besy a man as he ther nas,
> And yet he semede besier than he was."

A Canadian who fills the post of private secretary to the directing mind of several of the largest manufacturing corporations in the United States, while on a visit to this country a short time ago, remarked that he had not seen his chief for four years. He received his instructions by telephone or telegraph The man whose wonderful grasp of finance and whose control of the industrial situation of the United States is alternately the admiration and the detestation of his fellow citizens has been able to maintain his position as the captain-general of industry by resolutely declining to be the slave of detail. He has organized the details. He no longer deals with units but with systems. Had he attempted to attend to every detaly himself he would no doubt have been an admirable head clerk, nothing more.

The Canadian business man should not make the mistake of confining himself too closely to his office, his store or his factory, as the business grows he should relinquish from time to time, the lower class work, and confine himself to the higher and more subtle, the administration rather than the executive side of the business. He would thus have more time to do well what is most worth well doing. He would have more time for exercise to invigorate mind and body. He would think clearer, plan more deeply and act more effectivelv. He would be a more shrewd business man, a better husband, and a more honored citizen.

THE FAT STOCK SHOW.

HAIL to Guelph and its Fat Stock Show. During the summer months the Ontario Agricultural College is the Mecca that draws the farming population in annually increasing numbers to the Royal city, but the enterprise of its citizens has built up another institution in the Provincial Winter Fair which is every year growing in importance and in the interest it excites throughout and beyond the Province. By its Fat Stock Show, Guelph is probably as well known as by the Agricultural College.

There this week has been gathered the elite of live stock aristocracy, to the delectation alike of the admirer of well-bred, well-fed cattle and the lover of the good roast beef and lamb chops. The superior excellence of Canadian live stock has been proved in all the great exhibitions that have been held in the northern parts of this continent. At Guelph are gathered from our flocks and herds the creme de la creme, the pride of the farm yard and stock ring in every class.

The splendid and increasing success of this unique fair is a matter for pride not alone of the people of Guelph but of all Ontario. There is nothing like it to be found on this continent and Guelph deserves every bit of the honor she is deriving from her successful fair.

There is, of course, a desire on the part of some that the fair be removed to a more central location, but this desire is hardly a reasonable one. Guelph has proved her title to the fair by making it the success we now see it. The fair is held in the centre of a most desirable district. It is close to the Agricultural College, an important matter as a large proportion of the visitors to the fair are farmers, and in addition to all this it has been by no means established that centralization is an unalloyed benefit. It has some advantages, of course, in the way of accommodation. But on the other hand the fair is primarily educative and to accomplish this purpose it should be brought as closely as possible to the farmer. Guelph is well situated as regards western Ontario. It would not be a bad idea to establish a similar fair in eastern Ontario. But in the meantime Guelph should be encouraged in the good work being done there in raising the standard of our stock and educating the farmers in scientific and profitable methods.

MR. CHARLTON SHOULD COME HOME.

SINCE the close of the session at Ottawa, Mr. John Charlton, M.P., has again crossed into the United States and resumed his self-imposed task of advocating commercial reciprocity between that country and Canada.

Mr. Charlton's persistency is to be admired. So is his courage. He believes that reciprocity in trade between Canada and the United States would be a good thing, and he is doing his best to bring it about.

But the services of Mr. Charlton seem to be scarcely wanted in the United States just now. There was a time, a decade ago, when there was scarcely any native missionaries in the United States to preach the doctrine of reciprocity with Canada. That day is now passed. Reciprocity with Canada is becoming a popular cry. Senator Fairbanks appears to be making it a part of his life's work. President Roosevelt is being imbued with his spirit, and it is expected that after the presidential election, if returned to the White House, will openly lend his influence to the desired treaty.

But whatever may be said as to the attitude of the politicians, it is certain that a strong sentiment in favor of reciprocity with Canada predominates the minds of business men in the Eastern, Middle and Northwestern States of the American Union.

Had the sentiment been so strong in the years gone by, when Canada was a suppliant for reciprocity, it is altogether likely the desideratum would have been secured.

Now, however, the order is reversed. As far as our memory serves us there is not a single newspaper in Canada advocating it. And, outside of Mr. Charlton, not a single politician either. There are no politicians so poor as to do it reverence. As a subject for practical politics it is defunct. Time has swallowed it as effectually as the big fish did Jonah. And is likely to keep it down much longer than the fish did the disobedient prophet.

It is obvious, therefore, that Mr. Charlton's place is at home. And if he is really concerned about reciprocity he will come at once. There is no one but himself to cultivate the reciprocity field. In the United States the field appears to be white almost unto the harvest, but in Canada the soil has been so long neglected that if our memories were not pretty good, and we had not the files of newspapers to refresh them, we certainly would forget that the cause of reciprocity with the United States had ever been cultivated in Canada. There is not even a blade to be seen in the old field. And before even the seed can be sown a great deal of ploughing will have to be done. Really, if results are to be seen by the present generation it it imperative that Mr. Charlton should come home at once and get out his plough.

FOR CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

FOR the next two weeks people will be buying Christmas presents. There is no better place to buy them than in the grocery. Fruits, candies and nuts are of course equally acceptable to young and old, but very often the Christmas season is made the occasion of adding to the joy at once of the giver, and those who have not an abundance of this world's goods, and whose Christmas festivities otherwise would be darkened by the gloomy spectre of want. In making the choice of Christmas presents therefore one is sometimes at a loss. To anticipate such a situation THE GROCER has prepared a list of articles to be had in the grocery store from which presents suitable for any purpose may be chosen. This might be cut out and posted where it may be seen by customers wrestling with the problem of what to buy.

The list presented is as follows :

Box of bon bons.
Dozen oranges.
Two dozen bananas.
Half-dozen pineapples.
Basket of grapes.
Dozen of grape fruit.
Barrel of apples.
Fancy package of figs.
New dates.
Malaga raisins.
Shelled almonds.
Shelled walnuts.
Peanuts, fresh roasted.
Bottle of Olives.
Half-dozen cream cheese.
Half-dozen sections honey.
Mince meat.
Plum pudding.
Box of fancy biscuits.
Box of holly and mistletoe.
Turkey or goose.
Fancy candles with shades.
Jar of preserves.
Bottle beef extract.
Twenty-five lbs. granulated sugar.
Five lbs. of tea, choice.
Five lbs. of coffee, choice.
Package of cocoa.
Cake of chocolate.
Bottle of wine.
Box of cigars.
Box of tobacco.
New pipe.
Package of toilet soap.
Bag of flour.
Case of breakfast food.
Smoked ham.
Side of bacon.
Lamb.
A keg of fish.
China plate.
Cup and saucer.
Fruit set.
Salad dish.
Vase.
China ornament.
Bag of potatoes.
An order for goods.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol still have Fard dates, also Bombay stuffed figs and dates.

B. O. Beland says it will pay buyers of wines, fine champagnes, down to ordinary clarets, to visit his sample room and warehouse at 26 Lemoine street, Montreal, or to write him for his quotations.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., wholesale grocers, Guelph, have a snap to offer in canned salmon.

Husband Bros. & Co. report three cars of Mexican oranges to hand this week (stock sound, sweet and bright color); two cars of Florida oranges (russett and bright), thin skinned and sweet ; one car of Delaware holly ; first car of the season of navels, all sizes.

H. N. Bate & Sons, Ottawa, advise arrival into store of full line of Crosse & Blackwell's jams, jellies, fish pastes, etc.; also Dandicotte & Gaudin's vegetables, fruits and pastes, in glass and tin.

E. D. Marceau, Montreal, is calling the attention of the trade this week to special values offered in teas. These are quite-times values and should prove interesting.

Ocean Mills, Montreal, are offering special premium with the Ocean Baking Powder between now and New Years. Look out for their ad. in next week's GROCER.

Late arrivals of Valencia Oranges received by McWilliams & Everist have opened up in very fine condition.

John Sloan & Co., Toronto, have received into store a carload of fine pink salmon, packed by J. H. Todd & Sons, proprietors of the Horseshoe Brand, and every tin is guaranteed by them. This salmon is being offered at attractive prices

Spratt's Patent Food Co., Limited, of Newark, N.J., report an increased demand for their goods in Canada.

"Kkovah" Jellies have "caught on in Halifax," writes their representative in that city to the R. Greig Mfg. Co., Montreal.

"Chocolat de l' Univers," for which B. O. Beland, Montreal, is Canadian agent, is ready for the Christmas trade. These goods are claimed to be surpassed by none in quality. Orders sent direct to Mr. Beland will receive prompt attention.

"Bronco" brand navel oranges, one of the finest California oranges to be had, are expected in a few days. White & Co. have exclusive control of this brand and are doing a large business in them.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, report the arrival of a shipment of new Grenoble walnuts, soft shell almonds, filberts, and other seasonable goods.

Buyers' attention is called to this week's ad. of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal. Special values are offered in Griffin & Skelley's California apricots, peaches, and fancy Santa Clara "new crop" apricots, peaches and prunes.

A full supply of table raisins may be found with Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

White & Co. received the first car of California celery to come to Canada this year, of the "Golden Heart" variety. They have it packed in ½-crates as well as crates, and is of splendid quality.

Something entirely new in Batger & Co.'s English crackers for Christmas and table decorating is offered by H. N. Bate & Sons, Ottawa. These are offered at interesting prices.

L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., Montreal, are offering Trenor and Arguimbaus' 1902 crop Valencias, at $1.20 per box. These are cold-storage kept and in good condition. This price should tempt buyers.

White & Co., Toronto, have a consignment of English cob nuts due. They are also offering California almonds, walnuts and Louisiana paper shell pecans.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol display a fine assortment of olives in glass also gallon jars.

REMOVAL.

Stronach & Son have recently purchased the commodious premises, No. 46 Church street, Toronto, where they will conduct a business devoted entirely to Canadian fruits and produce. The outside trade can depend on correspondence and consignments receiving the firm's prompt and careful attention.

VINEGAR MAKERS MEET.

A meeting of the vinegar manufacturers of Ontario and Quebec was held last Friday, 4th inst., at St. Lawrence Hall, Montreal. Representatives of the different factories were present.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Toronto, Dec. 10, 1903.

THE same general conditions prevail as reported last week. Wholesalers are still busy filling Christmas goods orders, and no let-up is reported. This Fall's business is reported from fully up to last year to away ahead of that 12 months ago. There have been no notable changes in prices, with the possible exception of coffee. Country buyers are placing orders freely for seasonable goods, and the outlook continues very favorable. Collections are reported improving. Canned goods are quite firm and are regarded as good property. Coffees are very strong and rising. Rios, Santos and Maracaibo have been advanced in quotations below. Spices are meeting with a good demand from wholesalers, but brokers report market dull, but prices are still maintained. The call for both syrups and molasses has improved and is considered strong. Rice and tapioca are unchanged from last week. Tea is much the same as recently. There is still a good demand for low-price teas of fair quality, but little responce at prices buyers feel disposed to offer. In London prices are maintained, perhaps a little firmer than a week ago. The interest of the trade is largely centred around dried fruits and nuts. The latter are now arriving and enlisting interest, especially in shelled. In sugar, raws in United States have eased off 1-16c. for the week. Locally, sugar is unchanged in price, with more business doing.

CANNED GOODS.

There is nothing new to report in canned goods this week, except that these lines are gathering additional strength. Parties who have placed orders and got the goods are in an enviable position: they have good property. Corn is still in the front of the market, and peas also are attracting considerable attention. Canned meats as usual are dull at this season of the year, but prices are held firm. We quote:

COFFEES.

In New York coffee is still advancing. Smaller estimates of the present Santos crop, a sharp advance in European markets, and a higher market in Brazil, all tend to intensify the bullish movement that has of late dominated the coffee market. Coffee is full 2c. higher than at the first of September. Locally, an advance of ½c. in Rios is quotable, but mild grades have not been affected sufficiently to influence quotations. Maracaibos are ½c. higher. A fair demand is met, but buyers are rather afraid of the rapidly rising market. We quote:

SUGAR.

The weaker feeling reported in our last has continued for the week under review and we have to record further declines in quotations for raw sugar. There have been fairly heavy sales to United States refiners of sugars on spot and arrived at port of call for orders, as well as for January shipment from Cuba. For week ending Friday, 4th inst., transactions aggregated fully 50,000 tons. There has been pretty free selling of new crop Cubas at 2 7-32c. and 2 3-16 basis 96 degrees C. & F., which, under the Reciprocity Treaty with the reduction of 20 per cent. in the American duty, would give a landed cost, duty paid, 5 17-32 to 3 9-16. Soon after our last report there was a sale of 1,200 tons Demarara centrifugals for prompt shipment at 2c. C. & F., which with duty of 1.69 would cost landed 3 11-16. Since then there has been a sale at 3⅛c., thus establishing a decline of 1-16 for the week. When the statistical position is considered, it is difficult to appreciate the reasons for the weakness in raws, as, for week ending December 2, receipts at United States four ports were only 23,559 tons, while meltings remain unchanged at former figure of 26,000 tons. Total stocks are 100,387 tons, against 182,711 tons same time last year. Total stocks in the United States and Cuba together are 222,387 tons, against 249,711 tons same time last year, the combined deficiency being 27,324 tons. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates, were 2,061,387 tons, against 1,973,006 tons same time last year, the increase being 88,381 tons. European markets opened for the week at 8s. 4½d. for 88 per cent. beet, prompt shipment, and at the close remains unchanged at this figure. Report on the growing crops on December 5 read: "Weather unfavorable for crop work," and cable on December 8 reported, "No change in the situation." United States refined market has remained quiet with little business doing and prices unchanged. Refiners have been unwilling to make time contracts, while buyers have been indisposed to purchase for prompt delivery only. Present prices for refined are low, leaving margin of only from to 73½c. over raws. Our local market has been without special feature, trade continuing on a hand-to-mouth basis only, with only a moderate distribution for this season of the year. At the close there are no special indications and the list remains as below:

SPICES.

There is little change in spices; in fact, absolutely no new development from last week. The market is featureless and prices maintained as before. Locally the wholesalers are finding a seasonable demand and are satisfied. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

These lines are moving well. There is quite a lot of molasses selling just at present, this being its especial season. Syrup also is in good demand, the call being principally, in fact, almost altogether, for the corn article.

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

A fair demand for the season is reported. Tapioca is in a peculiar position. The heavy stocks held locally bought at low prices have kept the market here below what stocks could now be replaced for. There is no change in rice. We quote:

	Per lb.			Per lb.

Patna	0 05	0 05½	Tapioca	0 03¼	0 03½

TEAS.

There is nothing of note in the tea situation this week. A demand from United States markets for China greens being the one feature. Locally there is a demand for Japans to retail at 25c., but hardly anything can be had around that price of good value. The markets in London were maintained at recent easing off, and a cable the early part of the week seemed to indicate a slight revival in Indian.

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Arrivals of new shelled walnuts are at hand this week, and owing to complete absence of old stock were absorbed at once. Further shipments are close at hand, and prompt orders may be filled for Christmas trade. Shelled walnuts are unusually early this year. Malaga blue raisins are of very superior quality this year. Extra dessert clusters have gone freely into consumption, and considerable buying has taken place between wholesale houses, some of whom have been short. One sale is reported of 100 boxes of Beven's Imperial Russian clusters. A feature of the Malaga fruit this year has been a 20-lb. box of clusters dibided into 1-lb. bunches by the insertion of waxed paper, so that fruit can be lifted out without tearing the clusters, and thus having the bunch perfect. This is the creation of Beven & Co., Malaga, who introduced it for their New York trade. It has taken well here. There has been an enormous development in the shelled nut business of late, not only for confectionery purposes, but also for sale in grocery stores. Where five years ago a wholesale house would take five boxes, many retailers now take as many as ten. Two-thirds of the nuts imported now come shelled. Orders have been placed in France for several thousand cases of shelled almonds for monthly delivery as far ahead as June, 1904. In our last issue it was stated that Valencia raisins were not in too plentiful supply, and that quantity in country would be not much more than sufficient for holiday trade. This has been verified during the week by inquiries from several importers for quotations on shipments from Spain. There is little change in foreign markets. At end of November there were some 200 tons left in Spain held at a price equal to 6½c. delivered here for selected. Steamship Velarde, which sailed for Liverpool, November 23, had on 4,000 half boxes for Canada, which will arrive about the first of the year. The market in currants is unchanged. Patras reports that recent sales for Canada apparently showing drop in market were executed in consequence of a favorable rate of exchange, the first cost remaining unchanged. The position is considered strong for the future. We quote :

EGGS.

The egg market continues very firm with an upward tendency. Stocks are light, receipts are insignificant and the demand is at this season quite brisk. Buyers who object to the price to-day pay more to-morrow. Eggs are certainly a good stock at this juncture. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.

California navels and Mexican oranges have arrived this week and are meeting with a good demand. Holly is meeting a lively market ; it is bright and well berried. Jamaica oranges by the barrel, Messina lemons and Florida grape fruit are easier. Other fruits have maintained their values. Next week the bulk of the Christmas fruit will be in the hands of the commission men or on the way to the retailers. The season has proved very satisfactory and the outlook is bright. We quote :

QUEBEC MARKETS.

GROCERIES.

Montreal, Dec. 10, 1903.

TRADE during the past week, taking it all around, has been very satisfactory. The feeling in tea has been somewhat better, though no sales of any amount have been made. The approach of stock-taking is given by the jobbers as the reason for few offers. What little business has been done has been equally divided amongst Japans, Ceylons (both green and black), Young Hysons and China blacks. Brokers all look for a quiet time until after the turn of the year. The sugar market continues quiet, and there is not much incentive to buy even at the reduction made last week. The situation in the United States Congress as regards the ratification of the Cuban Treaty is being watched by the trade. There is practically nothing new to report in canned goods this week, trade being very quiet. French sardines are reported scarce and prices are higher. Molasses during the past week has been more inquired for. This is due no doubt to the importation of several fair-sized parcels of mixed Barbadoes, which have been selling a few cents per gallon under the pure goods. That Canadian refined syrups are receiving more attention at the hands of the trade is no doubt due to the manner in which the refiners are putting up these goods in convenient packages for retailers and consumers. The coffee market is turning decidely interesting, and the opinion among the trade here is that the statistical position will very shortly necessitate an advance being made. In another column will be found a more detailed description of the coffee market. Spices of all kinds continue showing up strong with the exception of nutmegs. Local spice dealers are holding stocks firm. In foreign dried fruits the attention is principally centred on raisins, figs, dates and nuts, and a good trade is being done all around. In green fruits the arrival of the first car of California navel oranges is the only interesting feature to note. The stock received shows up fine. Business in all grades of fish has improved, the recent cold spell and arrival of snow having brightened up trade. Rice and tapioca are both of interesting character. Potatoes are in good demand, with slightly higher prices, due to high freights, as heated cars are now required to bring them in. Canadian red onions still maintain their strong position. In country produce eggs are looked to as likely to show a further advance, stocks throughout the country being reported very light. A very pessimistic view is expressed by several of the larger dealers. Butter stocks continue light and prices steady. Goods of Winter make arriving are reported not quite up to the standard, and the consumer is demanding Fall make. Cheese prices locally are unchanged, the demand being rather on the quiet side, though the English market is taking a turn for the better. The provision market shows an improvement. Lard and smoked meats are in good demand. Wheat is fluctuating, and though advanced lately in Chicago, has fallen off again. Baled hay is being offered none too freely, and only a limited amount of trading is done. New York market advanced 50c., but this figure is not high enough to warrant export business. Rolled oats and cornmeal are quiet, and only a fair amount of trading is done. Flour is firm and good business doing. Evaporated apples are steady with an improved demand. Honey is quiet with little offering. Business in maple products is quiet. Beans are unchanged in price with an easier feeling. Raw fur season has opened up with prices declined about 15 per cent., and dealers look for a further drop shortly.

SUGAR.

Business continues quiet, very little extra buying having been noted, even at the decline of 5c. per 100 pounds noted last week. The character of the buying seems to be conducted on a hand-to-mouth basis, jobbers refraining from stocking to any extent. The deterrent feature seems to be the probable effect of the ratification of the Cuban Treaty by the United States Senate. Jobbers are apparently watching the pendulum at Washington. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

Molasses during the week is reported as being inquired for somewhat more. This is no doubt attributable to the importation lately of several fair-sized parcels of mixed Barbados, which have been selling at a few cents per gallon under the genuine pure unblended Barbados. Prices are steady for the pure goods, and market generally is of a firm tone. Investigation by "The Grocer" shows that stocks generally are held close at different points in the east, and no prospect of a decline is evident. Buyers generally throughout Quebec have held off as long as possible, but must soon come into the market for their Winter supplies, and the least increase in demand will probably mean higher prices. The statistical position is so strong that the wise buyer will mark its import and buy. It is becoming more apparent every week that the consumption of refined Canadian made syrups is on the increase. This feature is undoubtedly attributable to the manner and style in which Canadian syrup makers have been placing their product on the market during the past season. The packing of these goods in handsomely labelled, clean tins, has been appreciated by both consumers and dealers. The former is assured of cleanliness and convenience in buying, and the merchant of less trouble and the buying in smaller quantities and the bother and worry of handling large bulky packages. The free advertising also that is being done in the press by the more up-to-date and progressive manufacturers is having an effect on the jobbing trade. We quote :

TEAS.

A slightly better feeling seems to prevail in tea circles this week, though no large sales have been made. Inquiries are principally for small, hand-to-mouth lots. It is generally expressed that there will be very little doing until after the turn of the year. Jobbers are getting close to and ready for their annual stock-taking, and are not anxious to load up any too much on teas. What little business has been done was about equally divided amongst Japans, Ceylons (green and black), Young Hysons, with some China blacks. Ceylon greens still hold the attention of a portion of the trade. China blacks in London have been reduced in stock owing to the firmer prices of Ceylon greens. We quote :

COFFEE.

That the coffee market is interesting on the moment seems to be the opinion of the trade, and the feeling is about that higher prices may be looked for any moment. The statistical position is very strong, and reports from New York indicate that the trade there and in the United States generally is preparing for an advance. Canadian buyers should should study the situation closely. In another section this week will be found a fuller description of the coffee situation. We quote :

SPICES.

The market still shows strong feeling in all lines except nutmegs. Cloves, cassia, pimento and pepper are strong and show no tendency towards weakening. Stocks of pepper and cloves in New York seem to be fairly well under the control of a few leading dealers, who are not likely to ease off prices or throw the goods on the market, as the statistical position is too strong. Locally holders of stocks are firm and not much free selling is going on. We quote :

RICE AND TAPIOCA.

Business in both these lines is very quiet ; in fact, it is difficult to get a line on the market. Japan rice is given out as firmer, though no change locally is made by the jobbing trade. Tapioca is dull and little trade noted. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

In canned goods there is practically nothing to report. Retailers have about placed and received into store their requisite stocks for some months ahead, and any little buying that is being done is for odd lines of fruits, for which, in some lines, probably not sufficient stock was laid in. Corn and tomatoes as the leading vegetables are firm, and everyone seems to have received his complement, though, in the former, there still continues some inquiry. Salmon are firm and selling at the high prices that have been ruling for some months, and there does not seem to be any likelihood of easing up. Sardines are reported as likely to show higher prices, the French fisheries being short this season. Canadian sardines are also strang. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

Among the import brokers it is difficult on the moment to get any interesting information on the dried fruit situation. "There is nothing to report," said one of the leading import fruit brokers, "we are practically through with this season's business ; you will have to go to the jobbers for any news." The jobbers report good trade in all lines of raisins, currants, figs, dates, nuts, etc. "Now is our time for these lines ; the holidays are nearing and fruits absorb a great deal of our attention." Tarragona almonds, as reported last week, are higher ; some little business has been done at the advance. New dates are selling freely. The attention that has been paid lately by packers to putting up this delicious fruit in less bulky and more tasty-looking parcels cannot but help to stimulate the trade and increase the demand with the consumer. NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Dec. 7, 1903.

BUSINESS was fair last week, but was somewhat interfered with by extremely bad weather. The strike of the miners at Springhill has caused travellers visiting that centre to leave without a single order. About one thousand men are idle and as neither the men nor the management seem inclined to yield the prospect is for a protracted struggle. Manager Cowans has published a statement showing the earnings of the men several of whom have been receiving considerably over one hundred dollars a month. The men in a portion of the mine have been paid by measurement for drawing pillars but the management refuse to continue this, but will pay the men engaged at this work according to the number of boxes of coal they send to the surface. The reason for this change is that in the last three months there has been a shortage of 1,300 boxes of coal from the amount the measurement disclosed which the management claims has been wasted as the men had no financial interest in sending it up.

Collections have scarcely been up to expectations of late. There has been an important failure in which several Halifax wholesale grocers lost rather heavily and taking it altogether the last week or two have brought more than the usual amount of worry to the trade.

Some friction has arisen between the Wholesale Grocers' Guild and one of its members, who conducts a branch store at Sydney and has been in the custom of wholesaling sugar from that point, which, it is claimed, his membership does not entitle him to do. The perty in question intends to continue as he has been doing and has issued a circular to his Cape Breton customers asking for their support.

Flour is firmer than last week. One brand of Manitoba flour has been advanced and prices of other flours, which last were being slashed slightly, have now been restored. Cornmeal has declined ten cents and beans are five cents down and extremely quiet. Oats have declined one cent.

Arrivals of Prince Edward Island produce have been very heavy during the past week, but prices have been well maintained. Sales have been small as the bad weather did not allow of the vessels' hatches being opened to remove cargoes. Quite a large quantity of red potatoes have been shipped here by the island growers this season, but there is no demand for them on this market as they are not liked here. Some, however, have been bought for export. South calico potatoes are selling ex-vessel at 35 cents per bushel and oats at 39 cents.

Butter is in better supply owing to the arrival of shipments from Ontario. The market is firm. Tail-end cheese are jobbing at 11 1-2 cents, but being tough and pasty these are not very suitable for grocery trade and most grocers prefer to pay 12 cents for best Septembers. Eggs have advanced a cent and are now jobbing at 23 to 24 cents.

Pork has suffered another decline. Wholesale houses report a very light business in this line at present. Local packing houses are in active operation and seem well supplied with hogs so far this season. Pure lard is now selling at 9 cents.

* * *

Sugar is steady at last week's decline and there seems rather more demand. There is a fair movement of molasses at unchanged figures. Fish of all kinds are in short supply and rule high.

BLUOL—THE NEW ROYAL BLUE.

THE grocery and general store trade of Canada has long been familiar with the various brands of English and American blueings on sale, and while there are a number of domestic brands that have received and are receiving attention at the hands of the trade and the public, the impression has prevailed that the foreign products are of superior merit. That fine blues of Canadian make are coming to the front is evidenced in the placing on the market by J. M. Douglas & Co., Montreal, of a blue that is claimed by the manufacturers as of the highest quality and without a superior. Bluol, is a "Royal" blue, of the finest texture, free from grit and streaking qualities. Douglas & Co. call the attention of the trade to their ad. in this issue and will be pleased to send samples and full particulars. Their motto "Made in Canada" should appeal to every merchant.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Dec. 5, 1903.

TO-DAY closes navigation on the great lakes and wheat trade is settling down to the winter and all-rail basis. As usual with the close of navigation spot and December wheat are dull, but already trading has begun in May and quotations for May were made for the first time to-day. The prices of December and May show a spread of 4 1-2c. The winter wheat business promises at present to be larger than usual.

Jobbing trade is good, seasonable lines are going out steadily and the only complaint is delay in the delivery of goods.

Collections are coming in very fairly. There is one thing that eastern jobbing houses will do well to remember and that is the large number of new stores opened in new districts. It is from these points that collections are likely to be disappointing, if they are from anywhere. The volume of money coming in is larger than last year, but it is not so large as was anticipated owing to the delays in the movement of wheat spoken of last week.

Labor of all kinds is well employed both in city and country and the buying for Christmas has already begun in a retail way.

The frozen apples spoken of at length last week, in the Fruit Department are being offered for sale by auction. It is claimed by some who have tried the experiment that by taking off the top of the barrel and covering the apples with snow and leaving for a few hours the frost is drawn out and the apples are as firm and good as ever. Their keeping qualities, however, are not guaranteed. The damage to these apples is a very serious matter as so many country merchants were depending upon them for their Christmas trade.

There are few changes of prices to report for the week, but new lines of goods specially designed for the Christmas trade are coming in and prices for for them are being made as they arrive.

RAISINS—New table raisins have arrived and show fine quality. Prices for the various qualities have been made as follows: London layers, $1.80; connoiseur clusters, $2.40; in 5 1-2 lb. boxes 75c each; dessert, $3.15; Imperial Russian, $4.00; 1 lb. cartoons, 20 to the case, $3.15 per case; new sultana raisins are also in and are quoted at 8 1-2. Some of the local houses are cleaning sultanas and putting them up in 1 lb. cartoons to sell at 10c. Fine, off stalk Velencia, $2.00. Muscatels, 8 1-2 to 9 1-2c.

DATES—New Hallowee, 5 3-4c.

CURRANTS—New Filiatras have arrived and are quoted at 5 3-8c; dry cleaned, 5 5-8c and 1 lb. cartoons 6 5-8c.

FIGS—Choice new cooking figs in 25 lb. mats have arrived and are quoted at 4 1-4c. Prices of table figs are unchanged.

EVAPORATED APPLES—Prices are firm at 6 1-2c and dried apples are almost as dear, being quoted at 6c to 6 1-8c.

SUGAR—There has been no change in sugars for a long time, quotations standing at the same figures for weeks.

SYRUPS—Corn syrups have declined slightly and the new quotations are: Half barrels, 3 3-8; barrels, 3 1-4; 2-lb. tins, 2 dozen in case, $2.40; 5-lb. tins, $2.80; 10-lb. tins half dozen in a case, $2.50; 20-lb. tins, quarter dozen in a case, $2.50.

CANDIED PEELS—There is the customary good demand for all lines of candied peels and the price is slightly under that of last year, orange being quoted at 9 1-4c; lemon, 9c; citron, 13 1-4c.

RICE AND TAPIOCA—The entire bottom seems to have fallen out of the Japanese rice market and prices have dropped to 5 1-8c; Patna is unchanged at 5 1-4c and B. rice 4 to 4 1-4c. Tapioca is firmer and is quoted at 3 1-4c, as against 3 1-8c.

COFFEE—Prices are firmer and No. 5 Rios are worth 8 1-2c.

CANNED VEGETABLES—The situation really presents no changes except that tomatoes have eased off slightly and corn is a shade higher.; quotations are, tomatoes, $2.65 to $2.70; peas, $2.00 and corn $2.10.

NUTS—There is a good sale for all kinds of nuts and many of the new lines are in, though not all; walnuts, Marmots, 10 1-2 to 11c; Grenobles, 12 1-2c; filberts, 9 3-4c; Brazils, 15c; shelled almonds, 26c; peanuts, roasted, 10c.

FISH—Haddies, smoked, are scarce and dear, at present it is hardly safe to quote a price though 12 1-2c is probably correct for the time being; Labrador herring in pails $. 25; herring in half barrels, $4.25; mackerel in kits, $1.80; bloaters, 100s, $1.25; oysters, selects, $2.25 per gallon; standards, $2.00.

POULTRY—Receipts of Manitoba grown birds are very light and prices remain firm at 10c for chickens, geese and ducks and 12 to 14c for turkeys.

GREEN FRUITS—There is trouble in the camp of the fruit men over the railway companies refusing to handle fruit even in heated cars except at the owners' risk and it looks as if Christmast trade would be interfered with on this account. There is not much new to talk about, all seasonable lines being in full supply. Prices are as follows: California naval oranges, $4.25 to $4.75 according to size; Mexicans, $4.50: California lemons, $6.00; California pears, $3.75 per case; Washingtons, $2.75; B. C. pears, $2.75; Malaga grapes, $8 per keg; bananas, $4.00 per bunch; apples, Spies, $4.00; Fameuse, $5.50; Snows, $5.50; common winter varieties, $3.75.

BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Dec. 7, 1903.

CHRISTMAS business among the retail merchants has hardly begun to open up as it might be expected. There is nevertheless a very satisfactory regular trade being done. Preparations for the Christmas season are on an elaborate scale. This year the gift enterprise has struck the retail merchants of Vancouver like an epidemic. It is nothing to get a "chance" on a piano for buying a collar or tie, or for giving an order for a dollar's worth of sugar. The grocers have hitherto kept pretty well out of the proposition, but recently they too have got into line. Now a piano can be seen in the window of one grocery, to be given away with the goods sold. Perhaps it never strikes the merchant that the wholesale people try hard to sell goods to him, but they never give pianos as premiums. It would stand some thinking on his part.

Christmas groceries were liberally represented in the cargo of the steamer Queen, which arrived from San Francisco this week. Large shipments of fancy raisins, figs, nuts, etc., for local dealers, were included in the cargo. The leading grocery staples were large consignments of dried fruits for Winnipeg and Brandon. The last two boats to arrive from 'Frisco have carried big lots of dried fruits for the Manitoba dealers.

The festive Christmas boards which are supplied with good eastern Canadian turkey this year will have to pay for it. Though there have been one or two people taking orders for Christmas poultry at low figures, there is not much likelihood of any of the cheap fowl materializing. The regular dealers are invariably quoting the price as they find it. The chance of selling turkeys at 15½ and 16c. to the retail dealers, as some claim to have bought, is rather slim when the jobbers find the farmers in Ontario are getting that or nearly that for them as they are delivered.

The price here is likely to rule at 23 to 25c. wholesale and 28 to 30c. retail. That figure does not stagger the housekeeper here any langer. There have been some lots sold here in the past week or so as high as 35c. per pound, in limited quantities, but one or two of these importations cost nearly that much. The birds came from eastern Washington, and the price in Seattle was 24c. wholesale, so that with a 20 per cent. duty and about ½ to 1c. charges for transportation, there was not much in it at even 30c. What the consumer thought did not apparently cut any figure. The birds went all right. Of course, there was a little special demand last week because of Uncle Sam's Thanksgiving Day coming in it. The members of the American colony on this side of the line had two Thanksgiving Days to enjoy this year.

Dealers here say that in buying their Christmas poultry in the east, they find that the competition of buyers for the Old Country market has put the price up as well as improved the quality of the stock. The methods of handling have improved, the farmers bringing their birds to central points and delivering them live. The dealers in many cases merely wring the necks, or stretch the necks of the birds, and they are shipped in cold storage, feathers and all, to England, where they command high prices. That makes it dear for the market here, which is dependent entirely on eastern supplies.

The fruit market shows the same condition as last week. The little Jap orange dominates the market. It is the leading fruit and is selling freely. Two more big consignments were received this week. The C.P.R. ss. Athenian, which arrived on Sunday from the Orient, brought no less than 11,000 boxes, and, as if that were not enough to throw into an already overloaded market, another one of the Japanese line of steamers arrived at Victoria yesterday with another large shipment. The prices here are down to 30c. wholesale, and even lower, while 35c. per box retail is common. It is said the fruit is being sold below cost.

Dealers in California oranges say they can sell nothing and that they do not expect to until after the season of the Jap orange is over. That will not be before January 1.

Other fruits are limited in quantity now. The apple crop of this province, which has come forward in very good shape this year, is being well cleaned up. There has been a large percentage of good stock this season. So much so that not many apples have been imported from Oregon and Washington. There is still enough fancy stock for the demand. Cheaper grades are being run off rapidly, and the results to the growers this year should be very satisfactory.

In addition to large supplies of superior stock shipped down from the Coldstream ranch in the Okanagan, the Kamloops district has this year been sending some apples to the coast. This is practically the first time that fruit has been received from that locality, most of the surplus having been shipped into the Northwest Territories previously.

The produce market is in a very quiet condition. The quantity of butter on hand is limited, but so far there has been no stringency. Eggs are in fair supply, though there are few strictly fresh eastern eggs. Some which have been received are selling at 30c. wholesale. Pickled and cold storage eggs are the main supply and will be from now on till the Spring. They are commanding much lower figures, not more than 20 to 22c. Fresh local eggs are over 60c. retail, when they can be obtained.

GREEN FRUITS

Health Value of Apples.

A medical writer says: "The more mellow apples one eats the better, provided they be taken at meal time. It is best of all to eat fruit before meals, and freely as you like."

This will prevent loading the system with a heavy weight of less digestible foods, says the Independent. Senator Vest says that if a man wishes to live long and be able to keep up his work he must eat, not less than one apple with every noon lunch; we are not sure that he said half a dozen. The no-breakfast fad tells us that he must not only go without the morning meal, but that he must live much more largely upon fruit. Some of its disciples insist that the apple may be taken in the place of the ordinary breakfast. John Wesley once referred to apple dumplings as an illustration of the alarming advance of luxuries in England. Charles Lamb quotes a friend who says that "a man cannot have a pure mind who refuses apple dumplings," and Dr. Johnson speaks of a clergyman of his acquaintance who brought his family up almost altogether on this Anglo-Saxon combination. We have recollections of dumplings which might accord with the opinion of Lamb; and then we have recollections of other dumplings which might have been the origin of Calvinism. It must be borne in mind that the ideal apple is one that is fit to be eaten raw, yet the glorious old Spitzenberg is only fit for the cook—in whose hands it may become the very perfection of pie apples. The nineteenth century went out with a marvellous evolution of new sorts of fruits of all kinds, but there was nothing in the list to exceed the delicious juices of the Northern Spy, the Macintosh Red, the Shannon or the Stuart's Golden.

There is nothing in the world to exceed the beauty of the apple blossom; while the air is laden with an exquisite perfume that has charmed a hundred generations—has added to the posey, the love and the comfort of Greek, of Roman and of Briton. But if there be anything more beautiful than the apple in blossom it is the same tree loaded down with crimson and golden fruit. Then it is that the apple touches human nature and wakens in the housekeeper the highest conceptions of the science and the fine art of dietetics.

Export of Canadian Fruit.

OUR American neighbors are manifesting an interest in the way we Canadians handle our fruit. A recent issue of the U. S. Consular reports contains the following paper on the Niagara fruit district, by Mr. Jas. M. Shepard, U. S. Consul at Hamilton, Ont.:

The Hamilton consulate is in the heart of Canada's great fruit-growing district, and hence an important shipping point. The Niagara district is about 50 miles in length and averages 10 miles in width, though at some points within a distance of about 20 miles from this city eastward the finest fruit lands are not more than 2 miles in width. There is nothing in the fruit line that can be raised in this climate but what is grown in profusion—apples, pears, cherries, peaches, plums, grapes, and berries of all varieties. Apples, however, pay the best, for rarely is there a failure in the crop, and there is always a foreign demand for the surplus.

This year the apple crop is good and nets the grower $2 per barrel of three bushels, though fancy fruit, weighing seven ounces and more, packed in bushel boxes, brings as high as $1 per box. Fancy apples for the British market are examined, and all having any blemish are thrown out. Each apple is wrapped in tissue paper, as the orange growers of California pack their fruit, and then carefully laid in a row in the box, so that in the handling of the packages the fruit will not be bruised.

Mr. Linus Wolverton, living near Grimsby, has a large fruit farm, 50 acres of which are devoted to apple culture. He has made a special study of fruit raising, having, been for years secretary of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, and is editor of a magazine principally devoted to fruit culture. From him I have gained information that may be profitable to the fruit growers of the United States. He has found that it pays to be careful in the packing of fruit for the foreign markets, as there is always a good demand for it, and at prices much higher than can be realized at home. Apples wrapped in tissue paper and packed in bushel boxes will always pay a better profit to the shipper than those packed in the ordinary way in barrels. Some consignments that Mr. Wolverton shipped to the English markets in boxes returned him as high as $1.50 per bushel after all expenses were paid.

Apples and pears are the most profitable fruits to raise for export. Plums and peaches are more uncertain, as, while they would pay well if landed in good order, only the hardier varieties will stand shipment.

The Canadian steamship owners have fitted their vessels with cold-storage rooms and ventilating fans in order to secure the export trade in fruit, the government giving them assistance at the outset. Fall apples and pears are generally shipped in cold storage, but the winter fruits can be safely transported in the holds of vessels fitted up with fans. It has been demonstrated that the principal cause of the rotting of fruit shipped in the ordinary way is the foul air that gathers in the holds of the steamers. The fans obviate this by keeping a constant circulation of pure air and a cooler temperature. Choice apples and pears packed in boxes are shipped in cold storage, while the same fruit in barrels is shipped in the holds purified by ventilating fans. The difference in freight charges is considerable. Occasionally a shipment in cold storage or in the part ventilated by fans arrives at its destination in bad order because of neglect to keep the temperature uniform. The fruit is usually packed before it is thoroughly ripened, and the temperature should be from 40 degrees to 50 degrees—never higher—to keep it in good condition. It takes about twelve days for a shipment of fruit from Hamilton to reach Liverpool. Of pears the Bartlett is the best for export trade. This year shipments in half-bushel boxes have netted the shipper as high as $1.50 per box. Grapes can only be shipped in cold storage, and if carefully packed can be profitably exported.

Arizona Oranges Low.

A remarkable commentary on the demoralized state of the orange market, says The Fruitman's Guide, of New York, was shown on Tuesday when a car of oranges from Phoenix, Ariz., shipped by W. E. Ellwanger, of that place, who came on himself to witness the sale, were offered at auction. In previous years these oranges, the bulk of which have been handled by Emil Zucca, have brought remarkably high prices, as high as $8 a box having been obtained and cars averaging $5 or thereabouts. On this car of Arizonas the top price was $3.20, and 80s. and 50s. inclusive brought $2.75, with 176s. at $2.62 1-2. Half boxes sold from $1.40 to $2.05.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. D. McLachlan, Woodville, Ontario, was a caller at the Toronto office of THE GROCER last week.

Messrs. Geo. Bristol, H. C. Beckett, W. D. Wilson and —. Scott, of Toronto, were visitors to Montreal this week.

Mr. A. J. Hughes, representing The "Ozo" Co., Ltd., Montreal, has just returned from his trip east to Quebec City and other centres. He reports good sales.

A visitor to Montreal trade this week was Mr. Geo. Lightbound, of Toronto. Mr. Lightbound is on his way to Quebec City looking after the interests of his numerous agencies.

Mr. H. Martin has been appointed agent in Toronto for B. O. Beland, 26 Lemoine street, Montreal, dealer and importer of fine grocers' specialties, chocolates, French cheese, sardines, olive oils, etc.

Mr. Charles Pickford, of Pickford & Black, who has been in Ontario for several months in the interest of West Indian trade, left on Sunday for Halifax en route for the West Indies, where he will spend the next seven months.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Simpson, of R. & J. H. Simpson & Co., of Guelph, were in Toronto last week attending the marriage of Mrs. Simpson's sister, Miss Rebena E. Smith, who is being married to Geo. L. Gardiner, son of Jas. Gardiner, late of The Pure Gold Co.

PICKLING HOUSE FOR HAMILTON.

It is reported that a large American pickling firm is contemplating the establishment of a branch near Hamilton, Ont. The firm has written the local Tomato Growers' Association, asking permission to send representatives over to have a talk with the members. The name of the concern is a state secret for the present. The association was to have met Saturday to fix prices for the season, but some of the largest growers were not present, and another meeting has been called for a week from next Saturday. It is likely that last year's price, 25c a bushel, will be agreed upon, but there are some who would like to boost it to 30 cents.

BIG SHIPMENTS.

Last Saturday, Dec. 5, it required 13 Grand Trunk double lorries to carry an immense shipment of "Salada" Ceylon teas consigned to the Montreal branch. This is no rare occurrence, and indicates a popular demand for "Salada."

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Cereals for Christmas.

DESPITE the fact that roast turkey and plum pudding are occupying the attention of a large percentage of the Canadian people these December days, it does not follow that breakfast foods are relegated to the background. The very fact of heavy meals for dinner makes all the more necessary the healthful cereal foods which have so dominated the breakfast table the last few years.

In making his Christmas arrangements the grocer should not overlook this fact; indeed, he should bring it strikingly before his customers. A holiday breakfast window or inside display is well worth a little thought. A well conceived cereal exhibit with the food ready for consumption grouped around with the various accessories with a background of the package goods, would have at once a striking and a business-getting effect. If possible, a breakfast table set with snowy white linen and dainty china should be used.

If the grocer has a pair of good windows for display purposes it would be a capital idea to have one set for the Christmas dinner and the other as above for the next day's breakfast. This idea might be suggested by neatly lettered cards. The public would see the point and appreciate it.

In any event the grocer should not lose interest in his cereal and breakfast food department in the rush of holiday specials. It will pay for a little attention.

The Old-Fashioned Biscuit.

How dear to my heart is the biscuit of childhood.
The rolled out and beaten and snowy dough ball
That the cook, with the speed of a deer in the wildwood,
Used to rush through the yard when she heard Missus call!
How the pyramids shone on the dishes that held them
When the napkins fell off and she placed them before us.
How the old folks saw, and the youngsters who smelled them
Brought the grin to her face with their joyful chorus!
Oh, the old fashioned biscuit, the beaten out biscuit,
The glowing baked biscuit, the best of them all,
That the cook used to fetch with a speed that would risk it
Through the yard in response to her ole Miss's call!

—Harry Stillwell Edwards.

Home of Macaroni Wheat.

Although Italy was the original home of macaroni, "the scepter has departed" from her, owing to the disappearance of the variety of wheat from which the flour was made for the paste. This wheat was originally grown in Sicily, but the land is now generally devoted to the grape. Marseilles, France, is now the real seat of the macaroni industry, although it is found in many parts of France. The wheat used to make the macaroni flour in France is grown in the south of France and across the Mediterranean in Algiers and Tunis, but is milled at Marseilles.

Want Flour From Colonies.

Three hundred and sixty-two farmers interested in over 150,000 acres of land in Herts and Essex forwarded a petition to Mr. Chamberlain yesterday, which, while approving of the changes in the fiscal policy, did not consider the proposed duties on foreign corn, meat and dairy products sufficient to stimulate greater production here. From the colonies they want flour and they want a heavy duty placed on hay and straw.

Macaroni Wheat Graded.

The Grain Trade Committee of the New York Produce Exchange has established wheat grades to cover the macaroni wheat. These grades are described as follows: Rice, or goose, wheat that is bright, sound and well cleaned is to be graded No. 1; that which is bleached or shrunken as No. 2; and rejected macaroni wheat as No. 3.

Bread of the Mokis.

A MAGAZINE writer, who has spent some time among the Moki Indians of Arizona and New Mexico, gives the following interesting description of the cornmeal bread that forms the principal article of diet of the Mokis:

"When we had progressed midway into the plain and reached a somewhat broken stretch of ground, we saw the Mokis, who were in advance of us, halt and dismount from their burros. The noon hour had arrived and luncheon was to be served. We likewise halted and the cook set about preparing our dinner. While it was cooking I had an opportunity of investigating the Moki bill of fare. It was a cold lunch and seemed to consist almost wholly of their cornmeal bread, called 'wyavi,' or 'pi-ki.'

"It bore a curious appearance, being made in rolls or sticks 12 to 15 inches in length and perhaps an inch or more in diameter. Each roll was made of several thin layers wrapped around each other and was very brittle. Some rolls were yellow, some blue, others white and still others red. I ate some of it, and while it tasted very flat, yet it was not repulsive. It would require a cultivated taste to relish it. I afterwards witnessed the process of making it.

"The Mokis raise corn of the four—or even more—colors indicated, red, white, blue, and yellow, and one can see it hanging from the rafters of their houses in heavy bunches and festoons, and stored in interior store rooms, in large quantities. A famine in this region once upon a time, so tradition runs, taught them to keep on hand a two years' supply of corn and other food, to guard against future failures of crops.

"Much of the corn is ground into meal and when 'pi-ki' is to be made, the meal is converted into a very thin mush. In the fireplace a long, narrow, flat stone is placed upon stone supports at each end, and, with fire underneath, is thoroughly heated. A woman then scoops up with the hand a handful of the mush and smears it lengthwise over the stone and it is cooked in an instant into long, thin, crisp, wafer-like sheets. A number of the sheets are then rolled together, as the cooking progresses, and the 'pi-ki' is ready to be eaten."

Ontario Grain Standards.

A SPECIAL session of the grain section of the Toronto Board of Trade was held Tuesday noon to discuss a resolution brought forward by C. B. Watts, president of the Dominion Millers' Association, to the effect that the Government standards for Ontario grain should be set annually as heretofore, and that the Government be requested to strike out the amendment to the Inspection Act by which the annual making of Government standards of grain was done away with.

Mr. Watts said they could not afford to do away with the standards, as it would result in injury to all parties concerned. Last year 25 per cent. of Manitoba wheat had classed as No. 1 hard, but this year there would not be 5 per cent., while he ventured to say that the No. 1 northern would make better flour than last year's best.

Mr. McLaughlin said that from the nature of the growth, it would be unfair to grade this year's crop by last year's standard, as it would not be the same kind of grain.

Arch. Campbell, M.P., protested against new standards and new samples every year. He wanted No. 1 hard to be always the same. If the standards were not changed every year, it would be because it was unnecessary to do so.

The chairman agreed with Mr. Campbell, saying they must have a standard, but did not want it changed every year.

Mr. Campbell moved an amendment as follows:

"That in the opinion of this meeting the Inspection Act should be revised so as to define more clearly some of the grades, and that standards once fixed should remain until changes are deemed necessary."

This was lost on a vote of 8 to 7, and Mr. Campbell moved that the matter be held over for further consideration.

It was finally decided to adjourn the meeting for one week.

A Campaign of Purity and Cleanliness.

EVIDENTLY The Napoli Macaroni Co. do not intend that their goods shall remain unknown for the lack of effective advertising. Already this firm have distributed over 10,000 free sample packages amongst the trade and to consumers. They have now issued a most attractive booklet called "Purity." This is by far the most handsome book of the kind that has come to our notice for some time. The cover design is most attractive, though perfectly simple. On the back cover of the book appears a cut of their famous dust-proof package. The book contains an article called "Knowledge," which is both interesting and instructive. It describes in detail the methods employed in the manufacture of Napoli Macaroni—the great care exercised in selecting the right material for manufacture, the elaborate curing system through which the goods have to pass, and the absolutely cleanly conditions which prevail in every department of the factory.

Following this descriptive article comes the retail selling price of Napoli Macaroni. The firm are endeavoring to establish a recognised price for their goods all over the Dominion.

The remainder of the book is taken up with recipes for preparing macaroni, compiled by Mrs. Jean Joy, late of the Toronto Technical School of Domestic Science.

The manager of the company is appointing agents for the sale of their goods. The MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co. are agents for Ontario, and arrangements are being made with other agents in every part of the Dominion.

The company are most anxious that not only shall every consumer of macaroni become familiar with its goods, but that the name of Napoli Macaroni shall be a household word throughout the length and breadth of Canada, and are desirous of sending to every merchant that handles their product a liberal supply of free sample packages and booklets for distribution amongst his customers. A post card addressed to the firm will bring a fresh supply whenever needed.

The two points which The Napoli Macaroni Co. are endeavoring to impress on the minds of the public are the absolute purity of its goods and the scrupulous cleanliness with which they are made.

A number of prominent people in Toronto have had the opportunity of visiting the factory, and expressed satisfaction with the way in which the macaroni was handled whilst going through the various processes of manufacture, clever mechanical devices taking the place of the human hands.

The starting of a strictly first-class macaroni factory in Canada has filled a long-felt want, macaroni, like most cereals, losing much of its nutritive value unless quite fresh.

Exports of oatmeal from the United States for the month of September amounted to 1,852,085 pounds, valued at 854,662, as compared with 4,750,945 pounds, valued at $132,840 for the preceding September. The total exports of oatmeal for the nine months ending with September aggregated 30,908,098 pounds, valued at $852,044, as compared with 39,197,756 pounds, valued at $1,073,229, for the corresponding period ending with the preceding September.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

An Advertisement May Attract a Lot of Attention And Yet Sell No Goods.

THE rapid growth and development of holiday advertising is a marked characteristic of the merchandising of to-day. The advantages of holiday advertising are many, and they are such as will commend themselves to those who give the subject a little thought. In the first place, it shows that the merchant who makes a special bid for the holiday trade is wide-awake and keeps in touch with the spirit of the times. It indicates that he keeps careful watch of the changing seasons, and is always ready to anticipate the wants and wishes of his customers. This spirit is appreciated by the public, and their approbation is frequently manifested by a largely increased patronage. Holiday advertising appeals to the people when they are in a receptive mood. It is placed before them when they are anticipating a period of enjoyment and are disposed to give pleasure to others. It suggests purchases they might otherwise overlook, and would be sorry to miss. It brings the advertiser into closer touch with his patrons, and makes him, to some extent, a sharer in their joys and recreations. Beyond question it imparts a valuable impulse to trade – perhaps at a Season when it is most needed. It admits of striking display which would be unsuitable to ordinary occasions, and makes a pleasing variety where there might otherwise be a tendency to monotony. In short, it is judicious advertising, for it suggests the things the public want at the very time they require them, and thus benefits the buyer as well as the seller.

Christmas advertising is usually chiefly confined to the good things of the table—creature comforts, as the old divines used to call them—but even these cover a wide field and admit of pleasing illustration. Beginning with the good old turkey, with chestnuts for stuffing and cranberries for sauce, followed by the traditional plum pudding, the list runs through all kinds of poultry, meats, and vegetables. All kinds of groceries contribute their quota to the feast; the fruits of the tropics as well as of temperate climes are in demand, and in many homes the festival is incomplete without a generous supply of "old October" and wines of the choicest vintage. The luxuries of the table require an appropriate setting, hence fine napery, delicate china, sparkling glass, and gleaming silver are in demand. These in their turn suggest table cutlery; and, when all the table requirements are complete, flowers for its adornment should not be forgotten. A well-appointed festal board would seem incongruous if its surroundings were inappropriate, and a handsomely furnished room imperatively demands that all who enter it shall be correctly clothed. Hence it will be seen that there is no lack of subjects for special advertisements at Christmas time, and the merchant who fails to utilize the holidays for advertising purposes misses a golden opportunity.

A correspondent writes me as follows:

In your criticism of the ad of J. H. Lacey in last week's CANADIAN GROCER you might have added that it is impossible for John Mathieson or anybody else to get 154 lbs. of bread out of one bag of "Glenora" flour or any other flour. If a baker gets 140 lbs. bread out of a bag of flour he thinks he is doing extra well. Of course, the ad. might pass amongst people who don't know these things, but I consider it is not a truthful statement of the fact. Any Toronto baker will bear me out in this.

Advertising Deeds.

I wonder if the man who caused the above ad. to be inserted—and paid the cost thereof—really thought he would get any results.

I wonder if he thought it would help in any way to increase his trade.

I doubt it. I am inclined to think that he didn't give much thought to it, and likely the only time he worries at all about it is when the bills have to be paid, and then I guess he sometimes stops and wonders if his advertising really pays him.

Good advertising doesn't always get credit for the good it does do, and ordinary advertising sometimes gets credit for doing things it doesn't do.

I remember a man who did some very poor advertising for a very good store, and because his business increased considerably during the year he credited his advertising with being the cause of the increase.

Well, the advertising he did might have helped some, but the increase was really natural, and was accounted for by the satisfactory way in which he did business and the general need for such a store as his in that locality.

Suppose you advertise to the extent of $5 a week. Why don't you make that advertising "worth its salt"?

If you hire a clerk at $5 a week and he doesn't earn it you fire him and get another. You don't do without a clerk simply because those you have had weren't any good, because you need a clerk to help you run your business. If you can't get a good enough clerk at $5 a week, you pay $6, or even $10, if you think the better clerk will earn his wages.

So if your $5 a week advertising is not good enough to make it worth the expense, why, get the kind of advertising that will. Don't do without advertising altogether, because the right kind of advertising can certainly make itself worth having. And if you can't get good enough advertising for $5 a week, pay $6 or $10 if the increased amount will get the kind of advertising that will pay for itself.

Better spend $10 a week for advertising that pays a profit than $5 a week for advertising that doesn't.

If you haven't the time, inclination or ability to write your own ads., get someone who can, and even if he does make your advertising bills a little higher, he is likely to pay good interest on the invest-

CEREAL MAN MARRIED.

A QUIET wedding took place recently in St. Stephen's Church, Weredale Park, Montreal, when Miss Olive Sutcliffe, daughter of Mr. William Sutcliffe, of Lancaster, was united in marriage to Mr. Albert Norton Reay, son of Mr. Charles Reay, of Montreal. The ceremony was conducted by the Very Rev. Dean Evans, in the presence of relatives and friends. The bride wore her travelling suit of brown broadcloth, with white satin blouse and white hat, and she carried a bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Estelle Dorothy Sutcliffe, as bridesmaid, wearing cream nuns' veiling gown, black picture hat, and carrying pink roses. Mr. John Reay, brother of the groom, was best man. After a reception for relatives at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. H. M. Childs, Clarke avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Reay left for Quebec on a wedding trip, and later for Toronto, where they will make their home. The bride was the recipient of a number of handsome and useful presents, including a silver-backed toilet set, the gift of the groom, who presented the bridesmaid with a pearl brooch, and the best man with a watch. Mr. Reay, who, as manager of the sales department for Canada of The Force Food Co., is well-known to the trade, is now receiving congratulations.

NATIVITY OF THE POTATO.

THERE is as much mystery as history connected with the common tuber called the potato. Its nativity, original place in the kingdom of nature and several other things regarding it are still open questions. As to its nativity, the weight of argument seems to favor the tropical or subtropical regions of America. There is a tradition that the vines once grew to monstrous size and that the "balls" were of the "bigness of melons," and at that time the roots were not tubers, the edible parts growing among the branches. It seems that they were first introduced into Europe in the year 1565.

Haskell's "Roots and Wild Plants" says, "Wamkins first fetched a queer, bulbous root out of America which some called a 'bodado,' while others, who had heard the Peruvians mention it, spoke of it as a potato." Periam's Cyclopedia of Agriculture says that Sir John Wamkins found it growing wild near Santa Fe de Bogota at an altitude of 8,000 to 13,000 feet. He also says that it was "fetched out of America" at about the time settled upon by Haskell—viz. in the year 1565.

MONTREAL RETAIL GROCERS.

THE monthly meeting of the Retail Grocers' Association was held on the 2nd inst., at Monument National. A large number of members were present and the various questions brought up were discussed with interest. President N. Chartrand presided.

The question of early closing of stores was brought up and strongly advocated by all present, and as a result of the discussion committees were appointed for the various sections of the city to visit the grocers generally and to ascertain their feelings, and it is hoped that this laudable desire to close early will be attained. The grocers at Point St. Charles now all close up their stores on Thursday evening. The Retail Clerks' Ass'n. should co-operate earnestly with the view of securing at least one evening off in the week.

A deputation was also appointed to visit the Wholesale Grocers of Montreal with the view of having a stop put to the selling to consumers, and others not engaged in the legitimate retail grocery trade.

The Peddling Nuisance question also received a warm discussion.

Sunday selling by grocers was condemned and it was resolved to interest the Chief of Police of the city to put a stop to this practice. It was admitted that the most of this Sunday selling was done by the foreign element, but it had grown to such an extent that some steps were deemed necessary to put a stop to this business.

A report of the Auditors which had been asked for at the last meeting was presented, read and accepted.

A vote of thanks was passed to THE CANADIAN GROCER, also Le Prix Courant for the services which these journals had rendered the Association.

Four new members were taken into the Association.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 13, instead of the 6th, the regular day.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Make Department Seasonable.

THE tobacco department in the grocery is becoming more firmly established every day. The time is passed when the grocer is content to keep a few caddies of chewing and smoking, with perhaps a brand or two of package tobacco.

These are all right, but when there is the trade to be had by carrying just a little more complete stock, the grocer is not the man to let it go by.

A prime requisite for a well-appointed cigar department is a neat and attractive showcase—no necessity for it being over large—in which cigars may be at once displayed to the smoking public, and at the same time kept as fresh as if the inland revenue stamps were still unbroken. A small glass containing a wet sponge, which is never allowed to dry up, will keep the cigars in first-class condition for the short time before, in the well-regulated department, they are sold and have floated away in smoke.

A corner in the showcase may also be utilized to suggest the fact that an interesting line of pipes are kept in stock. The assorted lines which are now put up by the wholesale tobacconist especially for the grocer trade do not run into much money, but the choice they afford would surprise one who had not looked into the matter.

Now that Christmas time is at hand, it would be a good idea to line the inside of the cigar showcase with holly. It will be a novelty for one thing. It is sure to attract attention and suggest the holiday and gift-giving spirit. A few neatly lettered cards suggesting this box or that pipe as a suitable Christmas present should so supplement the suggestion of the holly in the minds of prospective donors of presents that the sales of the department would be materially increased.

Licorice in Italy.

The British Consul at Palermo states that Sicily produces wild licorice to the extent of about 1,000 tons annually. This is not, however, sufficient for the requirements of the manufacturers of the juice, who are obliged to import root from Greece and Turkey. During 1902 it was estimated that about 4,000 tons were imported. It generally requires about six tons of root to make one ton of juice. The latter is principally employed in the tobacco trade ; but for this the more bitter root from Asia Minor appears to have advantages over the Sicilian variety, which appears to affect the keeping quality of the tobacco. Catania is the principal seat of the licorice trade, and the output of juice there is estimated at between 300 and 500 tons annually, while Messina turns out from 100 to 150 tons per annum. Palermo, Caltagirone, Terranova, Termini and Trapani are all producers.

High Prices for Turkish Tobacco.

The high prices which have been paid for the 1902 crop, says the Salonica correspondent of The Deutsche Tabak Zeitung, have much encouraged growers of tobacco, and in this district they have planted 25 per cent. more tobacco than they did last year. In June the rainy weather was most favorable for the tobacco. In many districts, however, there was too much rain, and it is almost certain that there will not be much good tobacco in this year's crop.

Tobacco in West Africa.

A WRITER to The Western Tobacco Journal from Western Africa gives some very interesting information as to the customs current among the natives :

"Carriers are," he says, "generally paid in merchandise, and the most common commodity used for this purpose is tobacco. This is the leaf tobacco prepared for Africa and other tropical countries. It is imported in hogsheads or tierces, or in boxes convenient for transportation into the interior, more often the latter, and usually comes from England or Germany, as most of the trade in this part of Africa is in the hands of English or German firms. There is some importation direct from the United States, but it comprises only a small part of the whole.

"There is a strong demand for tobacco by the natives, and it ranks with the vile variety of liquid poison known as rum as one of their choicest luxuries. The white man who sinks low enough to use this rum, by the way, is considered as ready for suicide. This is the opinion, too, of men who are themselves pretty liberal drinkers of other spirits.

"It is a curious fact that I have seen more women than men using tobacco since I came to Africa.

"Except in the interior, further than I have been, imported clay pipes are used, supplanting a deep-bowled, short-stemmed clay pipe of native manufacture, of which I have seen a few.

"No tobacco is grown is this part of Africa, but I see no reason why it might not be. The quality might not suit a cultivated taste, but it would certainly do for local consumption, where the quality of any commodity is a very minor consideration."

Japanese Tobacco Monopoly.

A despatch from Tokio announces that the Japan Government will introduce in the Diet next month a bill creating a tobacco monopoly, somewhat similar to the Government monopoly, in France. It is proposed to appropriate 36,000,000 yen (about $18,000,000) to compulsorily buy out the manufacturers at the appraised value of their lands, buildings, stocks and machinery, while only a year's income will be paid for their good-will. Inasmuch as there are 6,000 manufacturers and 700 leaf tobacco dealers in Japan owning 17,500 machines, traders regard the appropriation as absurdly inadequate.

A number of British and American capitalists are interested in the matter. It is understood that despatches concerning their protests are passing between London and Washington.

Smokers of Non-Union Cigars.

The cigar makers' unions of New York City have appointed an "entertainment committee" to deal with union men who smoke non-union cigars. Their plan is to keep members of the camera corps near the stores where non-union cigars are sold, and if they found a union man going in they would take a snap shot of him as he came out. The cigar makers' union claim that members of other trade unions don't care whether they smoke union cigars or not, and hope by the camera method to check the use of non-union cigars among the federated unions.

A Match With Each Cigar.

An inventor has submitted to the U. S. Commissioner of Inland Revenue a device in the shape of a band with match attached, intended to be placed around cigars. The match can be drawn from under the band, and one portion of the band contains a striking surface. He desires to know whether such devise is contrary to the regulations.

He was advised that the regulations prohibit the inclusion of any foreign matter in packages of cigars, tobacco, cigarettes or snuff, with the one exception that manufacturers may place within the package small advertising cards, coupons, certificates, etc., which do not materially increase the size of the package, and which are intended as an advertisement of their business solely, and no other business. Therefore the device was declared contrary to the regulations.

Cuban Seeding Methods.

A PENNSYLVANIA tobacco man who has spent the last six months among the tobacco plantations of Cuba, is not very favorably impressed with the methods there pursued. He says:

"For years and years they have raised seed from the second crop of suckers, as the first prime crop was too valuable to waste. This resulted in a great deterioration of the seed, and I often wonder that they raise any tobacco at all. Plants command fabulous prices, and even then are hard to get. They tried to raise some here. They sowed 10 lbs. of seed on an acre, and didn't get enough plants to set an acre of tobacco. Forty miles from here a company has a seed bed of 30 acres.

"Over 100,000 plants came in this morning, packed in a cart. They had been pulled yesterday and the day before and will be set out to-morrow. There is a man over the hill from here who paid $7,000 for plants alone last year. His crop brought $6,000. Even these little scrub farmers around here, who raise four or five acres, have seed beds bigger than an ordinary Lancaster County garden, and sow outrageous quantities of seed."

OUR "CORONATION."

you are industrious you practically know what dollar bills are worth a foot; we all do, therefore, like to buy the BEST goods at the lowest possible figures. Well, here are some of them in the Show Case line: A square front Gem Case in Oak or Cherry, 3-ft. long, 24-in. wide, 14-in. high, securely boxed for $5.50, or a 4-ft. one, same style, height and width for $7.00 CASH WITH ORDER, f.o.b. Toronto.

These are splendid cases for the money, and just the thing for displaying Cigars or Confectionery, etc. Don't hesitate, don't fail to order at once as we have only about 20 of them left over from last Winter's stock that we are clearing out at the above ridiculously LOW price, which is a bargain SNAP. The goods are RIGHT, the price is AWAY DOWN. Regularly they are sold at $7.50 and $10.00 each.

Tobacco Notes.

Mr. J. A. McNeil is representing J. M. Fortier & Co. in the Eastern Townships, and very good sales are reported from this district.

Orders for the special lines of Christmas cigars put up by J. M. Fortier & Co., Montreal, have been coming in freely and are going out rapidly to the trade.

Some little time ago a grocer in St. John's, Newfoundland, ordered a sample lot of cigars from Horrocks, the cigar manufacturer in Toronto, saying that he had seen his ad. in THE GROCER. A traveller who recently visited St. John's tells how on seeing the "Ronto" cigar in the grocery store referred to, he went in to investigate, and found it regarded as a staple line and selling at two for a quarter.

MERCANTILE SECRET RESERVES.

By Seymour Walton.

At the time of a large defalcation in one of the New York banks, it was stated by the officers of the bank that the entire amount could be taken up without charging any of it to the undivided profit account. A great many persons were unable to understand how this could be done, and only a few were any wiser when told that the bank had a secret reserve.

It appears that the practice of accumulating secret reserves is a growing one, and that it is by no means confined to banks. It consists of an undervaluation of assets during the prosperous years, the difference between the market price and the value carried on the books forming a fund which can be drawn on at any time, either by a sale of a portion of the securities or by an entry placing them on the books at a higher value, not greater than the market price. This is more easily done with the stocks and bonds account than any other in a bank, but in a mercantile or manufacturing company the manipulation appears in the inventory or the valuation of the plant.

The question of the advisability of such a proceeding has been hotly argued. Those who defend it seem to look upon the bank or company as an unchanging entity, claiming that it is better to conceal abnormal profits one year so as to provide against the necessity of showing unusual losses in another year. In the case of a close corporation whose stockholders know all about the company, there would be no serious objection, but there would also be no special reason for doing it. In the case of a company or bank, whose stock is somewhat scattered, and may be sold at any time on the basis of the published statements, it seems impossible to find any justification for the practice. The seller of such stock is unquestionably defrauded out of the increased price that he could have obtained for his stock if the true condition of the company had been known to him and the buyer. In the case of the bank mentioned the one item referred to amounted to fourteen per cent. of the total capital. All sales made prior to the discovery of the shortage were based on wrong assumptions, to the detriment of the sellers.

To obtain a clearer idea of the justice of such a practice it is necessary only to look at the true nature of a corporation. It is not probable that any one would defend the managing partner of an ordinary copartnership if he deliberately understated the profits as as to prevent his partners from drawing out a greater dividend than he thought proper. But the president and directors of a corporation are simply the managers of a partnership affair, the act of incorporation being for the purpose of limiting the liability, and for greater convenience, but not in any other way causing the company to differ from an ordinary partnership.

The accountant who is acting for the stockholders of a company is not justified in signing a certificate to a statement which contains a secret reserve or any other element that is not exactly in accordance with the facts. Not only is he bound to tell the entire truth for truth's sake, but he is also under obligations to give all the stockholders all the information in his power. Those accountants who take a different view of this question defend their course on the ground that they are employed by the president and directors of the company, and are not supposed to criticise their management of the business. While it is true that it would be better to follow the English plan and have the auditors appointed by the stockholders as their special representatives, it does not seem clear that the appointment by the directors absolves the accountant from his duty to the stockholders. Although not made directly to them, his report is to be used with the stockholders, and it should be as carefully prepared as if made originally to them, and should contain nothing which would cause any stockholder to make an incorrect deduction as to the true condition of the company.

CO-OPERATION IN REGARD TO CREDITS.

By D. H Kirkland, Atlanta, Ga.

One of the most striking facts in the economic history of the United States for the past 40 years is that in each decade the losses by failures have equalled one-half the capital employed in manufacturing and mercantile pursuits. In the ten years from 1890 to 1899 inclusive, the proportion of bad debt loss to capital employed was even greater. It amounted to the stupendous sum of one billion eight hundred million dollars. In order more readily to grasp the meaning of these figures a few comparisons will be of value.

It was more than three times the capitalization of all the national banks of the country.

It was five hundred million dollars more than the fire losses reported during the same interval.

It was nearly equal to the entire sum of money in the country, which, according to the report of ex-Secretary Gage, was two billion two hundred and fifty million dollars.

It is difficult to comprehend what is included in this array of facts and figures. It staggers me to read of the immense loss of bad debts. The wonder is that as many persons succeed in business as do, considering the chances taken in selling goods ; the meagre information upon which it is necessary for the credit man to predicate his decision.

It is pertinent to ask, are the foregoing results the effect of too meagre credit information or the over-eagerness to sell, which makes credit so cheap ? If it is the result of too meagre credit information, are not the merchants to a certain extent responsible for the meagreness by withholding information from the organized agencies, the acknowledged channels through which mercantile information is transmitted, in the mistaken idea that in secrecy and in the withholding of information from the trade generally they control the trade of a customer. If, on the contrary, these results follow an over-eagerness to sell, can the formation of a credit league control that over-eagerness and prevent these astounding results ?

The great anxiety to increase the volume of business, the jealousy of each other, and the natural cupidity, inherent and inborn in all of us, have brought about a state of affairs that is anything but complimentary to those who indulge in it. The failure of the agency to furnish us with information that we desire, upon which to predicate a credit, is not wholly chargeable to them, if merchants feel that such information is wrongfully placed in their hands.

Credit is too cheap, and its increasing cheapness requires additional safeguards in the shape of more detailed and specific information concerning a certain risk. On every side we hear the old story of going into business with a few hundred dollars, and by the end of the year owing several thousand, with most of the assets outstanding. Once a retail merchant's capital is on his books, and it is only a question of time when he will go under, as he can never figure on prompt collections, but is always asked to meet his maturing bills. For a little while he may manage to buy from one merchant, when his line with that merchant is full; based upon a show of success he easily transfers his account, while owing his original creditor, to another over-zealous merchant desiring to increase his trade. In the course of a little while he becomes slow with his second creditor, and must transfer to a third, and so on down the line, until his reputation for slow pay is established, and then his doom is sealed; it is only a question of what job or jobbers will be the victim and to what extent.

These results are of simple explanation; it is the same the country over. A retailer need never refer to a jobber; all he needs is to let the over-zealous salesman know from whom he has bought goods and the balance may be safely left to the salesman. The reasoning in the majority of cases is about as follows: "If A can carry this account, why cannot I carry it? Why should I bring the fact to A's attention that his customer is about to divert his trade to me?" Discretion, secrecy, diplomacy, if you please, is looked upon as sound business doctrine. Information, instead of being freely circulated is withheld. Sooner or later comes to the surface the startling intelligence that a bankrupt who has been buying from a dozen different jobbers, victimizing them all, has credit extended to him beyond all reason and beyond anything to which he was ever entitled.

If we feel inclined to charge these results to insufficient practical credit information received through the commercial agencies whom we pay for this service, is not their inability to furnish this information so much to be desired largely chargeable to that class of merchants who feel that in giving valuable information to the mercantile agencies they are doing so under protest? Is it not due to a large extent to that old credit system of secrecy and self-delusion which was in vogue 25 years ago? What a commentary on the selfishness and egotism of the man who believes that he is better prepared, more experienced and more invulnerable than his fellow merchants, and that his information is more valued or more valuable than that which he can derive from all his competitors combined! Credit would not be so cheap, nor losses so high, if a rigid system of interchange of reports were thoroughly carried into general practice. There is no better way of learning a merchant's credit worth than by comparing notes with his creditors as to what he owes in all the markets in which he buys. There is no better way of finding out whether or not a man's line is full than by competing trade centres comparing notes as to his debts, purchases and methods of payment.

MACHINE TO REPLACE THE USUAL STENOGRAPHER.

IT is no new thing—the use of a talking machine in the office to receive dictation. Business men have been dictating office correspondence on a graphophone for a long while; but Thomas A. Edison has now perfected his idea of such an instrument and the commercial world will look forward with interest to its introduction. The new machine will employ cylinders nine inches long, each of which holds a number of letters. The cylinder may be shaved 175 times; thus making its use as cheap as the present blank book. There is also a foot stop, and arrangement for repeating the last part of a dictation.

Two of such machines and one typewritist are said to do the work of eight ordinary stenographers.

"To the stenographer," remarks Business World, "let us drop a word of advice: Don't set to work to simply oppose the introduction of the new dictating mechanisms, whatever their kinds. Accept them as gracefully as you can, and line up with the step of progress their introduction typifies, and become an operator of the up-to-date variety. Don't regret the farewells and parting with shorthand and all its uncertainties and delightful puzzles. Put forth your efforts now—not to fight the inevitable, but to equip yourself with proficiency which shall give you new facilities and earning power, and make you, for the future years, as capable a letter-producer by machinery of improved kind, as you have previously been by the machinery of older days—that is, by the pencil.

"Saving of labor is the greatest possible saving in the advancement of any art; and we should welcome the devices that effect it and seek to conform to the new conditions of their adoption."

ANALYZING A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

By W. T. Fenton.

NO general rule in regard to the consideration of important business problems has been of greater service to me than that which may be tersely stated in the words: "Let the other man do the talking." The soundness of this maxim has been so conclusively demonstrated, so far as my own experience goes, that I do not hesitate invariably to adhere to it and to urge it as a cardinal rule that will serve on all occasions. The logic of this procedure is apparent when it is remembered that every man who is charged with the responsibility of presenting an important business proposition goes to his task prepared to answer questions and objections which the man with whom he desires to treat is most likely to offer. I doubt if there is an exception to this rule. "What questions will he ask me and what objections will he raise?" furnishes the groundwork for the preparation which every man makes for the presentation of a business proposal to the man he hopes to interest.

When these questions are brought forward he is ready to answer them; by asking the questions naturally suggested by his statements you are playing directly into his hands and are doing precisely what he desires you to do, carrying out the line of campaign which he has devised. He is ready to meet you at every point with the answers and arguments carefully prearranged and best calculated to win success for his cause.

But what is the result if you place the burden of conversation on him, force him to do the talking and fail to come forward with the questions which he has prepared himself to answer? Simply this: He is thrown off from his predetermined line of attack. This naturally disconcerts him and he finds himself obliged to adopt a new line of campaign. So long as you are attentive to his arguments he must keep on presenting them until he has literally "talked himself out."

In the course of this process he is bound, sooner or later, to drop a word here and there which will give you the clew to his motives and aims and which will place in your hands the possibility of getting to the bottom of the subject.

Consequently I would place particular emphasis on the simple rule of forcing the man who submits a business proposition to do the burden of the talking. This is a very simple point of practice, yet so far as my own observation is concerned, it is more effective than any other in bringing to light the weaknesses of any business proposal. —System.

ESSENCES NOT INJURIOUS.

AFTER examining 100 samples of flavoring extracts and essences, including lemon, vanilla, peppermint, raspberry and strawberry, Mr. A. McGill reports this to Mr. Thos. Macfarlane, chief analyst of the Department of Inland Revenue :

SIR,—I have the honor to hand you, in tabular form, with appended notes, the results of work upon a large number of samples of flavoring essences ; as also upon two samples of cochineal extract, which does not properly come under this head, being used for coloring rather than for flavoring.

Since no generally accepted standards exist for the preparation of these substances, I have thought it sufficient to ascertain the absence of matters dangerous to health ; and I find nothing that can be condemned on this score. The question of foreign coloring matter, in its relation to health, must be considered an open one for the present.

The small quantity of material at my disposal has prevented fuller investigation in certain directions. In the event of another collection of like kind, I beg to recommend that officers be instructed to confine their samples to one particular essence or extract at a time, so that fuller justice may be done to it.

—haven't you noticed how your

Syrup trade has increased, and your Molasses trade dropt off?

The reason is easily given:—

Syrups are cleanly packed, cleanly made — they are healthy, pure and nourishing—

The Premier Syrup of Canada

IS

"Crown" brand Table Syrup

Look for the "Crown" on the package.

Put up in 2-lb., 5-lb., 10-lb. and 20-lb. tins, also bbls., ½ bbls. and kegs.

THE CUBAN SUGAR INDUSTRY

BY some writers it is said that the introduction of sugar cane into Cuba was made by Velasquez, the first lieutenant governor of the island, in 1523, but according to the most authentic Spanish historians, says a writer in Dun's special Cuban number, its introduction did not take place until the latter part of the sixteenth century, when cuttings were brought from the Spanish colony of Santo Domingo, where its cultivation had been introduced by Columbus nearly a century earlier. For many years its cultivation was confined to very small areas near the principal towns, its limited production being attributed, principally, to a lack of slaves. The crop continued to increase in size, amounting to 70,000 tons in 1817, and by 1830 it had reached 90,000, becoming Cuba's principal product, thereby displacing coffee, which had previously been the most important crop of the island.

In 1828 an export duty of four-fifth cents per pound was levied on sugar, if shipped in Spanish vessels, and double that amount in ships of other nationalities. This tax was slowly reduced, but was not abolished until August 1, 1891. The world's sugar crop of 1831, was greater than the consumption, and, despite the claim of the Cuban planters that the prices realized were below cost of production, they steadily increased its cultivation, and by 1840 the crop amounted to 200,000 tons. The crops by succeeding decades were as follows :

1850	300,000 tons.	1889	530,000 tons.
1870	726,000 "	1900	300,073 "

The crop of 1902 amounted to 850,181 tons, and that of 1903, most of which has already been shipped, is estimated at from 965,000 to 970,000. The greatest crop in the history of the island was harvested in 1894, and amounted to 1,054,214 tons ; the smallest in the past 50 years, amounting to 212,051, was made in 1897. This great decrease in three years was due to the revolution, which devastated the greater portion of the island. The falling off in production from 1870 to 1880 was due to several causes, the principal ones being three cyclones which swept over the island during that decade, the ten year's war, and the freeing of the slaves, who fought in that war. There would have been a greater increase between 1880 and 1890 but for abolition of slavery which was decreed in 1880.

The increase of 66 and two-thirds per cent., between 1890 and 1894, was due to the stimulus given to the industry by the adoption of a treaty of reciprocity with the United States in 1891, whereby Cuban raw sugar was given free entry into that great market. The abrogation of that treaty in 1894, brought about a heavy decline in the price of sugar at the beginning of 1895, the great staple selling for the first time below 2c. per pound. Principally to this fact is Cuba's last war for independence attributed.

The prices in Havana since 1850 of raw sugar, equal in quality to centrifugals of 96 polarization, have been as follows :

1850	3.50c. per lb.	1900	2.66c. per lb.
1860	4.87c. "	1901	2.20c. "
1870	5.00c "	1902	1.77c. "
1880	4.87c. "	1903	1.81c. "
1890	2.75c. "

The quotations above given were the prices on April 1 of each of the years named, that date being selected as being about the middle of the grinding season and representing about the average price realized by the planter for his sugar. The price of cane sugar has lately been controlled by the world's beet sugar production, which has grown from 50,000 tons in 1840 to 6,146,000 tons in 1901, the last named amount representing 63.7 per cent. of the total sugar production. The very life of the cane sugar industry has been threatened by the European bounty fed beet sugar. The Cuban crop of 1902 was sold at a loss and the average margin of profit on the crop of 1903 has been small, the fact that any margin was realized being due to the damage to the European sugar beet crop of last year resulting from unfavorable climatic conditions. The adherence of the various nations represented at the Brussels convention to its action in abolishing bounties on sugar, gave the Cuban planter renewed hope, which is further strengthened by the belief that the American Government is at last about to partly fulfil the promises made to its infant protege by favorable action of the legislative branches on the treaty of reciprocity negotiated between the two countries.

The question as to whether cane sugar can successfully compete in cost of production with beet sugar will be answered in the affirmative or the negative, depending upon the person of whom the question is asked. The man who has lands to sell for sugar cane cultivation and sugar mill constructing engineers and promoters will assert that beet sugar cannot possibly live without protection, while the average Cuban planter will reply that cane sugar cannot be produced here below 2c. per pound. A European expert in an article recently published on the beet sugar industry states that the average cost of production of beet sugar in Germany is 1.77 cents per pound. That the cost of production in Cuba has been steadily reduced is denied by none, and there is room in most cases for further reduction. The average cost of the crop of 1903 is believed to have been a trifle below 2c. per pound, and some specially favored plantations doubtless made their sugar at something less than 1¾c., although it is not believed public acknowledgement of this fact would be made by any of them. That sugar will be produced in Cuba at 1¾c. or even lower is not doubted, but in order to do this four conditions will be necessary, viz. : land much above the average in fertility, machinery of the most improved type, favorable location, and very efficient management.

The present area of land in Cuba devoted to the cultivation of sugar cane is estimated at 600,000 acres, or something over, and 171 mills ground this year. Santa Clara is the great sugar producing province of the island, with Matanzas second, the combined crops of the two representing nearly 75 per cent of Cuba's total production. The great Province of Puerto Principe, the second in area and first in arable land in the Republic, has but three sugar estates within its boundaries, whereas it is capable of producing a greater crop than is raised by the entire island. About 90 per cent. of its soil is virgin land, due to the fact that up to about a year ago it had practically no railroad facilities.

The amount of capital invested in the sugar industry of the island is estimated at about $100,000,000, and the value of the crop of 1902 was about $32,000,000. Cuba's most valuable sugar crop was gathered in 1894, when, according to government reports, it reached the sum of nearly $80,000,000, due largely to the fact that it had free entry into the United States. With favorable climatic conditions the next crop will probably reach 1,100,000 tons, which competent authorities believe to be about the limit of production with the present supply of labor. The modification of the immigration laws of the republic, which are the same as those of the United States, is generally advocated by the planters and commercial classes. The present laws exclude the peasant of the Canary Islands, on whom Cuba has always largely depended for the cultivation of its sugar crop, and more especially for its harvesting.

That the adoption of the pending treaty of reciprocity with the United States would stimulate the industry to some extent is generally admitted, but the pretended fear of the beet sugar people that their industry would be seriously menaced by a reduction of one-third of a cent per pound of the duties on Cuban sugar is groundless.

MONTREAL GROCERY ROBBED.

A BOLD attempt at burglary was made at R. Turcotte's grocery store, Lagauchetiere street, Montreal, about 10 o'clock, one night last week, by two young men, who held up the proprietor and emptied the money drawer of its contents.

Finding Mr. Turcotte alone, they gagged him, and threatened to shoot if he made any disturbance. They then took what money was in the till, and tried to escape by the back yard. But they found themselves in a box. They could not get in nor out, as Mr. Turcotte's daughter locked them into the yard and called the police.

Capt. Millette and Lieut. Lafard sent five constables to the store. They found that the men, being unable to get out of the yard, as it is surrounded with buildings, had climbed up into Mr. Turcotte's dwelling house, over the store. One of them was caught behind a bureau, and the other was arrested walking in the room like a gentleman. When searched, but little money was found on them, but a ten-dollar bill was discovered behind the bureau, where one man was hiding.

WEST INDIA HONEY.

DURING the past season some attention has been paid by several of the leading commission houses and agents to West India honey. THE CANADIAN GROCER, in its rounds, has at different times had its attention drawn to this article, and in order to glean information on a subject of possible interest to its readers has interviewed the principal authorities on the subject, and the facts gathered will no doubt be of interest to the trade.

THE GROCER was fortunate in meeting with a gentleman who is now located in Montreal, and who for many years was connected with the Imperial Department of Agriculture for the West Indies, Mr. T. Russell-Murray, 27 St. Sacrament street. Mr. Russell-Murray is now located in Montreal, looking after the interests of his department, and is thoroughly conversant with the subject of West India honey. To Mr. Geo. Vipont, also of T. S. Vipont & Co., and to Mr. John Gunn, of Gunn, Langlois & Co., THE GROCER is indebted for information bearing on the subject.

Jamaica and Trinidad are the two islands producing the largest amount of honey. Jamaica has now attained the position of an exporting country, whereas Trinidad consumes all it produces. The industry of beekeeping in Trinidad is on the increase, and before long that island will become a shipping centre. The variety of bees that are found to be a success are the Italian bees, and all colonies that are being developed are from these strains. The best honey is produced during the months of January to the end of May, that is, during the period of the dry season. It is during the dry season that a large majority of trees are in flower, and, owing to the dryness of the atmosphere, the saccharine cells in the flowers are most highly developed. During the other portion of the year the production of honey is much smaller owing to the lack of flowers and to the necessity of having to feed the bees with molasses and sugar. Honey produced during this period is of much poorer flavor than that produced during the earlier six months of the year.

The various people interested in beekeeping in the islands are working up to the standards of American beekeepers, and import all the necessary appliances for the industry, and as far as equipment is concerned Jamaica and Trinidad beekeepers are not a whit behind those of the northern countries.

In St. Lucia beekeeping and the honey industry is being pushed forward energetically and systematically by Mr. G. S. Hudson, the agricultural instructor, and whose first sales in London brought 20s. per cwt. c.i.f. This honey was very favorably reported upon by the brokers, and though produced at the period when the West Indian hog plum tree was in flower, which tree produces one of the worst flavored honeys, the quality of the honey, irrespective of the flavor, was of good standard.

The color of the West Indian honey is very much darker than our domestic white clover; it is more of the character of buckwheat, though without this latter grade's peculiar flavor. It is also very much stronger, and such honey as has been received in Montreal has been taken by the large biscuit manufacturers for its stronger and more penetrating characteristics. During the past season one Montreal biscuit and confectionery company bought over a carload. In the West Indies as well it is used in the manufacture of goods where sugar would have a tendency to ferment, and undoubtedly for a similar reason Canadian manufacturers find use for it. It is mixed with lime juice in the islands and prevents fermentation and derangement of the stomach.

As regards the prospects of trade with Canada there is no reason why good business should not result, though the greatest difficulty in the way of a regular and steady trade would seem to lie in the fact that the Canadian consumer has for so long been accustomed to using the distinctively rich white clover Canadian honey, and the stronger West Indian honey taste would require cultivation. Still as a product for use by manufacturers the field is open in Canada, and with its stronger and more fermenting characteristics it should find ready sale.

The question of beeswax is conjunctive to this industry, and a few facts culled from Mr. Samuel T. Frost's report, read before the meeting of the Chemists' Assistants' Association of London, Eng., may be of interest. Mr. Frost's report states that large quantities of beeswax are shipped to England from the east coast of Africa, New Zealand, Australia, etc., but the wax for which there is the greatest demand in the open market is Jamaica wax, which is shipped in barrels and casks weighing from 2 cwt. to 4 cwt. It finds an unlimited sale in London on account of its undoubted purity. Prices range from £7 10s. to £8 15s. per cwt., and occasionally there is very active competition for it. In 1898 Jamaica shipped wax to the value of £10,294, as against £4,823 in 1888, while the value of the honey exported in the same years was £2,103, as against £1,341. The increased production of wax in Jamaica is largely due to the intelligent action of the local agricultural societies, backed up by the Imperial Department of Agriculture, in encouraging a better system of agriculture. Jamaica wax varies in color from a nice pale brown and yellow to good red and pale to dark brown or chocolate color.

The duty on honey coming into Canada is 3c. per lb., but West Indian honey coming in under the British preferential tariff would be ⅓c. less, or 2c. per lb.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

Displaying Provisions.

IT is well worth while having the provision department in the grocery well fitted up and appointed. Scrupulous cleanliness is an absolute necessity. Nothing is more enticing than a generous array of dairy products and cured meats arranged in a manner calculated to win the approval of the model housewife. It is to be feared that some provision departments, even when in sight of the public, are not all that might be desired, and some from which the public are zealously excluded, are even less fit for inspection. It is a mistake to hide what you want to sell. It pays to display your dairy products and cured meats, and it pays to spend something in making that display attractive.

Only the other day the writer was in a grocery store, small indeed, but one that used every inch of space and did a very extensive trade, expecially when the size of the building was considered. In this store the refrigerator stood at the back end of the store. It had a glass front and was divided into compartments. There before the eyes of the customer in good cold storage were the dairy and creamery prints daintly done up in parchment paper. In another compartment glassed off from the rest was the cheese, kept perfectly fresh and always in full sight. In the third compartment were the cured meats.

The observer was immediately impressed with the wholesome conditions under which the provisions in this store were handled, and if that glass-faced refrigerator did not pay for itself in a very short time the writer is very much mistaken.

The store with the reputation for keeping its provisions in the best order is bound to get a lot of its neighbors' business.

The Industrious Hen.

It is claimed that China produces more eggs than any other country in the world. The United States ranks next. Great Britain buys more foreign eggs than any other country, and Russia exports more eggs than any other power.

China has 400,000,000 eaters. If they averaged two eggs per week each, that would mean a consumption of 40,000,000,000 eggs annually in the Celestial Empire. Russia exports about 2,000,000,000 eggs annually. Great Britain buys annually 1,700,000,000 foreign eggs. The United States market about 3,000,000,000 eggs annually. Of these New York City handles 854,000,000, or nearly half, and Chicago 570,000,000 eggs. We export only 26,619,000 eggs each year.

Britain's Imports of Butter.

THE following statistics from the British official returns are of interest, as showing the sources of Britain's butter supplies. The figures as to domestic products are unfortunately not available :

Cold Storage Butter.

Cold storage butter is of particulaar interest at this season, and some experiments which have recently been made by the Government go to show the possibility which the freezer affords in the keeping of this important domestic article of commerce, says The Natonal Provisioner. On June 16, 1902, a tub of renovated butter was put in cold storage and the other day it was taken out. In order that there might be an impartial judgment in the case, nearly a dozen different butter merchants were called in to make a trial of its quality. It is stated that every one who examined it graded it as high-grade held firsts. The triers were much astonished when told that the butter had been in the freezer for nearly a year and a half. It is entirely satisfied with the experiment, and it certainly was demonstrated that if the quality of renovated butter was what it should be when cold-stored and then carried at the proper temperature that it would keep as well as creamery.

Another instance is reported of butter which had been kept for several years at a temperature of about 10 deg. below zero, and when taken out of the freezer the most critical experts failed to find any deterioration in quality, nor had there been any shrinkage in bulk. It would seem that low temperatures, even below zero, give most satisfactory results in keeping butter. Of course, the main essential in this case, as in all others, is that the goods should be of prime quality when they are put in cold storage.

Can Britons Thus Deceive?

WHAT some manufacturers would do without Canada it is impossible to say, says London Grocery. From that country we import much cheese, and it is promptly trotted out as pure English —Western English as a matter of fact— by certain "specialists." Apropos of this subject, the following table of estimated home production and imports into this country for the 10 years ended June 30th, 1900, may not be without interest :

	Home. Produce. Tons.	Imported. Colonial. Tons.	Imported. Foreign. Tons.	Total.
1891	147,078	43 228	60,816	251,122
1892	148,642	45,781	59,452	253,857
1893	140 394	55,459	56 767	252,710
1894	131,843	57,322	52,498	241,663
1895	150,611	61,622	52,570	264,803
1896	137,148	62,478	44,596	244,195
1897	130,000	67,028	46 317	243,345
1898	148,260	77,620	49,114	274,994
1899	150,000	73,752	46,985	270,737
1900	130,000	74,702	53,903	258,605
10 yrs. av.	141,396	61,908	52,299	255,603

Evidently, by this table, it is more profitable to fake Canadian cheese than to manufacture it at home. It is mostly sold as English.

Manufacture of Milk Powder.

The composition of the milk is, in the first place, so regulated that it contains a sufficient quantity of mineral matter of the kind most desirable for yielding a good milk powder. This is done by adding calcium salts, e. g., the citrate or phos.

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

Toronto.

NOW that navigation has closed and hogs are coming forward more freely packers are beinning to accumulate some stocks. At the same time the weakness of the British market has brought down the price of hogs here. All this has contributed to bring about a general decline in cured hog products. These prices it is expected will result in good business being done. For the time of the year a fair demand is reported to have been met during the past week. We quote :

In sympathy with the decline in the price of hogs the market is easier, and prices have been reduced all round. The English market for Canadian bacon is said to be demoralized, and cable advices to hand tell of still lower prices. The high price of hogs on both sides of the Atlantic for the last two or three years has induced the farmers to raise so many more hogs, that the European market is now said to be flooded with them. We quote :

Canadian short cut mess pork	$18 00 $18 50

In barreled pork prices are rather lower. Markets this season have not been favorable to the jobber. While domestic mess pork is chiefly used, because of the better packages, some American is imported. In clear, American is sold. The best grades find little sale. In beef, while prices are more steady values rule quite low. There is a fair demand. Smoked meats are quite firm. In pure lard, lower prices rule. For months there has been a falling market. In fresh meats, the Winter steamers cause an increased demand. Beef is quite low but firmer. Lamb continues low. Receipts are large. Mutton is dull. Veal is in light supply. Pork receipts are not large with the price quite low. Poultry is high. We quote :

A NEW INDUSTRY.

A new industry has sprung into existence on the Pacific coast for the canning of a fish known as the eulochon, somewhat like the smelt, which has hitherto been but little used for food purposes, although it is well adapted for that purpose and found in millions throughout nearly all the coast waters of British Columbia. It is a great favorite with the Indians, and the Federal Fisheries Department believes that the venture will broaden out into a flourishing branch of the canning industry.

"JOBBERS AND RETAILERS."

Editor "Canadian Grocer":

Dear Sir,—In your issue of November 20, you published a copy of a circular issued by the Ontario Wholesale Grocers' Guild, and signed by their secretary, Mr. T. B. Escott.

The circular is addressed to brokers and manufacturers, and is a curiosity in a way, inasmuch as it is the first public avowal of the fiat of the Great Organized Body of Jobbers to the retailers, "thou shalt not buy except of us."

Mr. Escott refers to "several firms of retailers and others formed into a joint stock company for the purpose of buying goods at the same price as the legitimate wholesale grocers," and says, "two of these firms have lately come into existence in Toronto, one in Hamilton, etc."

Our company is unquestionably the Hamilton firm alluded to, and we are quite prepared to discuss with Mr. Escott through your columns the right of the retailers to form themselves into mutual wholesale companies for buying their trade requirements and their right to buy in the cheapest market.

Mr. Escott is doubtless genuinely sorry for the outsiders when he says that "our system is unfair to the outside retailers who are not members of the companies"; to be candid, so are we, and we now extend a cordial invitation to all outsiders to come right in.

Mr. Escott is wrong in assuming that we are a closed corporation like his own. Not a bit; any retailers in good standing can participate in the benefits of the company by the purchase of one or more shares. Our system is inclusive, not exclusive.

Mr. Escott thinks our system unfair to the wholesale grocers "who have capital invested, and carry a large stock for the convenience of the retail trade."

If that is the case, possible we can relieve Mr. Escott and his friends' inconvenience somewhat, as year by year we are taking in larger stocks of the goods which seem to cause him so much inconvenience. Mr. Escott also says "they style themselves wholesale grocers, but it is plain they are so only in name." That is pure assertion and without foundation. The dictionary defines a wholesaler as a dealer in large quantities, and our business is essentially and purely wholesale, we buying and selling in large quantities, and not at retail.

The circular is a covert threat against rather than an appeal to brokers and manufacturers.

We have heard many expressions of opinion from both classes since the circular was issued, and there seems to be a general opinion that too many wholesale grocers are already attempting the three-horse act, riding as jobber, broker and manufacturer all at the same time, and until firms comprising the wholesale guild confine their operations solely to wholesale distribution, they cannot object to the retailers taking a leaf from their book.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE GREAT WEST

By W. L. E.

OUR trip down the Arrowhead and Kootenay lakes was one we shall remember all our days. The weather conditions were not all we could have desired, but we enjoyed ourselves, nevertheless. When we left Arrowhead on one of the two stern-wheel steamers, which the C.P.R. has on that route, the rain was falling briskly and the clouds hung like thick gossamers around the mountains which skirt Arrowhead lakes—which, by the way, are but the widening out of the Columbia river, which we saw for the first time at Field, on the main line of the C.P.R.—shutting out peaks from our view. I do not intend entering into a discussion of the logic or the illogic of Samuel Johnston's remark to the effect that the state of the weather has nothing to do with men's moods. All I know is that unfavorable weather at any rate did not permanently effect our state of mind. The fact that we were in good company no doubt is the partial explanation of this, for we know that there is nothing better in the world than good company. It is the spice of life, and its presence makes melancholy next to impossible. In good company one can only be melancholy by premeditation. But besides the spice of good company an exceedingly good dinner was served us on board in the evening, notwithstanding that the steamer had more than its usual quota of passengers. We had nothing better on the whole of our itinerary trip. The same applies to the waiters, who were young, and had more the appearance of three or four year university students than anything else. They were bright and intelligent looking fellows, and knew how to be attentive. The cook who satisfactorily supplied the wants of the inner man—which of course means the wants of the inner woman as well—was a Chinaman, and had been in his present position about 13 years. His assistants were also from the "Flowery Kingdom." One of the pleasures of the trip was to see him and his staff preparing our meal. Everything was done systematically, and there was no flurry nor any exhibition of temper. They seemed quite unconcerned and no more perturbed because of the extra demands upon them than if they were preparing a meal for an ordinary family. More than one of us possibly imagined what would have been our experience if we had been crowding around the female cook in some of our homes under such conditions. It is altogether likely we would have been forced to beat a hasty retreat. The kitchen was situated on the lower deck of the steamer and was open to the view of those who were disposed to visit that part of the steamer—and a good many were disposed.

But the manner of embarking and disembarking passengers interested us possibly more than anything else during the trip down the lakes, for the 125 miles between Arrowhead and Robson, where our journey down Arrowhead lake began and ended respectively, we did not see any wharves. When it was necessary to put a passenger off or on, the steamer made for the side of the lake and ran close to the shore. Then a narrow gangway and sometimes two gangways, one on top of the other, was pushed out from the deck to the shore, and up and down this the passenger ran, possibly with a couple of grips in his hands, while we held our breath expecting every minute to see him topple over, so steep was the incline and narrow the gangway. But I suppose the people in that part of the country are used to walking such gangways. At night the process of embarking and disembarking passengers was even more interesting than in the day time. Commercial travellers and others who wanted to get on board our boat, lit bonfires on the shore. These bonfires, particularly in the darkness of the night, with the black mountains as a background, made a wierd picture indeed. Some of these bonfires were of large proportions, and it was a wonder to us why they wasted so much cordwood for such a purpose, but then of course wood along the shore there is of no value, and there is an abundance of it. When one of these bonfires was sighted by the man at the wheel, the prow of our steamer was turned towards it, while the powerful searchlights on either side of the boat were brought into play to light our way to the shore. These searchlights put one in mind of a glaring two-eyed monster; and the sight to the passenger who was watching us on shore, must have been a striking one indeed. Frequently there would be no sign of any habitation at spots where we stopped to take on or put off passengers. At least the searchlights, as they ranged along the shore for some distance penetrating into the forest and valleys between the mountains, revealed none. At such spots, when a passenger was put off, the steamer was kind enough to turn one of its searchlights shoreward in front of him as we steamed away to guide him on his way through boulders, trees and fallen trunks, until we came to a sharp bend in the shore, hiding him from our view. Of course, during the landing and embarking of passengers we easterners could scarcely refrain from passing jocular remarks, and particularly when a passenger would ascend the gangway as if he was walking a tightrope, we were always liberal in our applause when his feet touched the deck of the steamer; or, when he was descending, and was safely on shore. It was astonishing how quickly our steamer was turned, and how easily it was handled. The engineer in charge of the steamer informed us that this was due to the fact that instead of possessing one rudder, as is usual with ordinary steamers, she was equipped with two very powerful ones.

---an old Quaker once said

"There are three things I could never understand—

1st—Why boys will throw stones up into the trees to bring down the apples; if they will let them alone they will drop down themselves.

2nd—Why young men will go courting the girls; if they stayed at home the girls would come to them.

3rd—Why men will go to war to kill each other; if they remained at home they would die off naturally."

to which wise remarks we add a 4th—

MANUFACTURERS IN THE WEST.

WITH this number is concluded the impressions of the Canadian manufacturers, gathered during their trip to the West, which for the last few weeks have been appearing in "The Grocer." The questions put to the manufacturers by this paper were, it will be remembered, as follows:

QUESTIONS SUBMITTED BY THE CANADIAN GROCER.

FIRST What most impressed you from a business standpoint during your trip through the Great West to the Pacific Coast?

SECOND What is your opinion in regard to the future of Manitoba and British Columbia as manufacturing centres?

THIRD—In what way can manufacturers of the east secure a larger share of the trade of the Great West, that now goes to the manufacturing firms in the United States?

FOURTH How can business men in the east best assist the people of Manitoba, the Territories and British Columbia in developing the natural resources of their respective parts of the country?

J. F. Wildman, of The Office Specialty Co., Toronto.

First. Vast territory for business when peopled.

Second. Manufacturing to be successful is a business of close daily detail. Factories should be located convenient to the centres of supply for labor and material. The spirit of the West is not in accord with detail work; broad lines apply. It will be some years before manufacturing will prosper there.

Third. In what way can manufacturers of the east secure a larger share of the trade of the Great West that now goes to manufacturing firms in the United States? Better goods, quicker filling of orders, insisting on short credits.

Fourth. Keep out of wild cat speculations and spend a little money in personally seeing their investment enterprise.

The Wm. Gray & Sons Co., Limited, Chatham, Ont.

First. The easy circulation of money.

Second. It will be some years yet before those districts can profitably become manufacturing centres.

Third. Advertise largely, and have depots and agents for their goods.

Fourth. By sending them the very best of all they require in machinery and all classes of goods, at reasonable prices, and giving ample time for payments.

E. A. Wright, The Canadian Rubber Co., Montreal.

First. The westerner's unbounded confidence for the future prosperity of Western Canada, and the unfortunate feeling that seems to exist in that portion of the country, that Canada is divided into two section, the "East" and the "West."

Second. I cannot conceive of Manitoba or the Northwest Territories being manufacturing centres, my impression was that the provinces from the Atlantic all along the waterways to Northern and Western Ontario and the Province of British Columbia would be the manufacturing provinces of Canada, and would supply the vast areas of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories.

Third. By a livelier interest of the manufacturers to supply the specific needs of that country, the revision of the customs tariff, and further transportation facilities, to reduce freight rates, and ensure quick deliveries, also an honest policy in all dealings, with the view of establishing thorough confidence in the goods manufactured in our own country.

Fourth. By hearty co-operation in all immigration schemes whereby that country may be settled by the best class of people landing on our shores.

SCOTCHMAN ON CANADA.

An associated press despatch quotes The Scotsman as saying: "Judging from the large number of immigrants flocking to Canada, much of the wheat we use in the future will come from there and will make us independent of foreign nations."

The assets of Price Bros., general merchants, Iberville, are to be sold.

BUSINESS MEN'S HOLIDAYS.

THE nervous strain of modern commercial life bears heavily upon the business man, especially he of the city, whose air is diluted with coal dust, whose view is cut off by brick and mortar and whose rest is continually harrassed by the nerve-wracking noises of a great city. "Back to nature" is a cry that is every day growing in volume. Every Summer sees an exodus from the crowded purloins of our cities to our lakes, our mountains and our sea shores. Unfortunately, the business man is often chained to his store or office during the Summer months and is unable to get away for perhaps even a couple of days. The Winter and Summer are for many business men the busy seasons.

It is this fact, perhaps, that explains the growing number of business men who take a week or fortnight off in the latter part of Autumn or the early Spring to prepare for the rush of work which is to follow. Indeed, there is much to commend these seasons as the business man's holiday. With him a holiday is a means of recuperation. He wants to build up wasted tissue and nerve fibre. The hot, enervating months of Summer are ill adapted for this purpose. But a couple of weeks out of doors in the bracing Autumn atmosphere or the balmy breezes of early Spring will make a new man of one. Moreover, the hotels are not crowded, as in the Summer. Accommodation is better and rates approach more to reason.

The high pressure at which we are living makes these periods of rest an absolute necessity. A man returns to his work with a vim and energy wholly new. He thinks better, acts more effectually and is happier all around.

If the business men could live in the leisurely fashion of the farmer, who, except at harvest time, is never in a particular hurry; if he could sit on the fence in the sunshine watching the corn grow, feeling the Summer breeze in his face and breathing in rich draughts of exhilarating fresh air; if he could live out of doors most of the year with nothing to assail his ears but the song of the bob-o-link, he could afford to despise the luxury of a holiday. But we are not living that way. We are burning the candle at both ends. We are working this human machine of ours beyond its designed capacity. Once in a while we need a rest. Sometimes we have become so thoroughly mechanical that we are no longer conscious of that need. We have become ossified. There is a remedy, if tried soon enough. It is simply, Take to the woods, or any place out of the city,

> "Where the trolleys cease from troubling
> And a weary man can rest."

AGENCIES FOR BRITISH FIRMS.

CANADA has often suffered at the hands of the superficial British tourist, who does a couple of the principal cities, meets a handful of more or less obscure persons and rushes home with the idea that he knows Canada and forthwith finds his way into print.

An instance of this is brought to notice in a Canadian Associated Press despatch from London, England, which says:

"At a meeting of the Dudley Chamber of Commerce, Mr. F. W. Cook, who recently toured Canada, said that if the Canadian market is to be won, the small details of manufacture should be closely studied. Either principals or trusted representatives should visit Canada, as the local agents are of little or no use, and sometimes betray the confidence of the firms they represent."

If Mr. Cook is correctly reported he has done Canada a grave injustice. It is absurd to state that the principals of British firms or their trusted representatives must necessarily visit Canada if the Canadian market is to be won, and to reflect upon the honor and honesty of local agents.

It is indeed to be desired that principals or their trusted representatives should visit Canada, but not for the purpose of supplanting local agencies, but rather that they may see the necessity of working in conjunction with the latter.

THE GROCER knows of several cases of British firms seeking to enter the Canadian market with goods which should be readily acceptible here, who have failed simply because the hands of their local agents were so tied that it was impossible for them to do business. By the time they had consulted their principals the deal was off. The latter also were unfamiliar with Canadian business methods and customs and constant friction was the result.

It is true that some local agents may have proved dishonest, and betrayed the confidence of their principals, but there are plenty of agents willing to represent reliable British firms whose standing is unassailable and only by initial carelessness in selecting a fit and proper agent can loss occur.

The proper method for British firms contemplating entering the Canadian market to pursue, is to decide upon a reliable agent and then give him a wide range of discretion. He is acquainted with all the local conditions and will make the agency a success if it can so be made. He certainly will not be able to make it a success if he is hampered by vexatious and inapplicable rules from abroad.

It is safe to say that the standard of commercial honesty in Canada is equally as high as in the mother land.

Let not British manufacturers who are not in a position to visit the Canadian market personally or through a special representative despair. THE GROCER is in a position to put any of the trade in Britain in touch with agents in all parts of Canada, who would make thoroughly capable and reliable local representatives.

THE WESTERN GRAIN CONGESTION.

By our Winnipeg Representative.

THE handling of the crop situation may be said to have reached an acute stage during the past week when the Board of Trade discussed a number of letters sent in from country points, complaining of the large elevators refusing to buy grain, and the replies of the elevator companies to this complaint. The Fall, after the early September storm, was so fine that the farmers very wisely devoted themselves to the Fall ploughing, with the result that more ground is in fine condition for seed next Spring than ever before. The country merchants and the city jobber alike looked with favor on this course, and no one worried about collections being slow, because with the opening of November they expected the big rush of wheat to come and money to move accordingly. But with the beginning of November all the large elevator companies instructed their buyers at nearly every point to cease buying wheat. The reasons for this are simply the result of car shortage on the C.P.R. on the one hand, and the "Grain Act" on the other. In the days gone by when the farmer had to ship through the elevator he got, in many cases, the worst end of the bargain ; then came the amendments that permitted of the flat warehouses and loading platforms. Then the cry was that cars were not properly distributed, and the elevators were once more getting the best of it. The Government was once more appealed to, and the act was made to read that the car distribution should rank according to the orders on the railway companies' books, and that all hands should be served with one car round and start again. The committee came back from Ottawa and said this time the thing would work, and that the farmers had got just what they wanted, but after a tackle of it this Fall they are beginning to be harassed with doubts. It looked so nice on paper that the wicked elevator men were going to have to take their turn with the farmers. But in plain English what did it mean? The average elevator of 25,000 bushels capacity, taken one day with another throughout the season represents, not one farmer, but from fifteen to twenty, so that when the elevators are only served with one car in order with the individual farmer it means that fifteen or twenty farmers are getting one car while the individual farmer gets a car all to himself. It takes the elevators twenty minutes to load anything from eight to twelve cars, and the farmer gets twenty-four hours to load a car. The books of more than one station agent have shown orders for fifty cars for farmers. The elevator companies simply sized up the situation ; their elevators were nearly full, there was no hope of getting cars to get the wheat out before navigation closed, all the wheat in their elevators had been bought at high prices, so they said : "There ! the farmer has a better chance for cars than we have ; we will not take his wheat into the elevator, but when he gets a car and loads it we will pay him the highest track price for it. If farmers wish to store wheat in our elevators we will take it in, but not otherwise." To any one familiar with the situation in the West it will be easy to see just how this would act. Scores of farmers cannot sell their wheat at all because they cannot get cars to load it in, and the elevator people say they cannot buy it except on the track because they have no chance of getting it out, and are already full with very high priced wheat, and for the moment matters are at a deadlock.

Another difficulty that has embarassed the situation is the low grade of the wheat this year, owing to the storm. The grade has been difficult to ascertain, and even experienced buyers have made mistakes. This means that in many cases the elevator companies find themselves with wheat for which they paid a high price, grading two down from the grade at which it was bought. Every elevator man declares that with the grade low, the high prices and the small movement they would have been money in pocket if they had not opened an elevator this season. They have withdrawn money from country points that had been sent out to purchase wheat, and are calmly waiting the course of events. Of course, the farmers declare that the elevator companies are punishing them for the passage of the "Grain Act," but the elevator men say that they are business men, that under the present conditions they cannot make things pay, therefore they have stopped buying.

In the meantime collections are slow and likely to remain so. The Board of Trade have appointed a committee and they will look into the situation and see what can be done. There is also promise of better all-rail facilities for shipment this winter, as the C. P. R. boats at St. John are hungry for cargoes. There is nothing alarming in the situation, and time and patience will adjust the matter, but in the meantime several million dollars will not be in circulation that ordinarily move about at this season. Jobbers, although they are taking an interest in the matter, express the utmost confidence in the situation and seem prepared to wait a little longer for the money to move, indeed many of them do not hesitate to say that considering that the larger elevators have not been buying anything worth while for three weeks, collections are surprisingly good.

It will be well for wholesale houses in the east to take the foregoing facts into consideration if they find their paper met more slowly than they had reason to expect. The wheat is there and it will move in time, and the prospects are at least fair for its bringing its price. The present situation is annoying but not serious ; at all events, not at the moment.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association was held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week in the Town Hall at Trenton.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

W. H. Gillard & Co. have just received their second shipment of Sair and Hallowee dates, which they state show the finest quality they have ever imported.

A shipment of carburet of iron is now in with W. H. Gillard & Co.

Hudon, Hebert & Cie., Montreal, have received into store a carload of Borden's "Eagle Brand" condensed milk and peerless evaporated cream.

The attention of buyers is directed to this week's ad. of Hudon, Hebert & Cie., who are offering their usual good values. Something of interest is always contained in their ads.

Hugh Walker & Son, Guelph have their first car extra fancy Northern California Navels in: they are sweet and A.1. quality.

New filberts, new Tarragona S.S. almonds, new Grenoble walnuts, have arrived to Hugh Walker & Son, Guelph, finest quality.

White & Co., Toronto, are placing on the market this season's holly, packed in cardboard boxes 20x12x4 inches, suitably printed, etc. This fills a long felt want with retailers, as it is a very convenient package for handling seeds, at a very moderate price, saves time, waste, and money. It is bound to be a seller. They are also offering holly in the regular large cases as well.

New Messina lemons have arrived in very fine condition this year. White & Co. have received some fine shipments, and are quoting very low prices.

Christmas oranges will begin to arrive this week: Floridas, navels for the better grades, and Mexicans, Valencies and Jamicas for the cheaper lines, White & Co., Toronto, are offering all the above lines at closest prices.

McGregor Harris & Co., Toronto, report a very satisfactory demand this season for the high-class confectionery of their manufacture. In this connection it may be mentioned that a merchant from Ceylon who recently called on "The Grocer," remarked incidentally that he had never tasted any goods equal to the "Quaker" brand of marmalade made in Canada.

The attention of buyers is directed to the two-page advertisement in this week's issue, of Laporte Martin & Cie., Montreal, who are offering special Christmas and holiday values.

Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, are offering a valuable premium, an electric hand lamp, free with every $10 case order of their special lines of liquors. See their ad. for particulars.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are offering some extra fine Brazil nuts.

Buyers for Eleme figs should get prices from H. P. Eckardt & Co.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. C. W. Gregory, representing Messrs. Snowdon, Forbes & Co., Montreal, who has been laid up through illness, is able to be up and about again. He left for the West on Monday, and the merits of "Bee" brand goods will be expatiated upon in his own inimitable way. "Watch" for him.

Mr. H. M. Tudhope, Wingham, Ont., paid "The Grocer" a call Wednesday. He reports business very good in his section, and expresses great hopes for the Christmas trade.

Mr. Peter Freyseng, of The Freyseng Cork Co., Limited, Toronto and Montreal, was a visitor to the Montreal factory and offices during the week.

Mr. C. N. Murphy, grocer of Burlington, Ont., was in Toronto this week on business and called on "The Grocer." Mr. Murphy reports trade very good.

Mr. A. B. Hardwicke, representing Pyle's pearline in Ontario and Quebec, was a visitor to the Montreal jobbing trade this week.

Mr. John A. McCrea, of Guelph, paid "The Grocer" a visit on Monday of this week.

Mr. Alderman Laporte, of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Montreal, is taking a few weeks' rest at Atlantic City and New York. Besides looking after his responsible duties as head of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Mr. Laporte has given close attention to civic affairs, and he felt a little rest had been earned.

Mr. G. W. Hopkins, Boston, Mass., is in the city in the interest of the oyster business of R. R. Higgins & Co., Boston. Mr. Hopkins visits Eastern Canada regularly, and has been covering the territory for over nineteen years. His specialty is "Cape oysters" from the oyster beds at Wellfield, Cape Cod.

A LIPTON MAN.

J. F. McGOVERN, of the New York branch of The Thomas Lipton Co., is in Montreal, and, in company with A. Childs, one of the city representatives of Laporte, Martin & Cie., Canadian representative for Lipton's teas and coffees, has been calling on the grocery trade. To a representative of "The Grocer" Mr. McGovern stated that it was only his innate modesty that prevented him from stating how successfully his canvass had resulted, but that the new style of package (sealed tins) was meeting with favor he would emphasize strongly and openly. As regards the quality of the goods they were selling he refrained from making any comparisons, the position and standing of his firm and their growing, buying, blending and packing abilities were recognized the world over. Mr. McGovern leaves for New York in a few days thoroughly satisfied with the results of his trip. Tea demonstrators have been among the leading grocery stores of Montreal, and, at the moment, a very elaborate demonstration is being made in The S. Carsley Co.'s departmental store.

A WESTERN VISITOR.

WILLIAM BRAID, of William Braid & Co., spice mill and wholesale tea and coffee merchants, Vancouver, was in Toronto this week. William Braid & Co. have one of the best equipped spice mills and coffee factories in Canada. Their mill, which a representative of "The Grocer" had the pleasure of going through while at the coast some time ago, is a model of cleanliness, brightness and thoroughness in its equipment with modern machinery. Mr. Braid is well known in the east, having for years been a traveller for a wholesale grocery house. Judging from his appearance, the western country has agreed with him.

"BRING YOUR OYSTER KNIFE."

THE Montreal representative of "The Grocer" was startled last Saturday by receiving the above message by telephone. Always having been considered of a peaceful nature, this sanguinary message tended to upset his nerves. However, it was only a peaceful invitation to a little entertainment given by Mr. O. Lefebvre, proprietor of the Ocean Mills, Mount Royal avenue, to join him and a few others in an attack upon the luscious bivalve. Needless to say the invitation was accepted, and promptly at eight o'clock the "Grocer" representative was on hand.

The occasion was the celebration of the victory obtained in the courts by Mr. Lefebvre over an imitator of his "Chinese Starch." A very pleasant evening was spent with music, songs and speeches, and, it is needless to say, that the destruction in the ranks of the malpecques was very heavy. Among the gentlemen present were the following: J. W. A. Courtemanche, Adolphe Courtemanche, Jules Bourbonniere, A. Goblet, Geo. Booth, M. Parisault, Paul Prudhomme, Z. Miseault, O. Lefebvre, Geo. Dufoy, A. Sauve, F. Belleau, and Louis Thivierge.

HOLLY.

McWilliam & Everest's importation of holly for the holidays will arrive next week, and orders from the outside trade will receive immediate attention.

. . . The character and standing of "Salada" Ceylon Tea is so well established as to have made its name a household one throughout the entire American continent.

The estimation in which it is held by the community is attested to by an annual sale of 12 million packets, and still the demand continues to increase . . . We think we may prophesy (without bombast) judging the future from past achievements, that the demand will yet cause the sale to dominate the Tea markets of the world.

The reason is as plain as daylight.

"Salada" Ceylon Tea is incomparably better than others, yes, and uniformly so, then, it is irresistibly pushed to the distinct advantage of the dealer, as it sells without resistance.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, December 3, 1903.

GROCERIES.

A ROUND of the wholesale trade this week finds a general feeling of confidence everywhere prevalent. Trade is very active in all lines, especially in Christmas goods, and the week just past compares very favorably with the preceding week and the corresponding week last year. Collections are reported to be keeping up very well, although some think they might be improved. The travellers report the feeling throughout the country buoyant, and a good Winter's trade is anticipated. Complaints are heard of restricted trade with the lumbering districts to the north, but on the other hand there are houses that report trade never better along the north shore, and that the Soo colapse has had no appreciable effect, and if the industries are got under way again by Spring, will have none. Canned goods maintain a firm position, with the interest centred round corn, which is manifesting an upward tendency. Coffees are still on the upward march, and indications point to a short crop for coming season. Spices are dull, but strength is maintained, especially in cloves. Syrups and molasses are moving freely, and an advance of 2c. per gallon is noted in New Orleans molasses. Rice and tapioca are unchanged. In London the tea market has shown a slight reaction, but not enough to encourage importation locally. There is still a scarcity of good Ceylon and Indian for price, but importers have not yet shown an inclination to enter the market, which they cannot long defer. Foreign dried fruits and nuts are moving very freely just at present and are attracting a good deal of attention; there is an upward tendency prevalent. Dates, currants and Tarragona almonds have made quotable advances during the week. Sugar has had a dull week. Despite small stocks United States refiners are indifferent, and just at going to press a decline of 1-16 in raws was reported. Demand for refined has been light. Locally prices have continued on last reported basis, with a moderate amount of business reported.

CANNED GOODS

The canned goods position continues strong, with corn as the chief factor. Prices on all lines of vegetables are very firm, especially in peas and tomatoes. No corn is to be had at less than 81; and as high as $1.10 is reported paid on some transactions. It is difficult to say just at present what lines may be short, and jobbers have given up hope of any recession in price. We quote:

COFFEES.

The coffee market is strong with an upward tendency, and mild coffees are beginning to feel the effect of the rise. Latest advices from abroad report active trading and higher prices in New York. European market has advanced sharply, and speculation is active. Brazil is firm. The outlook is for a strong, firm market for some time from now. Little doubt is held that there will be a shortage in Rios and Santos, as the weather conditions in these districts have been very much against the coming crops. Jobbers think that coffees have seen their lowest level for some time. Local trade is good and interesting, while invoice prices are still about as a week ago. We quote:

SUGAR.

The week under review has been quiet, with a rather easier feeling. Despite the small stocks held by United States refiners, they have persisted in their indifferent attitude, keeping out of the market as much as possible. Receipts for week ending November 25 were only 26,193 tons, which only exceeded the meltings by 193 tons, and left total stocks in all hands of 102,828 tons, or nearly 86,000 tons less than same time last year. Of these, only 73,224 tons were held by refiners, which, it will be seen, is less than three weeks' supply at present rate of meltings, but, notwithstanding the strong statistical position, purchases of sugars to arrive have been very light. As we go to press we hear of sale of cargo centrifugal sugar 3 11-16c. duty paid New York, basis 96 degrees test, establishing 1-16c. decline for the week, and it may be that importers will release further parcels on this basis rather than put them into store. United States refiners are encouraged in their indifferent attitude by the prospect of the ratification of the Cuban Reciprocity Treaty. The Senate has arranged to take a vote on December 16, and, in the event of its passage, there will be no delay in its ratification by the two governments. Should this be effected about the date mentioned, the treaty will probably become operative on Saturday, December 26. The United States refined situation has been very disappointing to refiners, demand being very light and there being nothing to encourage them to hope for an advance. In New Orleans and San Francisco reductions have taken place in prices, but in the eastern markets quotations remain unchanged, with no special indications for the immediate future. Europe has fluctuated only fractionally during the week, 88 per cent. beet having declined to 8s. 4½d., basis f.o.b. Hamburg, which is the nominal quotation as we go to press. There is no change in the situation of growing crops, and there is nothing to indicate that American refiners are buying in Europe. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,053,828 tons, against 2,215,039 tons same time last year, the decrease being 161,211 tons. There are no changes to note in our local market, prices remaining as last advised, and there is a moderate amount of new business transpiring for actual requirements. We quote:

SPICES

Cloves are a little higher, in fact, higher than for years, with a stronger market. In other lines the market continues tame. Prices, however, are steady and unchanged, as holders have confidence in the future of the market, based on the favorable statistical position. New York at present is the cheapest market for most lines of spices. Locally brokers report business dull, but wholesalers are finding a very liberal drawing on their stocks. We quote :

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

These lines are in good active demand, and prices are firm. There is an increasing call for syrup and also for molasses. An advance of 2c. per gallon on New Orleans is quoted as below. We quote :

TEAS

There is still an absolute scarcity of good Indian and Ceylon for price, and although the London market shows ¼d. to ½d. per pound decline on common medium grades, they would still cost 1 to 1½c. over price at which buyers can be found for importation, but unless the foreign markets should suffer considerable decline, the local price will have to advance, as importation can not be much longer delayed. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

The general supply of Grenoble walnuts arrived on Tuesday, having been delayed a week in New York. In dates, some sales for importation of car lots have been made for prompt shipment from England at 1c. per pound below deliveries now being made ex direct New York steamer. Cables from Patra show a firmer market for currants, and mark an advance of 6d. on last week's quotations. Tarragona almonds, which are not too plentiful on the market, there being several buyers for importation, have advanced 1s. per bag in Spain, making them cost 1c. more than for October shipments. The season is too far advanced for much interest to be taken in foreign markets for Valencia raisins, but some sales have been made between houses on the street, and it is not thought the quantity on hand here will be more than sufficient to tide over the holiday trade. Owing to the tremendous glut of freight in consequence of direct steamer and other late vessels unloading at Montreal at one time, dried fruits have been very slow in coming forward. Some houses report a smaller quantity of prunes selling this season than in former years, and attribute it to the large crop of apples ; higher prices are not looked for. There is a better demand for the better grades of table raisins, locally the cheap grades being in less demand than in former years. California raisins are also said to be receiving but a small call this year. Wholesales generally report the dried fruit trade on the whole very good this season. We quote :

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.

The receipts of new laid eggs are very light and bring very high prices. On this account the trade are drawing largely on storage stock, of which the supply is not large, and dealers anticipate a shortage. Sales have been made this week to Montreal dealers for local consumption, as that market is also short of stock. We quote higher values all round as below :

HONEY

The market is perhaps a little firmer since the colder weather. Supplies, however, are ample, and there are still stocks in producers' hands. Sections are more firm than extracted. There is a good average demand for both. We quote :

FISH.

The cold weather has resulted in a brisk market. The demand has been good and supplies generally fair, although cod and haddock have been scarce on account of the weather on the Atlantic coast. Tullibees and goldeyes are now in stock. Oysters are plentiful and meeting a good demand. We quote :

GREEN FRUITS.

The approach of the holiday season is having a good effect on the fruit market. Supplies are coming in in very good shape and quantity, while the demand is quite active. Messina lemons are off 25c. per box, and Florida grape fruit are down 50c. per box since last writing. BRITISH COLUMBIA MARKETS.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 28, 1903.

THE last goods to reach Dawson, according to advices brought out by travellers, had a close shave from being left on the river for the Winter. One boat is tied up at a point 100 miles up the river from Dawson, and she will stay there till Spring, as she is frozen to the bottom. There were at one time nine steamers stuck at various points on the way down the river.

In some cases the cargo had to be jettisoned to save the steamer, and in one or two cases the goods, such as potatoes, eggs, fruit and other perishables, were so badly frosted that they were useless. Cheese and condensed cream, which were among the articles frozen, may be of some use, but other goods are a total loss, except potatoes, which so long as they are kept frozen, may be used.

When the last boat left Dawson early in the month, the prices quoted for potatoes were 12½c. for frosted and 15c. per pound for sound. Eggs were already selling at $18 for the 30-dozen case, and they will be up to $27.50 before long; retail price is practically $1 per dozen now. The bettering of the trail as soon as the river is all frozen over will cause some small lots of eggs and similar goods to go in over the ice in warmed stage sleighs, but the prices inside will never go below what it costs to bring them in at this season. Last Winter a lot of over-the-ice eggs sold at $33 per 30-dozen case, but that was the top figure.

Butter is now 50c. per pound wholesale in Dawson and retailing at 75c. It is short in supply so far as indications go, though there is no way to round up the stocks which have been brought in. Condensed cream is selling at $9 and $10 per case. The supply is fair, that is supposing the frosted lots are in shape to use. Hams and bacon were jobbing at 35c. per pound. It would cost 45c. per pound to bring cured meats in over the ice, so that the price is likely to be up to that before long.

In flour and canned vegetables, Dawson merchants have a good stock, as nearly all this was got in earlier. As many of the houses ordered for shipment via St. Michaels and up the river, and later ordered for shipment via Skagway and White Horse, they have good stocks, as all the stocks via Skagway arrived in safely, and portions of the orders sent by the lower river were also received. Of course large quantities are hung up, and some orders were not all got in by The White Pass Co.

In dried fruits the standard jobbing quotation at last advices was 20c. per pound. At this figure there is a very good supply, and the price is not likely to go soaring very high. Fresh fruits are very short, as nearly all the apples and oranges were frozen coming down river. Lemons were too, but the stocks may be used, at least in part. It is not likely the oranges and apples will be any use.

One of the biggest sources of complaint by the shippers who have to send their goods into Dawson is that they prepay freight and then are not at all sure of getting it in. They may get one lot and the other part of the same order is stuck on the river for the Winter, or at White Horse, while they are out both freight and cost for months, and, in case of perishables, for good.

Hay and oats are now selling at 7c. per pound each wholesale. It is one of the curiosities of the trade in the north that hay is nearly always the same price per pound as oats. The fact that large quantities were stuck on the river has forced the price up to the figure quoted already. There are large outfits of teaming companies in various parts of the Klondike, and to them the price of feed is a serious matter. Another odd thing about the feeding of horses in the north is that the price seldom goes higher than 9c. per pound for hay and oats. If it goes above that, then it begins to pay to shoot. The horses are selected out and the better ones kept, while the poorer stock is all shot. It would not be possible to send them out of the country as the expense would, like the expense of feeding them, make it pay better to shoot.

The little Japanese orange, a familiar article on this market, has begun to make its appearance. The first lot, which arrived a week ago on the Empress of China, were too green to be very attractive. The last lot reached here yesterday, having been transhipped at Victoria from the Japanese steamship line steamer Riojun Maru. These are in better condition. The present local wholesale price is from 40 to 50c. per box. Later they drop to 30c. and sometimes 25c. per box.

The Jap orange has become a regular fixture of the Christmas market, coming in as it does on three or four steamers arriving from November 15 to January 1. The season is over then, but while it lasts there is no room for any other orange in the market. The fruit is very small, seedless, and with a flavor of its own. The boxes are about a foot square and eight inches deep, holding six dozen on the average. Of course the individual oranges are not half the size of a Florida or California orange.

So many people buy a box to send home, the retail price running from 35 to 50c. as a rule when they are plentiful, that other oranges cannot sell against them. They are shipped east as far as Calgary, but the express rate is against them going much further.

Some excellent apples from Coldstream ranch are still being received, and so far the stocks here are local in their origin. The high prices of Oregon and Washington fruit will likely keep them from coming here this season unless in very limited quantities.

A few California oranges are being received, but prices are high. The stocks of California fruits are very low now, as grapes are nearly over, a few green and red varieties being still in stock. Central American bananas are being well stocked at present, receipts of a car or two being noted.

In vegetables there is so far ample supply of Ashcroft, Agassiz, and other good varieties of potatoes. The reports from Ashcroft are that early frosts nipped many potatoes before the growers had taken them from the ground. This will curtail the stock of good Ashcrofts, and the growers there are too jealous of their good name to send down the injured potatoes to this market.

A change in the supply of dry onions is noted this year, the various districts being so far well able to supply the market. Some lots of half a car at a time have been received from local growers. Formerly nearly all the onions used during the Winter were shipped in from California, as well as the stocks sent north before the freeze-up on the Yukon. This season there are hardly any California onions in the market yet, and prospects are that it will be late in the Spring before any are needed.

The poultry market for the supply of Christmas trade is being watched by provision merchants with lively interest. Nearly all have ordered in advance, and the stocks are arranged for delivery from Eastern Canada, Smith's Falls sending the big majority of the quantity required. Prices for local retail supply have not yet been quoted, though some retail dealers are soliciting their customers' orders for Christmas delivery already.

Dairy produce is in relatively the same position as for the past two weeks. Stocks are fairly liberal, and supply of local make larger than usual at this season.

Eggs are all pickled stock now, and local fresh are so hard to get that instances of dealers paying 65c. per dozen for small lots, which they had to get for customers, have been quoted. It is not unusual for strictly fresh-laid eggs to reach 75c. per dozen for a short time in the Winter.

General trade is not so brisk as the approach of the holiday season should warrant. Industrial conditions are still very encouraging, much work, especially in the building line, being carried on, with every prospect of it continuing through the Winter.

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, December 3, 1903.

GROCERIES.

TRADE among the jobbers has been very quiet during the week, as navigation is practically closed, and the coastwise orders have all been filled. The recent decline in sugar was in sympathy with the lower New York market, and did not materially stimulate trade in this article. Teas are very quiet, in fact nothing of importance to note, and sales very small. China blacks are reported lower in stock in London owing to the firm prices ruling in low-grade Ceylons, and the opportunity to sell low-grade Chinas was not overlooked. Japans are firm, and few sales of any consequence reported. Ceylon greens though inquired for and bid on, are not readily obtainable. Canned goods are only interesting as far as the high price of corn is concerned, and the desire of everyone in the trade to hold up the price. One dollar is figure generally asked, though one lot was turned over (a small one) at $1.05. Tomatoes are unchanged. In other lines of canned goods the trade is very quiet. Spices continue strong. Coffees are unchanged and inactive. Syrups are in fair demand. In Barbados molasses a few shipments have been sold here by Newfoundland agents at prices somewhat lower than have been going lately. Rice and tapioca are featureless and only the usual trade doing. Foreign dried fruits are in good demand, the approaching holiday season stimulating business. Currants are given as higher at primary markets. New dates and nuts are receiving good attention; also figs. The manner in which dates and figs have of late been packed has tended to interest consumers more, the small and fancy packages being readily sold. Valencia and Malaga raisins are in good demand. In green fruits business has been quiet. California navel oranges are expected shortly, and this will put some life into the trade for a time. Fish business is very good, and will be much improved as soon as the weather sets in firmly and snow comes to stay. Potatoes are showing good business. Red onions continue scarce; Spanish, in cases, also high. The demand for eggs is as strong as ever, and as buyers are now becaming convinced that there is a serious shortage this Fall, the market is now very strong. A further advance is not improbable. The bean market continues weak, and prices have sagged somewhat since last week. Evaporated apples seem to have found their level. Owing to the continued strength of the wheat market prices of flour have been advanced. Increased prices are given in proper department. In grain there is little activity now except in oats, of which large deliveries are now being made from Western Ontario. As the quality of this season's crop is poor there is a very limited demand from Great Britain.

SUGAR.

Sugars are moving very quietly. A decline of 5c. per 100 pounds in all grades went into effect last Thursday, November 26, but the demand among the jobbers continues on the hand-to-mouth basis. Beets are reported stronger in foreign markets. We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

A fair amount of business is doing in syrups. The demand for same is steady. In molasses we learn that there is some blended Barbados offering. Newfoundland importers have sent a few shipments of Barbadoes to this market at prices

£9,600

Far from being displaced by the New Comers, JAPAN TEAS are not only holding their own strongly in Canada, but are yet gaining ground and still growing in popularity with the CANADIAN CONSUMER.

THE PROOF:—We, for one firm, have this season imported from one Japan concern alone £9,600 ($48,000) worth of High-Grade JAPAN TEAS, all bulk, no packets, and consisting mostly of the favorite "Gazelle" Brand Teas, fired and packed only by the renowned firm of Hellyer & Co., Japan.

More than 60% of these Teas were sold ahead of arrival and eagerly awaited by the buyers.

WE OFFER YET:

"GAZELLE" H M at 22c.

"GAZELLE" F C at 24c.

400 ANOTHER ATTRACTIVE LOT, amongst others we imported this Fall, were Half-Chests "Duchess" Brand, shipped by Hunt & Co., of Japan.

This we quote to-day at 18c.

TEAS.

The market seems to be in a comatose condition. There is practically nothing doing among the brokers. The jobbing trade also report business very quiet, and it is not expected that any heavy trading will be done during the balance of the year. Ceylon greens are scarce, and offerings made through brokers here have been declined, indicating strong feeling abroad. The high prices in Ceylon blacks that have prevailed for some weeks past have enabled London to lower stocks of China blacks. The feeling generally in the tea market is firm. We quote:

CANNED GOODS.

The canned goods situation is unchanged. Trade is very quiet among the jobbers with the exception of an active demand for corn, and as high as $1.05 has been offered for large lots. The ruling jobbing prices on corn seems to be from $1 to $1.05. Very few jobbers have been inclined to let go even at $1.05. It is realized that if corn reaches a figure where the retailer would have to sell it at from 12½ to 15c. a can the consumption would drop off 50 per cent., consequently the ruling price among the jobbers is $1. Tomatoes are unchanged. There is not much selling in canned fruits as yet, and will not be until about the middle of February. Other lines of canned goods are not especially interesting. We quote:

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

A good trade is being done in all kinds of dried fruits, the approaching Christmas and New Year trade stimulating sales. Currants are reported firmer at primary markets. A good trade has been done in new dates. Valencia raisins show no particular change. The demand is easing up among the trade, as most of the retailers have secured their stocks. We quote:

FISH.

Trade during the past few days has been very brisk. The demand for fish during Advent is always very good. Stocks of all kinds of fish are very light, in fact lighter than at the same period last year, and consequently prices are higher. There is a good demand for fresh British Columbia salmon and halibut. There is no whitefish of any kind to be had, and high prices are looked for. Good salt herrings are high and hard to get, also green codfish. The demand for smoked fish is good and growing. Stocks of finnan haddie are not large, and it is hard to obtain sufficient to supply the trade. Shelled oysters are quiet. Malpecques are high. We quote:

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., Dec. 1, 1903.

WITH the close of river navigation there is less business in wholesale groceries. Most of the packets and steamers to bay ports are still running, and part of the Winter supply business yet remains to be done. Retail stores begin to feel the holiday demand. St. John has as fine retail stores as there are in Canada, and certainly their show windows at this season could not be surpassed. Winter port business is now in full swing, with steamers arriving almost daily. This means much to the city, particularly to laborers and provision people. The general public also feel the effect of the advanced price of poultry. No complaint has been heard from any quarter. In markets the firm price of tomatoes is a feature. Cream of tartar and hops are firmer, with spices higher, particularly cloves.

OILS.

The firm market continues in burning oil. Present price is high, but a further advance is expected. While future orders were booked at the lower prices, dealers will not book ahead at present figures. In linseeds sales are light and prices low. While it is early to talk of Spring business, the outlook is for low figures. Turpentine continues firm at full figures. Lubricating oils are firm. Fish oils are scarce and high. We quote :

SALT.

Winter steamers have already landed between ten and fifteen thousand bags of Liverpool coarse salt. Prices are unchanged. This is a large market. A large part of the above has already been shipped to outside points. In fine salt the sale is limited at this season. We quote :

CANNED GOODS.

Tomatoes are in light supply, with prices working up slowly but surely. Already there is inquiry regarding the price of American, though, as yet, none have been imported. Corn and peas are firmly held. There is a fair stock of blueberries. Stocks of all lines of fruit are light. In salmon, Springs, for which there is a large demand, are light supply. Some fine cohoes are offered. In domestic canned fish prices are firmly held, particularly sardines. We quote :

GREEN FRUIT.

Apples have been plentiful and prices lower. Nova Scotia schooners brought these here. The cold weather has tended to hurry the schooner men away, and as a result they accepted prices below the market. It would be a great improvement if this fruit were handled through commission men instead of by the schooner captains. New lemons are offered low. Oranges are unchanged ; Jamaicas hold the market. Malaga grapes are low. Both Nova Scotia and Cape Cod cranberries are offered. We quote :

DRIED FRUIT.

This is a busy line ; all new goods are now in. In raisins, Valencia stock received is particularly good, and the same is even truer of Malaga loose muscatels. The only fancy layers offered are Malagas. In California loose muscatels some offered outside the association at cut price helped the sale. Seeded fruit has a large sale. In currants package cleaned have a large demand. In these and seeded raisins a considerable quantity of New York prepared goods are offered. Peels are a light supply. A small quantity of new dates are here and full prices are asked. Figs sell freely at even prices. Evaporated apples keep low. Onions are rather higher. In nuts, filberts and walnuts are higher. FISH.

This is a quiet time. The season is early for frozen fish, but already some are offered. Of late years frozen herring, which were largely handled formerly, have been in light supply. A fair catch of smelt is reported from the north shore. There is a better supply of finnan haddies, for which there is a large western demand. Dry fish, pickled fish and smoked herring are firm. TRADE NOTES.

A. L. Goodwin has received a car of dates, the first new goods to arrive. They cost higher than the later shipments.

F. J. Reid & Co., Moncton, landed a car of barley and split peas this week, shipped by John McKay, Limited.

Maritime Spice and Coffee Co. have received a shipment of California seedless raisins. Price is low.

A larger quantity of New Orleans molasses is arriving than for months. The high price of other grades and the fine quality of New Orleans offered creates a demand which is all the greater because of the small packages.

Holiday demand, together with loss of time in moving, has caused difficulty in shipping orders for "Red Rose" tea as promptly as dealers have wished. Extra facilities are being added by the shippers, which will mean no delays in the future.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, November 30, 1903.

BUSINESS has been brisk during the past week, and the December outlook for trade in this province is excellent. The only untoward incident to record is the assignment of a King's County trader under very aggravating circumstances, involving a number of Halifax wholesale houses in considerable financial loss. There are some ugly stories afloat regarding this assignment, and some of the creditors are disposed to demand a pretty searching investigation. Another thing that is causing comment is the withdrawal of funds from the Maritime Provinces in order to invest them elsewhere, on the plea that better returns are available. In some cases merchants who have been accustomed to receive considerable accommodation have lately been refused it, being therefore compelled to secure long credit from their supply houses or curtail their operations. The contention of business men is that a bank should look after the local business from which it ordinarily derives its profit, even though in times of stringency it can make more profitable use of its funds in the United States or for the movement of our western crops. At any rate, merchants who find their relations with the bank suddenly interfered with and their privileges curtailed without just cause, are put to much inconvenience, and would seem to have just ground for complaint. Possibly some of our banks have been too liberal in the matter of credit, and a little closer drawing of the lines in some quarters may result in benefit rather than injury.

On Friday the Acadia Refinery reduced the price of sugar 5c. per 100 pounds. In passing it may be remarked that this refinery has just closed a very successful year, and has paid the largest dividend in its history. The passage of the Cuban Reciprocity Bill by the United States Congress in the opinion of many of our West Indian merchants will have no immediate effect upon the market for raw sugar, as the combined stocks in Cuba and the United States are less than at this date last year. Molasses continues firm for genuine Porto Rico, but there is a considerable quantity of blended molasses offering at a slight reduction from published quotations.

Retailers throughout Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island were fortunate in having bought their burning oil previous to the advance in price, thereby saving at least 81 a barrel. Fully 90 per cent. of these merchants bought their season's supply early, and are therefore reaping a benefit from the advance in prices. Importing companies are still busy filling these advance orders in full, notwithstanding the fact that they cannot replace the oil at the prices at which the sales were made.

The first lot of boneless codfish from the new establishment of Black, Bros. & Co., Limited, at La Havre, arrived at the headquarters warehouse at Halifax last week, and local dealers and experts pronounce it a very superior article. It is put up under five different brands, and the company expect to find their chief market in Ontario and the Northwest, where they purpose to do considerable advertising next year in order to stimulate the demand. Notwithstanding the stormy weather of late the local market at present is fairly well provided with fresh fish, and some shipments are being made to inland points.

There is great activity in shipping circles, five ocean steamers being now loaded at the I.C.R. terminus. A broken wheel in the grain elevator caused some delay, but it has since been remedied. The local produce market is now well supplied owing to the arrival of a large number of schooners from Prince Edward Island. Prices, however, have been pretty well sustained, and, as future arrivals will be less numerous, the market will shortly regain its firm tone. Shipments of butter have come to hand from western points, and the scarcity of supply in this article is now remedied. Eggs are firm at 22c. Cheese is steady at 12c. in a jobbing way. The market is lightly supplied at present with geese and turkey.

FACTORY IMPROVEMENT.

Editor CANADIAN GROCER:

Dear Sir,—I was pleased indeed to see in your issue of Nov. 20 a cut of the Upton jam factory, but it gives a very faint idea of what the conditions really are there. The City Improvement Society, which I take a great interest in, offered prizes last year for various improvements in the surroundings of business places in Hamilton. In front of their factory Upton & Co. had a beautiful lawn, handsome window boxes, and as their place is at the corner of a street, instead of an unsightly fence, they had a beautiful rockery built which served the purpose of preventing trespassers from going over the lawn on a short cut, and in the Autumn it proved a veritable beauty spot. I am sure their men when going to and from work must feel happier and better on account of their beautiful and cleanly surroundings.

This city improvement question is assuming in the United States and in some places in Canada a splendid asset, and the merchants and manufacturers who keep sloppy places and sloppy surroundings will soon be relegated to the past. A few years ago our aldermen and citizens generally in Hamilton looked upon the Improvement Society as an interfering one, but to-day recognize it as a blessing in disguise. The press here has given us splendid assistance, always ready and willing to aid in every possible way. Get the papers on your side and you are alright. Of course we have had to knock up against the "chronic kicker," but that is now a thing of the past here, and we receive support from both rich and poor.

Our secretary, Mr. N. D. Galbraith, who is really responsible for what has been accomplished in Hamilton, will be glad to furnish information on application, and you will be pleased to know that he was at one time a retail grocer in the city.

Apologizing for this intrusion,

R. TASKER STEELE.

GREEN FRUITS

Doings of the Fruit Growers.

THE Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, a partial report of whose annual meeting at Leamington appeared in last week's "Grocer," re-elected all their officers and directors for the ensuing year. The principal officers therefore are :

President—W. H. Bunting, St. Catharines ; Vice-President—A. McNeil, Walkerville. Mr. W. W. Cox of Collingwood, was replaced on the board of directors by Mr. A. E. Sherrington, of Walkerton.

A committee, consisting of W. H. Bunting, A. McNeil, and Murray Pettit was appointed to act with kindred societies on matters of mutual interest.

By resolution the association recommended that the commercial apple box for Canada be about one-third the capacity of the commercial apple barrel, and the inside dimensions 10 inches by 11 inches by 20 inches. The pear box would be half the depth and half the capacity of the apple box. The secretary is instructed to communicate this important decision to horticultural societies in other provinces with a view to securing the general adoption of this standard.

It was decided before concluding the meeting of the association to hold the next meeting in Toronto. A plan was also discussed and decided upon for holding a winter fruit fair in Toronto at the same time. The intention is to interest all fruit-growers in this way, and bring them together at a competitive fair, thus stimulating them to more earnest effort. If successful the venture will probably be made an annual event, doing for fruit-growers what the Guelph Fat Stock Show does for live stock breeders.

Cuba's Fruits.

One of the most promising industries of Cuba is the cultivation of fruits, exports of which in 1902 were valued at $1,906,600, says a writer in Dun's special Cuban number. The northern part of the Province of Santiago de Cuba promises to become one of the great banana raising districts of the world, and the western part of the island already has such rank as a pineapple growing country. The Cuban pineapples are pronounced superior in flavor by American importers to any known on the market, and exports of this fruit from the island this year amounted to 716,000 crates, being a heavy increase over shipments of the previous year. The soil and climate of Cuba are adapted to the raising of oranges equal in flavor to those grown anywhere. The fruit has practically grown wild heretofore, but in the past four years many thousands of trees have been set out, and next year the American public will have an opportunity to test the lusciousness of this fruit, which is now being carefully cultivated by their countrymen in Cuba, with excellent prospects.

Cranberries in the West.

Advices from Tacoma this week state that cranberry growing is being started on an extensive scale along the coast of Washington between Gray's Harbor and Willapa Harbor, and between Willapa Harbor and Columbia river.

Along these coasts are found hundreds of acres of wild cranberry vines, giving large yearly yields, and for a number of years one company has cultivated the berry with excellent results. Its cranberry bogs are now being extended and new companies will be organized to convert wild cranberry marshes into cultivated ones.

Expert cranberry growers are to be brought from Cape Cod and systematic effort will be made to supplant New England cranberries west of the Rocky Mountains. Cranberry marshes also extend along the Oregon coast, giving a field for similar operations there.

Apples Frosted.

THE late cold snap played hob with all kinds of things, says a Winnipeg paper, but perhaps Manitoba's supply of winter apples in transit came off the worst of the lot.

Apple barrels were scarce in the east this fall, going up to all kinds of fancy prices, and this naturally delayed the shipment of winter apples, though as a matter of fact apples have come through quite as late in other seasons and taken no harm. The little drop of the thermometer was inconsiderate enough to occur just when the big lake steamers had discharged thirty-six car loads of apples at Fort William. There are about 160 barrels to a car, and each car is worth about $500, so that the matter is a serious one financially.

When the apples arrived at Fort William the railway company had not sufficient refrigerator cars to ship them, indeed it is claimed that no railroad in America would have sufficient cars for such a shipment at anyone point on short notice. With a view of doing the best they could with the stock the C.P.R. loaded the apples into box cars, set up a stove in the centre of each car, put on a man to look after every three cars and rushed the apples through to Winnipeg in twenty-two hours. In spite of these precautions the apples are frozen ; how much or little has not yet been fully determined, but the fruit men consider the damage heavy. Of the cars coming in one dealer owned as many as seven, others some three, some four, and the bulk of these apples were for reshipment to country points. The fact that they are frozen at all prohibits them being reshipped. The question of who is to blame and who will have to stand the loss is the one that at the moment is uppermost in the minds of the fruit men. So far as could be learned the apples are all bought outright ; none were on consignment. Apples but slightly frozen are still usable, but frozen apples shrink, making them loose in the barrel ; in handling they get badly bruised and when thawed out rot rapidly, and are therefore very unsatisfactory stock to handle.

The railway officials refused to talk in the matter and the fruit men, beyond giving the actual facts to amount in transit, and that the apples are frozen have nothing as yet to say as to what action will be taken. It was learned from an outside source that fruit men are taking legal advice in the matter.

Apples from America.

The largest shipment of apples which ever left New York arrived at Bremen Wednesday on the North German Lloyd steamer Main, which sailed from New York, Nov. 19. It consists of 22,929 barrels and 1,540 boxes.

Fruitful Nova Scotia.

THE GROCER is indebted to Mr. M. G. De Wolfe, Kentville, N.S., for the following very convincing summary of the advantages of the fruit growing district of Nova Scotia, which is taken from a circular issued by Editor H. G. Harris, of the Kentville Advertiser :—

Probably no section of Canada has enjoyed such unusual prosperity the present year as the famous fruit-growing section known as the Cornwallis and Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia. The county of Kings occupies the central part of this valley and includes about two-thirds of it.

In this valley this year, the crop for export has been estimated at 500,000 barrels. Up to Nov. 15 about 232,000 barrels had been shipped from Halifax and Annapolis to the British market, and quite a quantity had also been sent to that market from here through the port of Montreal. With this large shipment for two months of the season it is probable that over 500,000 barrels will go from this valley to Europe during the whole season. The quantity for home consumption, local markets and for export to the United States would also make up a large additional quantity.

The prices realized for this fruit ranged from $2 per barrel up to $6. The average price would be about $2.50 per barrel. For the half million barrels of apples, besides the quantity sold in the local and American markets, our growers will receive in cash this year fully one and a half million dollars. In addition to this, an enormous oat crop, a fair potato yield in this famous potato-producing district and other means of income, our farmers will have all the funds they require to purchase not only the necessaries of life, but will be heavy purchasers in what are considered luxuries.

VICTORY!

Read this Judgment:

His Honour Mr. Justice Curran's Decision in LEFEBVRE vs. LANDRY

(CHINESE STARCH CASE).

Lefebvre vs. Landry.—Plaintiff presented a petition to the court asking for an interim injunction against the defendant, whom he charged with having fraudulently placed upon the market packages of starch for sale which bore a label imitating his registered trade mark for Chinese starch. The interim injunction was granted on the 6th of May, 1903, and the present action is for the purpose of having said injunction declared perpetual.

Plaintiff alleges that he is a starch manufacturer in the city of Montreal. That on the 26th of April, 1899, he caused to be registered in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa a trade mark as a label for packages of starch bearing a representation of a Chinaman ironing a shirt with the word "Empois" at the top of the label and "Chinois" at the bottom. That shortly afterwards he made some alterations, adhering to the main feature of the Chinaman ironing a shirt on a table, and that he has ever since used this label as his trade mark. He alleges that he has spent large sums of money in advertising his starch through the newspapers, by means of pamphlets and a host of devices, and that he has succeeded in building up a very extensive trade. Defendant, he charges with having in the month of September, 1901, and ever since put in the market packages of starch known as "Empois diamant" for the fraudulent purpose of palming it off as the Chinese brand of plaintiff. That the packages are of the same size and make up, that the directions for use have been printed on the sides of the packages being copied almost verbatim from plaintiff's packages in English and in French, and that the whole label is a fraudulent imitation of plaintiff's trade mark. He claims $2,000 damages, and asks for a perpetual injunction. Defendant denies the main allegations of plaintiff's action. He points out that instead of the Chinaman ironing a shirt he is using a woman dressed differently from the Chinaman, with varying colors. He contends that the public cannot be deceived, at least, that no person of ordinary intelligence could be imposed upon. Further, he says that the department of trade marks in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has granted him a trade mark, and that this is more than a presumption that there is no infringement. That the word "Chinois" being the name of a nation is not susceptable of registration, and in any case that plaintiff has suffered no damage. In one of the authorities quoted by defendant, Morse vs. Martin, Dorion's reports, vol. 3, page 353, we find the following quotation from Sebastian on trade marks, page 76, which is applicable here: "All that courts of justice can do is to say that no trader can adopt a trade mark so resembling that of a rival as that ordinary purchasers, purchasing with ordinary caution, are likely to be misled." Plaintiff here has established his allegations in the following particulars. He has built up a very extensive trade in this Chinese starch. He succeeded in so doing not only by quality of the starch, but by most lavish advertising, which must have cost him a large sum of money. He obtained a trade mark, the central idea of which is the Chinaman ironing a shirt. Defendant has merely substituted a woman in the place of the man, and it is proved that she has been spoken of as "la Chinoise." A young man in the employ of the plaintiff who was contemplating going into the starch business with his brother or with defendant, took one of the labels of plaintiff to a designer and told him to imitate it, but not to go too far. The intent of this young man was evidently fraudulent. A great many witnesses have been examined who contradicted each other as to the general resemblance of the labels. The size of the packages of plaintiff and those of defendant is identical, defendant has stolen the directions on the sides of plaintiff's labels, they are the same almost verbatim. The court is convinced that defendant's intentions were fraudulent, and that he has succeeded in getting up a label which is misleading. It would take too long to go into all the particulars of an exhaustive investigation. The damages suffered by the plaintiff, it is most difficult to prove, they are not extensive, owing to the proceedings having been adopted at an early date, this court considers that $25 will cover what plaintiff actually lost, but the injunction will be declared perpetual, and besides the damages of $25 defendant must pay the costs of injunction proceedings.

THE TEMPLETON CHEESE CUTTER.

ALTHOUGH computing scales continue to excite admiration and wonderment among the unsophisticated as a mechanical contrivance, they have a rival in the Templeton cheese cutter, just being put on the Canadian market. This ingenious device will cut cheese and at the same time measure it to desired weight with almost as much exactness as can be had from any weighing machine.

An ordinary cheese up to 30 pounds is cut in halves, and one half placed on the circular disk of the cheese cutter, with freshly cut end downward on the disk. By means of a lever a solid rectangular blade with two cutting edges is set to cut the cheese vertically from outside to centre into exactly equal pieces weighing a pound each. Thus it is easy to set the knife to cut cheeses of any weight up to 30 pounds into such equal parts by placing the lever at a mark corresponding to the number of pounds in the cheese, such mark being indicated on a small graduated scale running around the disk.

Another lever calculates the fraction of a pound that is to be cut, quarter, half, or three-quarters of a pound. In a fresh cheese the first lever is set and the knife brought down through the cheese for the first time. It is then raised. By manipulating the second lever the cheese is turned around on the circular disk until exactly the desired quantity is reached, as indicated on graduated scale number two, and the knife brought down again. A section or slice of cheese comes out cleanly and evenly sheared with no waste. One good feature of the Templeton cheese cutter is that it keeps the cheese fresh and moist. The freshly cut end is placed downward upon the disk, and so kept from the air, the other cut edge is protected by a shield attached to the cutter, while the cloth covering further helps to protect the cheese from drying out.

The Templeton cheese cutter ought to be serviceable, since it professes to save from waste. One merchant estimates that 50c. is saved on each cheese cut. It is easily operated, and cuts to weight every time, due allowance being made for differences of density in a cheese, which the cutter does not take into consideration. It is ornamental, with brass parts triple nickel-plated, and is finished in enamel. The Templeton cheese cutter has been on the market for a year and a half, and has given satisfaction wherever it has been used.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Western Grain Congestion.

THE West is experiencing the annual shortage of cars. From all quarters come complaints that the railroads are not able to keep up with the orders for cars. Elevators have closed up and buyers ceased buying because they could not get cars and did not care to take the risk of buying wheat at present prices which they might not be able to market till next Spring.

A prominent western elevator man, in conversation with a representative of The Winnipeg Free Press, said: "We are not making any protest about the 'Grain Act,' lack of cars, or anything else. We are simply trying to manage our business on business lines and avoid loss. Men are urging us to buy wheat, but how can we buy wheat at track prices that we may not be able to move until May or June? Let me give you an illustration. An engine leaves Winnipeg with a train of empties and goes, say, along the Deloraine branch. When it reaches Deloraine there are eight empty cars. Now one of these cars, according to regulations goes to an elevator and the other seven to farmers. The engine turns at this point and that operation takes 20 minutes. In that time the eight cars could have been loaded at the elevators, but, as a matter of fact, when the engine is ready to go back, there is only one car loaded to return. A farmer is allowed 24 hours for loading, but that is not the end of the delay, for the engine takes the one loaded car and may not return for the others for three or four days. I am not speaking of possible contingencies, but of what has actually happened this present season. This delay means that the cars are still at Deloraine when they should be on their return trip from Fort William.

"Another point which seems to be overlooked, and which occasions trouble, is this: A farmer may have a car of wheat in any one of the elevators; he may have ordered a car for the shipment of that grain; and that car may be the next in order for delivery, but if he should in the meantime sell the wheat to the company owning the elevator, his order for the car is cancelled and the elevator company's order for a car to move the same wheat is put at the end of the orders in the agent's book, possible 50 cars ahead of that order. Can any business man blame an elevator company for saying to a farmer in such a case: 'Get your car loaded and we will pay you track prices for your grain and be glad to do so?'

"The banks are asking the elevator men when they are going to need money for their country points. The fact that elevators have ceased to buy will no doubt shrink the amount of money in circulation very materially, but it is nonsense to say the elevator men are doing it to punish the farmers. It would have been money in the pocket of every elevator company in the West this year if they had never opened their doors for grain this season, and it is hardly to be supposed that elevator men are going to continue buying wheat at present prices to hold in their elevators until next May. Look at the prices of New York wheat at the present time—December at 87⅞ and May at 83¾c. There is not much encouragement in that to look for higher prices in May. The whole question resolves itself into this: Elevator companies cannot get cars to get their wheat out, therefore they cannot buy any more wheat on the basis of shipment before navigation closes. They found it necessary to stop buying by the first of November. In a year when the crop is extra heavy, as it was last year, elevators will have to cease buying on the 15th of October, as with the present system of car distribution it would be impossible after that date to get sufficient cars to take the wheat in terminals. It seems to be forgotten by many people that the elevator of say 25,000 bushels capacity represents on the average from 15 to 20 farmers any week in the season; yet an elevator ranks as a single farmer so far as cars are concerned. It is a knotty problem, and if the Board of Trade finds a means of cutting the knot, no one will be better pleased than the elevator men. I think the very fact of the Board of Trade taking it up shows that it was wiser to cease buying than to offer May prices for the wheat."

Can Not Get Cars.

Dr. Elliott, commissioner of agriculture for the Territories, who was in Winnipeg the other day, says the car shortage condition has been very bad, and has tended to cause considerable discontent among farmers. The other day at Indian Head there was 258 cars on order for the farmers alone, and not one on the siding. The elevators were no better off, and for the past two weeks they have practically closed down on account of the fact that they could not get cars to send their wheat to the head of the lakes.

to charter American vessels to haul their grain, and in consequence this season there have been but few American vessels at Port Arthur and Fort William for cargoes. The Princeton and Sanona were the only two to load at Port Arthur, taking about 400,000 bushels to Buffalo. With the Canadian "bottoms" in commission, all the grain is shipped almost entirely to Europe through Canadian ports, thus cutting off the large export of Canadian grain via American ports.

The Progress of Argentina.

THIRTY years ago Argentina was buying flour for her own consumption from the United States. In the whole country there were then only 500 miles of railroad. Her station owners led a patriarchal life on the unfenced prairie among long-horned herds and short-wooled flocks, whose surplus was absorbed by Indian tribes raiding to within 50 miles of Buenos Ayres. To-day the export of breadstuffs from those same prairies is $20,000,000, and the export of meat, alive and dead, with its hides, wool, and other by-products, is worth over $22,000,000. The length of railroad in operation exceeds 10,000 miles, and fresh lines are yearly projected. In spite of political and other drawbacks it is estimated that there are $200,000,000 of British capital invested in the country. The security for this capital is wide—as wide as the republic itself. Staple manufactures there are none, mines have hitherto proved unprofitable, forests are quickly worked out. It is on the monotonous fertility of her pampas on the broad bosom of Mother Earth herself, that Argentina's property is based.

The 1,200,000 square miles of the republic are divided in nearly equal proportions between forest, mountain range, tableland and prairie. In this last named formation, comprising but one-fourth of the total area, is centred nearly all the country's wealth and commerce.—MacMillans.

Wheat Badly Frosted.

WH. McWILLIAMS, formerly of the Minneapolis Chamber, now manager of an elevator line backed by Minneapolis men, with headquarters at Winnipeg, who was in Minneapolis the other day, according to a Minneapolis despatch sized up the Western Canada wheat crop as follows: Five million bushels of wheat raised in Manitoba and the Northwest Territories last year is of unmarketable quality, and the yield on the whole was somewhat less last season than has heretofore been figured upon.

The tendency, Mr. McWilliams says, is to reduce estimates as the season advances, and based on the showing to date, it is now the opinion in the Canadian grain trade that 50,000,000 bushels is a fair estimate of the total yield. Of this considerable is low-grade wheat, and about one-tenth so badly frosted as to be worth little.

Within a week there has been a surprising drop in receipts in Winnipeg. Many in the trade jumped at the conclusion that the crop had been largely overestimated, and that a total of not over 40,000,000 bushels would be shown in the final crop year figures. But there is a disposition to hold back wheat, which may account in part for the drop. Almost all the farmers above the line, Mr. McWilliams says, are bullish, and, while there is no concerted holding back, there is enough of it in some cases to affect receipts noticeably.

This despatch can be taken with the usual grain of salt necessary when reports of our western wheat lands come via the Minneapolis route.

To Amend Grain Act.

MR. W. R. MOTHERWELL, president of Territorial Grain Growers' Association, has written to The Winnipeg Free Press advocating a revision of the Grain Act. The letter says in part:

"Although the Grain Act is a very important piece of legislation to us, and it has been recently amended entirely at the instance and in the interests of the Grain Growers' associations of Manitoba and the Territories, still it is a matter largely of local concern between producers, transportation companies and elevators as compared with the Inspection Act which determines the grades and stipulates in what condition our wheat product shall be placed before the British or other importer. In the past the Inspection Act has been enacted and amended largely, if not entirely, at the instance of the Grain Exchange, and naturally enough in their interests, as they could not be expected to have a special regard for either the producer or importer.

"There is a general and well founded impression among producers that our grades are too high, and especially so in view of the very great uncertainty that exists (both here and abroad) as to whether the high standard is maintained to its destination. This, together with its attendant evil the mixing and blending elevators at Winnipeg and elsewhere—are questions that demand our interested consideration, and organization is the only medium that we know of through which such questions may be attended to effectually. But we frankly admit it requires the sympathetic and financial assistance of the individual farmer to attain the further remedies that are in view.

Upon the success and strength of the the annual convention to be held at Regina—December 16 and 17—will depend the extent and direction of our usefulness as an organization during the coming year. If the Grain Growers' association has commended itself to the producers of the West during the past two years, then we confidently appeal to them for a continuance of their support so that further reforms and greater things may be attained along the lines above indicated."

We Are Willing to Try.

THE WALL STREET SUMMARY thus discusses Mr. Chamberlain's tariff proposals and Canada's ability to feed the Empire:

"To friends of Mr. Chamberlain who urge that the proposed duty on wheat of 2s. a quarter will not be paid by the British consumer because the selling price of United States wheat will come down to the price of the preferential article from Canada, we can only say that the experience in this country of protection does not bear out their contention. The home producer, and in this case, Canada is the home producer, under protection, makes his price rise up to the limit of the protection afforded against the foreigner and pockets the difference. Foreign articles may be kept out by protection, but when so, it is done at the cost of the consumer. Besides, in the case of wheat, it is well known that it is the surplus or deficient production that makes the price at Liverpool, and no one will question that it is the production of the United States that determines the 'turn of the market.' The idea that Canada can furnish the supply required in any reasonable time is absurd. While she has potentiality in her uncultivated grain-growing area to supply the wants of England, and the world, for that matter, if the demand were thrown upon her, the abilities of the country would be so overtaxed that her internal machinery would necessarily collapse. It will be many years yet, notwithstanding her phenomenal present growth, before Canada can become a serious competitor in the British market, and by the time she does, the development of this country will certainly not be less marked. The growth of population in all the countries concerned will undoubtedly keep pace with the new production, so that a falling away in consumption is not at all likely."

Canadians generally will hardly admit the pessimistic conclusions of The Summary. With the Grand Trunk Pacific completed we are willing to undertake the contract of feeding the Empire if the Empire will but afford us some of her surplus population to cultivate our broad prairies.

DID you miss my announcements in the last two issues of THE CANADIAN GROCER? If you did, you will have to pardon me, when I tell you that I have been kept so busy the past few weeks supplying the demand for "FORCE" and attending to the correspondence of The "FORCE" Society that I overlooked sending the publishers copy.

It pleases me, however, to tell you that since the appearance of my announcements in THE CANADIAN GROCER, the sunny food I make is more and more appreciated by the grocers who read them, and I believe that my magazine advertising in conjunction with this trade paper is a great help in demonstrating the value of my food to the consumer as a mind and muscle builder, and to the grocer as a profitable investment.

Perhaps it would surprise and interest you to learn that the Canadian membership of The "FORCE" Society has had a wonderful increase in the past three weeks. Thousands of women from such places as British Columbia, Manitoba,

New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Ontario, North-West Territory, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Toronto, etc., have applied for membership, signifying their intention to comply with the Creed, which maintains that its members shall eat "FORCE," because it will strengthen body and mind, prepare them for greater things, and be in sympathy with Sunny Jim, whose object it is to make everybody happy.

Think of all these Canadian members and the influence my advertising has upon them. Some of them may be in your own town, which means that sooner or later they will call at your store and ask for "FORCE." If you haven't got it to sell them, they will go elsewhere, then you lose the sale, and your competitor who is carrying "FORCE" gets the benefit of your loss.

I still have left some celluloid buttons bearing my photograph and my motto,

"BE SUNNY."

They are nearly 1¼ inches in diameter and are attractively prepared with a patent stick pin on the back. They can be worn by man, woman or child, and they will be mighty glad to get them. They are sent upon request of any grocer. You ought to see my new book, "The Gentle Art of Using Force." I just received the first shipment on the second edition. Free for the asking.

"BE SUNNY."

Yours truly,

WALL PAPER

MAKING SUGGESTIONS.

THERE is more for the wall paper merchant to do than to simply show the papers he has in stock in a mechanical way. His experience should render him invaluable to the buyer, and he should not be backward in proffering it. What would a patient think of a physician who, after diagnosing the case, asked what medicine the patient preferred to use?

The dealer should first find out for what room the paper is sought, and after inquiring about light and the other points which must be considered in choosing color and pattern, he should offer his advice, whether solicited or not. Wall paper is different from anything else, in that it is chosen in such a different position and light from the conditions when hung that the buyer is very often apt to be favorably impressed with a style that would be very unsatisfactory when hung. Handling so much of it, the merchant knows of this, and can prevent the spoiling of many a room by a few timely suggestions.

A customer, when selecting wall paper, is seldom decided upon what he wants, and welcomes the assistance of the merchant. Of course, the customer has tastes which will make him refuse certain papers, however suitable they may be, and these preferences should be considered, but in almost every case the preference can be satisfied and at the same time a really suitable paper be sold. The dealer cannot say that a certain paper chosen by the customer would be very bad taste, but he could show that there are a few qualities of that paper which might injure its value for the particular room, and at the same time draw attention to another paper as similar as possible to the one chosen, but possessing more fully the qualifications required in that room. The imperfections of a paper can be pointed out without offending the customer.

A further point that makes it important that the merchant should help the customer is the fact that a badly chosen paper on a wall makes those who see it feel that the one who sold such a paper does not know his business. A paper which suits in every way the room in which it appears is the best advertisement the merchant can have, so it behooves him to do his best to see that the paper is the best that could be had.

A NEW WALL PAPER FACTORY.

Mr. R. E. Menzie, formerly well known as a manufacturerer of window shades, art furniture, etc., is opening a wall paper factory in New Toronto. For a number of months he has been purchasing first-class machinery in the United States, and with the plant of two large factories has equipped his new mills for the manufacture of a full line of wall papers. A United States exchange says that the machinery bought makes up the largest transaction of its kind that has taken place in several years.

The factory is now almost in running order, but Mr. Menzie does not intend to push actively into the market until next Spring, although a full range of samples has been set up in the Toronto office on King street west.

FINANCE AND INSURANCE

ONE of the largest items in modern financing is that of life insurance, says The National Monthly. In Canada the total amount of policies at present is $508,812,305, an increase of 500 per cent. in 25 years. A quarter of a century ago people were more or less suspicious of insurance companies, and some failures aggravated their ill favor in certain districts. But improvement in methods has kept pace with the increase of business, and the present insurance laws of Canada are safe.

A pleasing feature of the insurance business as it now stands, is that more than three-fifths of the total amount in force is held by Canadian companies. Of the balance about $160,000,000 is in American companies and $40,000,000 in British. Twenty-five years ago Canadian companies carried only $28,650,000. Thus, while the annual figures show a steady increase in the aggregate business, they also testify distinctly to the enterprise of our home companies. A number of excellent British and American companies are doing business in this country, and are no doubt serving a good purpose by affording healthy competition and the example of progressive methods, but it will be a matter of satisfaction to patriotic Canadians that an increasing amount of the people's insurance is "Made in Canada."

The Financial Times, London, Eng., says regarding the incorporation of fresh banks in Canada that when Canadian banking has been developed along such conservative lines, the formation of no less than eight new banks speaks volumes for the financial activity prevailing in the country.

* * *

Mr. David Dexter, president and general manager of The Federal Life Insurance Co., Hamilton, has been again elected president of the Insurance Officers of Canada. Born near St. Thomas, Ont., in 1848, and educated in that city, he became identified with a manufacturing concern at an early age, and on the formation of the Federal Life in 1881, became its managing director. The marvellous success of this company is a standing tribute to Mr. Dexter's great ability and popularity. Very highly esteemed in private life, he devotes considerable of his attention to educational matters, at one time being chairman of the School Board, of which he is still a member.

The value of life assurance as a means of providing substantial cash capital in event of death is generally recognized. The attractions of endowment insurance which guarantees the payment of the sum assured on the attainment of a certain age, or, at death, if previous, are also clearly realized; but many people are unaware that a well-selected life policy may be taken that will yield as large an income as can be obtained from investment in stocks and shares, and which provides a degree of security and other advantages which few if any stocks or shares present. Such policies as these are intended to be permanent investments, and offer no very sensational opportunities for loss or gain, as occur in connection with some classes of stocks and shares. The absense of any possibility of rapid increase in capital value may be a drawback to this class of insurance policy in the minds of some, but the impossibility of any decrease in value is an advantage of no little importance, while the complete security offered under the policy is unapproached by any ordinary investment.

That life insurance is coming to be generally regarded as a profession is shown by the several correspondence schools recently established in the United States. No less than three or four American universities have already included in their curricula a course in life insurance, while others provide frequent lectures on the subject.

Bradstreet's says the demand for money from the west and south continues, but begins to show a diminished

David Dexter,
President and Managing Director of the Federal Life, Hamilton.

volume, and it is thought that a return flow of funds to New York is not far off. During the past month or so it has assumed unexpectedly large proportions, nearly $50,000,000 being shipped during the five weeks ending November 21, against $20,000,000 during the same period last year. This increased demand was largely on account of troubles among financial institutions at Baltimore and St. Louis, which necessitated the forwarding of large sums to these cities. New York has also furnished more money than usual to other cities for moving crops and other purposes. It is almost certain that the latter amounts will be returned in part or altogether now that the financial difficulties are straightened out, and that with cotton and grain moving rapidly the return of funds to the east will be accelerated.

A French company which insures against frost is shortly to established branches in London, Eng., and the colonies. The London branch will be interested only in the insurance of agricultural produce from Canada.

Canadian merchants are receiving the circulars of a San Francisco get-rich-quick concern, presenting a time-worn proposition. The concern proposes to give away $2 for $1. You pay in $1 a week for 80 weeks and at the end of the period draw out $160. A very sophistical argument is presented to the effect that this is a legitimate investment of the same nature as insurance, and that the profits are made out of lapses. Canadian merchants need scarcely be warned that the scheme is fraudulent.

Insurance against appendicitis has been undertaken by The Royal Exchange Assurance Co., of England, which will issue policies at the rate of $1.25 a year for every $500. The holder is guaranteed all medical, surgical and nursing expenses up to the amount insured.

The mortgage market in New York is characterized by pronounced dulness. As a result there has been a marked curtailment in building operations in that city. The generall demoralized condition of the stock market is to some extent responsible for this. As a rule these life and fire insurance companies invest their money in mortgages. At present, however, instead of investing their money to the same extent to this kind of a collateral, they are investing it in the low-priced securities of the stock market. This, according to some of the New York papers, is causing some adverse comment.

OBJECTS OF THE INSURANCE INSTITUTE OF TORONTO.

THE following is the last paragraph in the address before the Insurance Institute of Toronto, of Mr. P. H. Sims, the president, and briefly sets forth the objects of that organization: "It will be noticed that though the aims and objects of the institute are mainly educational, it does not propose to teach. It has neither the means nor the ability to do such work successfully. It gives directions by outlining the course of study and assumes the responsibilities of the examinations to guarantee proficiency. It therefore follows that those who undertake the educational course must provide the teaching. This, however, in the elementary is not expensive, inasmuch as the books required are plentiful and cheap. In the advanced subjects correspondence schools will be found of great assistance, and which present the advantage of enabling energetic students to qualify for examinations while continuing their daily occupations. The important requirements are first, resolution, and second, determination, which will surely bring success. If the institute, in pointing the way, awakens and stimulates these qualities, its existence will be amply justified, and its reward will be in having assisted our young men to qualify themselves for the responsibilities of the business of insurance in coming years."

INQUIRIES ABOUT CANADAN TRADE.

The following were among the recent inquiries relating to Canadian trade received at the Canadian Government office in London, England :

1. A North of England firm desires to get into touch with one or two good Canadian houses importing old iron and steel in the shape of rails, ship plates, etc.

2. A wholesale provision merchant in the North of England makes inquiry respecting regular supplies of split peas from Canada.

3. A firm in the Midlands are desirous of getting into touch with Canadian manufacturers of hay forks.

4. Inquiry is made for basswood glued-up panels, for piano key-boards.

5. An agent, established at Marseilles, offers his services to Canadian houses exporting canned meats and lobsters, fresh and dried apples, preserved fruits, etc.

6. A chartering agent in London is anxious to get the agency of firms who require steam tonnage for the conveyance of grain from Canada to the United Kingdom. Is also prepared to induce business in shipping by taking up agencies and selling goods for first-class houses.

7. A firm of export merchants, with good connections, are desirous of opening up business relations with Canada, and are anxious to get into touch with Canadian houses requiring representation in England. Will undertake buying agencies, or give attention to sale of goods.

8. A London firm interested in the flax trade inquire for names of exporters from Canada of this article, or of parties who would be exporters, if opportunity offered.

9. Some makers of patent fireproof goods are seeking supplies of plaster (gypsum) or any other cohesive material produced in Canada and obtainable at a moderate figure in fair quantities.

The following inquiries were received by the Canadian section of the Imperial Institute, London, S.W. :

10. Inquiry has been made for the addresses of Canadian manufacturers of vinegar.

11. A Glasgow house asks to be placed in communication with packers of Canadian gallon apples of the finest quality. They could take large quantities, and would require cans to be labelled with their own brand.

12. A London import firm asks to be put into touch with Canadian shippers of graphite, good quality.

13. A company manufacturing insulated wires and cables asks to be placed in correspondence with Canadian firms buying these lines.

14. The manufacturers of an agricultural motor are desirous of establishing trade in Canada, and wish to hear from Canadian firms prepared to handle these motors.

15. A company which manufactures tools desires information as to the nature and extent of the market existing in Canada for edge tools.

Tobaccos, Cigars, and Smokers' Accessories

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Three Weeks Till Christmas.

THREE weeks from to-day will be Christmas. Before we know it that festal day will be at hand. In the meanwhile how about your tobacco department; every other part of your store is filled with seasonable holiday goods, how about your cigars, tobaccos and pipes? After a generous helping of plum pudding and a wide section of mince pie has rounded off a dinner in which a well-browned turkey holds the central place, come coffee and cigars. Are you making preparations to remind your customers of that fact? Is there anything around your tobacco department that would suggest to your smoker customers the luxury of an especially good cigar for Christmas afternoon? It may be worth while. Don't you think so?

There are special packages of cigars got up especially for the holiday and gift trade. Have you them in stock? Does your department tempt the smoker to take home a box of Havanas or brand new pipe? Do you or your clerks ever suggest such a thing to his wife, not openly, of course, but adroitly and effectively?

When you read this walk over in front of your tobacco department and examine it critically. Rearrange it perhaps in a new and striking way. Give a little extra attention to your cigars and pipes just now. It will pay. It will pay well. Try it!

Grocer Ads Do The Work.

The special bargain in pipes advertised by W. B. Reid & Co. appears to be appreciated by the trade, several duplicate orders having already been received. These orders came from grocers in Quebec, Ontario, and Manitoba. Mr. W. B. Reid is delighted with the response to his special offer, and the fact that repeat orders have been received so early is the best evidence of the interest the grocery trade are evincing in the tobacco trade, and the field here to be developed.

A New Kind of Offer.

Cigar merchants and importers in England have received a circular from the Havana Tobacco Co., offering a new rebate sceme. They are offered a quarterly 5 per cent rebate if they will undertake that 70 per cent of the business done shall be in brands of the Havana Tobacco Co. If they increase the percentage to 85, a rebate of 7½ per cent. is granted. Satisfactory evidence must be shown that the conditions have been complied with. This satisfactory evidence is not explained, but it means presumably an inspection of books.

Cigars from Cuba.

ACCORDING to Dun's Review the exports of cigars from Cuba for the past three years were as tollows:

1900	211,757,543
1902	208,041,945

During the same period 30,000,000 cigarettes were exported. In 1859 Cuba exported 250,000,000 cigars, of which the United States took 102,000,000; 30 years later the importations of the United States were about a third of that number. The value of exports of leaf and manufactured tobacco for the past four years was as follows:

1899	$21,084,750
1900	26,087,868
1901	25,327,175
1902	25,404,180

About 19,000 persons are employed in the tobacco industry in Havana, and in May, 1901, there were in operation in the city 116 cigar factories, besides 111 small manufacturers who, according to law, cannot employ more than seven cigar-makers each, and who are supposed to manufacture for domestic consumption only, although some of them are doing a little exporting.

Since 1896 there has not been a tobacco crop of normal size and of good quality, and most of the planters, or those backing them, have lost money every year.

Tobacco in Ireland.

THE history of tobacco growing in Ireland is, in a way, curious, says Mr. John Redmond, in a recent interview. The weed was extensively grown until 1660, when it was prohibited by the 12th of Charles II., Chap. 31. This act was passed in response to a petition presented to the Government in the interests of the American colonists who were engaged in tobacco planting. In these days, when there is so much talk of benefitting the colonies by preferential rates, it is rather strange to reflect that the tobacco industry was stamped out of Ireland directly and openly for the purpose of encouraging the English colonial planters in America. Subsequently, another act was passed increasing the penalties for growing tobacco in Ireland, but it was not till many years after that the industry was suppressed. In 1779 an act was passed—I think the 19th of George III., Chap. 35, by which previous acts prohibiting the growth of tobacco in Ireland were repealed. In 1830 a committee of the House of Commons sat to inquire into the subject, the chairman of which was Sir Henry Parnell. A great deal of evidence of a most interesting character was taken, but the result was that the committee recommended that the growth of tobacco should be once more prohibited in Ireland; and, so far as we can judge, this was done mainly on the ground of the increased expense to the Excise Department.

The tobacco grown within the last few years, samples of which were submitted to various authorities, has been fairly satisfactory. It is not contended that tobacco has been, or can immediately be, grown which could compete with the finer grades of foreign tobacco; but, in the opinion of some experts, the samples prove that the Irish-grown weed can be manufactured into the stronger and rougher class of tobacco which is very generally used. The whole subject is one of great interest, and many of us are convinced that if we are to receive encouragement, which the Government ought to extend in a matter of this kind, the day may not be far distant when hundreds, if not thousands, of people in Ireland may find themselves engaged in Ireland in a suitable and remunerative employment.

Too Long to Wait.

TRUTH is stranger than fiction—and often funnier. A well-known wholesale tobacconist tells the following story, which actually occurred lately. He sold a party a bill of tobacco on four months' open account, for immediate delivery. The goods were shipped, and shortly before the bill was due he stopped in to see the man and sold him another bill, to be shipped just about the time his first bill would become due. With characteristic business sagacity, however, he held back this shipment, awaiting cheque. The cheque was not forthcoming, but a letter was received from the customer asking why his second bill was not delivered. The wholesaler wrote back: "You haven't paid your first bill yet, and as soon as you do I will ship the other." The following is the answer received in reply: "Dear sir: Kindly cancel my order to you, as I cannot wait until then."

Shocked a New Yorker.

A LASSIE of Dowie's army nearly paralyzed a New York rounder on the army's arrival in Gotham, according to The Cigar and Tobacco Journal. She was a pleasant young woman, with soft, black hair, and in the Battery she walked up to a fat man who was looking at a train load of arriving restorers and said to him with winning seriousness:

"Will you let me have your cigarette?"

He blanched a little, took the cigarette from his lips, studied it, and then handed it over to her with a foolish grin. Perhaps he expected her to use it to light another cigarette. He looked as though he had some such notion. But she flung it into the gutter.

"Peace be with you, brother," she said, smiling sweetly as she swung herself aboard a trolly car on the Battery loop.

"Well, I'll be d—d, murmured the fat man, looking first at the smoking cigarette and then at the disappearing car.

"Undoubtedly you will be damned," said a Dowieite with faded brown whiskers and a silk hat, looking at him mournfully, "unless you reform from your profane speech. Peace be with you, brother."

The fat man fled into one of the Battery saloons, and the restorers went on their way.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

"Insure Your Business Against Dull Days—Advertise!"

IT'S like trying to tell the Chinaman how to iron your shirt—this telling retailers about the use of types, inasmuch as the average merchant does not know anything about types and doesn't seem to understand what you are talking about when you try to tell him about them.

Most of them seem to think it's enough bother to write the copy without worrying about the kind of type the ad. is to be set in.

What I have to say now is of interest to the man who is willing to "bother," if it is going to help make his advertising any better.

The appearance of an ad. has a whole lot to do with its selling power. Just as an attractive label or package helps to sell the goods it covers, so a well-displayed ad. draws and holds attention and makes the matter it contains more digestible.

The most apparent fault to be found with most of the retail ads. that appear in the different papers throughout Canada is that there are too many display lines and not enough body type in them. In most cases what the merchant writes for his ad. is far superior to the way in which it is displayed.

Nor is this always the fault of the printer or the man who sets the ads. The reason usually is that the merchant is apt to know his goods and to know why, in his opinion at least, it would be of advantage to the public to buy what he has to offer. The business man can often talk eloquently and convincingly about his particular business when he cannot talk at all upon any other subject. But never having given any thought to the artistic and effective display in type, he has no idea how his "talk" is going to look when it is set up. So he either underscores all the important thoughts in his ad. to be displayed, or leaves the matter entirely in the printer's hands.

The main trouble is that the merchant usually wants every new thought or important line to be brought out in big heavy type, as if he would label it "big thought." One meets this desire for big type quite frequently among advertisers both great and small. The result is generally a hodgepodge, with no very great impression of any one thing made on the reader.

If I were to make one motto or rule by which the readers of this department could most strengthen their advertising, it would be this: Depend on the vigorous expression of your thought and not on big type to make an impression on the public.

An ad. built with that rule as a basis would need no unsightly lines all over the ad. A well conceived catch-line would be displayed at the beginning, and possibly, in exceptional cases, elsewhere in the ad., and we would depend on this line, aided sometimes by an illustration, to catch the eye of the reader. Having once got him on the hook, so to speak, black type is no longer necessary. He starts to read, and if the talk is interesting, he will read the ad. clear through. If he is not interested, no overplus of big black type sprinkled through the ad. is going to keep him from wandering off to something more pleasing and interesting.

Having then dispensed with the necessity of black type to emphasize our thoughts, we can put the black letters in occasionally where it is likely to add to the general attractiveness of the ad. We will, therefore, use them as sub-heads occasionally when the ad. is a large one, but the sub-heads will never be as large or otherwise as prominent as the headline.

The name of the advertiser should usually appear in type of the same size as the headline or the largest display line.

Don't always have your headline or catchline of the "hurrah" style.

Let it be timely — a self-contained thought — or a mere catch-phrase to excite curiosity.

Don't feel obliged to fill every nook and corner of your space with something or other. Some ads. look to me as if they were "slopping over." Some printers seem to have the idea that the type should hug the margin, and that all the space must be covered with type matter of some kind. Nonsense! What would a man's face look like if it was all covered with whiskers? It's because the whiskers are arranged to suit the face (usually), that the man looks "right."

When you are going out to meet some strangers whom you are anxious should be favorably impressed with you, you dress up, look your best and smile your prettiest to help things along.

So when you send an ad. out to solicit business you are anxious it should create a favorable impression; so dress it up neatly.

Advertising Deeds.

The ad. reproduced this week came from up north, and was entered in the October Prize Competition.

This kind of an ad. is a good deal better than the "we carry a complete line of good groceries" kind, which is so much used.

It might be considerably improved by drawing attention to the lists with some argument showing that the lists were interesting.

A mere commonplace remark such as this ad. starts off with is hardly likely to excite a person's interest in what follows :

But if I said :

> A Lot of New Fresh Fruit In this Week.
> We are receiving frequent shipments of new fruits, both imported and domestic.
> This week's arrivals with selling prices, are :

Then the next paragraph might start off with :

> Picnics, camping parties and home luncheons suggest a good many tasty dishes that make many of the following especially interesting.

When you publish a list of goods with prices try and include some kind of an excuse for publishing such a list. It's sure to make the list more interesting and attract attention to it.

I would pay more attention to the display of these ads., too.

WEST INDIAN CONDITIONS.

MR. T. RUSSELL-MURRAY, Canadian representative in Montreal of the Imperial Agricultural Department of the West Indies, reports the West Indian market firm. No shipments of cocoa from Trinidad may be expected before January. Bahia cocoa advanced ¼c. per pound. Mr. Murray reports that the recent arrival of Canadian flour, No. 2, Canadian extras, have sold readily, and it seems a pity that millers in the Dominion are so indifferent about retaining a share of this trade. A large volume of business, in his opinion, could be done with the Islands if the Canadian millers and exporters would study the conditions in the same careful manner that the American millers and exporters do.

Venezuela is making Amuculo, Carupano and La Guayra transhipping points for the Orinoco, which means that the export trade for Trinidad is at an absolute standstill.

CAPITAL STOCK INCREASED.

His Honor the Lieutenant Governor-in-Council has by supplementary letters patent been pleased to confirm a by-law of The New York Lake Erie Oil and Gas Co., Limited, providing for the increase of capital stock of the company from the sum of one million dollars to the sum of two million dollars by the issue of one million shares of new stock of one dolla each.

Borden's Brands of CONDENSED MILK and EVAPORATED CREAM at Canadian Prices

We beg to announce that we have established a branch factory at Ingersoll, Ont., and that we are now prepared to fill all orders for the Canadian trade promptly, and at considerably reduced prices, owing to the establishment of the Canadian Branch. Our Eagle Brand Condensed Milk, Gold Seal Brand Condensed Milk and Peerless Brand Evaporated Cream, unsweetened, can be obtained through our local representatives.

BORDEN'S CONDENSED MILK CO.

Originators of Condensed Milk. Established 1857.

Selling representatives in Canada: F. W. Hudson & Co., Toronto. W. H. Dunn, Montreal. Erb & Rankin, Halifax. W. S. Clawson & Co., St. John, N.B. Scott, Bathgate & Co., Winnipeg, also Shallcross, Macaulay & Co., Victoria and Vancouver, B.C.

LIPTON'S TEAS

have without doubt to day THE LARGEST SALE IN THE WORLD. They are the only teas in Canada and the United States that are sold in HERMETICALLY-SEALED, AIRTIGHT CANS. This insures the tea retaining its excellent flavor and the delicious aroma with which they have so long been associated. This is the only hygienic and healthful way of packing tea and is far superior to teas packed in lead packages.

LIPTON'S TEAS are the only teas in Canada that are shipped by the seller DIRECT FROM THE GARDENS, which means there is more profit in it for the grocer. No up to-date grocer can be without them to-day.

THE MANUFACTURERS AND THE GREAT WEST.

A Symposium of Some of Their Impressions Gathered During Their Recent Trip to the Pacific Coast.

THE impressions received by the Canadian Manufacturers on their trip to the Coast which have been given by THE GROCER to our readers, are continued in this issue. The questions which were put by THE GROCER to the manufacturers and the answers of some of those interrogated, are given below :

QUESTIONS SUBMITTED.

FIRST—What most impressed you from a business standpoint during your trip through the Great West to the Pacific Coast?

SECOND—What is your opinion in regard to the future of Manitoba and British Columbia as manufacturing centres?

THIRD—In what way can manufacturers of the east secure a larger share of the trade of the Great West, that now goes to the manufacturing firms in the United States?

FOURTH—How can business men in the east best assist the people of Manitoba, the Territories and British Columbia in developing the natural resources of their respective parts of the country?

J. M. Fortier, of J. M. Fortier, Limited, Montreal.

First.—Winnipeg impressed me as to its future as a business centre. We may say that Winnipeg will be the Chicago of Canada ; its activity, the very fine buildings which are being built, the scarcity of houses to let, and the go ahead of the business people is most striking. In my estimation, Manitoba and the Northwest are ahead of British Columbia because they have as a backbone their annual crops of wheat that the world requires.

Regarding second question, beg to say : That Manitoba could become a manufacturing country if our tariff was equal to that of the United States, and British Columbia's situation is the same.

In answer to the third question : The only way for manufacturers of the east to secure the trade of the Great West is to open up factories there or have warehouses with sufficient stock on hand to supply the trade on immediate delivery, same as United States' firms are doing now.

In answer to the fourth question : The business man of the east can only assist the territories of British Columbia in developing their national resources by recommending and popularizing their enormous resources and wealth to the immigrants. They have everything that can make a man rich, and all that these territories require is men to develop them, and as the people of the east are already installed, we might send some. I shall send to the West any one coming to me and wanting to make money, as there is money there for everyone who wants it. All they have to do is to help themselves. If I was a young man I would go out myself.

Mayor J. P. Layborn, London

First. The country appears to be going ahead at a great rate, especially in the far west and Alberta district. Everywhere one travels along the Canadian Pacific new lines are being built. The invasion of Americans is most noticeable everywhere and our friends across the border are certainly flocking into the West. It is also most striking to observe the enormous stocks which the firms in this part of the country carry, especially in hardware and implements, which speaks for itself.

Second. By increased railway competition, consequently reducing freight rates. In a great many instances the manufacturers of the east are at a great disadvantage in regard to long freight hauls to the West, American firms being in a position to ship at a low rate, the distance being shorter from Minnesota and freights lower, thus being in a better position to compete with eastern firms whose goods are carried at least two thousand miles. Judging from what I could hear I should say that American firms are selling cheaper in the Canadian West than in their own country in order to get a footing with goods, their faith in the future of this country being apparently very great.

Third. I should say by an investment of capital, thereby showing their confidence ; the establishment of distributing agencies, thereby supplying the westerners with Canadian-made goods ; and by periodical meetings or conventions taking place either east or West, at which an exchange of views may take place, and their wants and requirements attended to.

Fourth. British Columbia, when more fully developed, has a great future in front of it for manufacturing, especially when more of its wonderful water powers are harnessed and its untold hidden treasures are discovered.

Strathcona and Edmonton are certainly destined to become a great centre of industry, their natural resources meeting most requirements, coal being found on the spot, and great facilities accrueing from water power and water transport, and with the G.T.P. great things may be anticipated. Lethbridge also shows great signs of activity, but not being a manufacturer it is beyond my province to go into further details.

Geo. F. Cleveland, of J. L. Goodhue & Co , Danville, Que.

What most impressed me from a business standpoint during our trip to the Northwest and Pacific Coast was the unlimited possibilities for future expansion and the present large consumption of all kinds of goods by the western people.

The very large proportion of the business now going to the United States, especially in agricultural implements, stoves, hardware and similar lines.

The great need there was that something should be done to secure the present large trade, and the enormous demand there will be as the country fills up for Canadian manufactures.

Nearly everything the people of the West require can and should be made in Canada.

It struck me as being a very short-sighted policy for the western farmers to send so much of their money to sustain the immense army of workmen in the United States, thus gaining the farmers of the United States the best market, the home one, for the largest part of their produce at high prices.

Regarding manufacturing in Manitoba and British Columbia, I do not look for much in this line for some time to come. In Manitoba labor and power are yet, and will be for some time to come, too expensive.

Winnipeg will, as the farming population increases in Manitoba and the Territories, and the surplus who for various reasons do not care to remain on the farms look for other occupations, have an available supply of labor, and when this time comes, will no doubt develop as quite a manufacturing city.

British Columbia, with her great water powers and cheap coal, has great possibilities as a manufacturing country, but at present the labor question is a great drawback and will prevent much manufacturing till matters are in better shape in this regard.

At Rat Portage and Port Arthur they have a vast available supply of cheap power in their great water powers, which are now being developed, and they should become large manufacturing points.

To me it seems that for some time to come the manufacturing for Canada will have to be done in the east. After a time a great deal should be done in British Columbia, and then these two parts of our country will do the manufacturing, and Manitoba and Territories will raise the produce to feed them.

The manufacturers of the east can secure a larger portion of the trade of the West by going there often, studying the conditions, learning what class of goods are brought in from the United States, making what the people want of as good or better quality as imported, filling orders promptly, and, as they say in the West, "hustling for the trade."

All this must be supplemented by a strong and united demand that they be put in a position to compete fairly.

Business men in the east can assist the people of the West in building up and deve,oping the country by visiting them frequently, having more faith in the future of our common country, establishing branches and distributing warehouses in the different centres, investing their surplus, if they have any, in legitimate enterprises, mining or other, as opportunity occurs; by helping in every way possible and feasible to secure more transportation facilities throughout the West and from the east to the West, not forgetting the great work that the C.P.R. has done and will do in this regard. In short, to all work together for the common good of all parts of our great and glorious country. If we do this we are bound to be one of the greatest as well as the best that the sun shines on.

W. H. Merritt, of The National Table Co., Limited, Owen Sound.

First. What impressed me most from a business standpoint during my trip West was the enormously increased purchasing power of the farmers and merchants in Manitoba and the Territories compared with two or three years ago, which has come about through the increase in value of lands, to say nothing of the profits which have been made on crops during the same period. Lands have increased in value to such an extent that it is salable in many cases at a figure four times its value three years ago. I was most strongly impressed with the solid financial position of practically all of the people, and of the great possibilities of trade awaiting the eastern manufacturers, which is sure to come to them. When you think that the Grand Trunk Pacific is about to enter the West and open up a new country much larger than the C.P.R. has settled, that this process of settlement, development and general raise in values is to continue on a much larger scale, we cannot help but be very optimistic as to the possibilities for business in all lines affecting all dealers in the West, as well as all manufacturers in the east.

Second. I do not think that Manitoba or British Columbia will manufacture on a large scale for some time to come. Our generation will hardly see that day. No doubt at certain points, which are well situated for cheap fuel and lumber, much manufacturing will be done, but it can only be in a small way, except in certain lines, some of which are already established there, such as milling in Manitoba and lumbering in British Columbia.

Third. I do not think that a very large amount of American-made goods are going into the West, except in agricultural implements and some small special lines not made to any extent in Canada. These same lines are going into Ontario to almost the same extent that they are going into the West. The implement firms also have their agencies at all principal points in the east. It does not appear to me that many of the manufacturers in Canada are suffering to any extent on account of American goods imported into the West.

Fourth. I think that the business men in the East can best assist the people in the West in developing the national resources of that country, by establishing branches of their business there, by investing and using their influence to have others invest in all sound undertakings going forward in the West, and by favoring and helping all legislation which will be to the benefit of the West, such as projecting new railways and branch lines, which will open up new territory for settlement and help to develop the timber, coal and mineral resources of the country.

Harry B. Whitton, The Tuckett Cigar Co, Hamilton.

In reply to your inquiries of October 17, I have pleasure in answering your questions as follows :

1. The very material improvement generally in all the towns west of Winnipeg. The growth of Winnipeg is, of course, phenomenal; and has been recognized previously by residents of the east.

2. The absence of wood, coal and iron must, for a long time, militate against the general development of the manufacturing centres of the West, though in the Crow's Nest Valley, where iron and coal abound, there is no reason why in years to come, it should not be a second Pennsylvania.

3. By more frequent visits to the trade, a closer study of requirements and more prompt delivery of goods to customers. Greater railway facilities and lower transportation rates seem to be the great desiderata at the present.

M. McLaughlin, Royal Dominion Mills, Toronto.

Replying to your first question—That Canada has acreage sufficient to grow as much wheat for export as is imported, not only by Great Britain, but by all the world, was what most impressed me from a business standpoint.

To questions three and four—development depends on transportation facilities, and will be limited by the same. Assistance, to be effectual, should be in the direction of railway developments.

Henry Wright, The A. F. MacLaren, Imperial Cheese Co., Toronto

You have certainly put four questions to us that it would take either a politician or a newspaper man to answer.

1. MacLaren's Imperial Cheese.

2. Very good.

3. By putting up good goods ; telling the people they are good, and using lots of energy and perseverance to push them.

4. By sending out men or women, young or old, with a little brain if necessary and lots of muscle and energy.

DAIRY PRODUCE AND PROVISIONS

and Cold Storage News.

THE POULTRY TRADE IN CANADA.

CANADIANS are awakening to possibilities of the poultry trade. Last year we exported more than $160,000 worth of poultry, one commission merchant sending to England no less than 50,000 chickens and 5,000 turkeys. The Dominion Government has been active in establishing chicken-fattening stations in different sections of the country for the education of farmers in poultry raising, with the result that the quality of poultry has shown a decided improvement.

In the last three years local trade has been increased threefold, and a very healthy export trade built up.

There is no longer a demand for lean fowl except from canning factories, which take all the starved stuff they can get hold of at low prices to make into soups. An extensive produce dealer reports that a 6-lb. chicken will dress 5c. a lb. more than 2 or 3-lb. chickens.

Poultry raisers are being educated to feed scientifically, and good results are already forthcoming, but the utmost care must be exercised in killing and dressing if Canadians are to get out of the poultry trade all there is in it. Commission merchants frequently complain that poultry comes to them in bad condition, and the reason is because farmers neglect to exercise proper care in killing and dressing. A fowl should be starved at least 24 hours before killing, else a quantity of grain will remain in its crop, which, in its partially digested state, is sure to disintigrate with the result that the dead bird becomes quickly discolored. A bird with crop empty will keep longer and bring a better price ; but what is more important, if a bird with a full crop is discovered in a lot for export, the consignment is apt to be confiscated. The general merchant has to take the risk, and he, if any, suffers. A butcher should always avoid worrying or exciting his prey. Blotches of red sometimes appear under the skin surface of dressed fowl. This means that the bird was plucked before killing in order to get a high price for live-plucked feathers. As a matter of fact poultry raisers lose more from the low price they have to take for the inferior article than they make on the increased value of the feathers. In dressing, the farmer should avoid the pernicious method of removing feathers by scalding. Not only does it spoil the appearance of a bird, but a scalded fowl will not keep as long as one that is dry-picked. For the export trade nothing but dry-picked fowl will answer. For export purposes the bird should not be too large, wing-tips should not be plucked, and heads should be left on ; for the local market wing-tips are plucked and heads removed. There are variations in the manner of preparing poultry for the local market according to locality. In the East a fowl must be dressed and drawn ; in the West this is seldom done except to order.

The following hints may be of value to the general merchant who is the go-between for commission merchant and poultry-raiser. Commission merchants say the general merchant is often careless in sorting poultry, and for that matter, does not discriminate sufficiently even in buying. He takes anything which may have been called fowl at some time or other, because he is afraid to refuse his customer, and is unwilling to see his neighbor around the corner get the start of him. Mrs. Brown gets the same price for a pair of poor chickens as Mrs. Smith for a pair of good ones. As a result, a stock of good, bad and indifferent stuff accumulates, for which it is impossible to find any but an indifferent market. If the general merchant had only the determination to refuse an inferior article point blank, he would succeed in time in educating the farmer to bring nothing but a first-class article to market. Further, he would have some real say in controlling market prices for poultry instead of being at the mercy of the commission merchant.

The country dealer, instead of sending live poultry direct to the commission merchant, is prone to keep what he has on hand until there are more to follow. The result of this delay frequently is that his stuff reaches its destination in bad condition. During the three or four days they have been cooped up the birds have shrunk in weight, and are sure to show poor color when killed and dressed. In such a predicament the commission merchant takes care to insure himself against loss, the entire burden falling on the general merchant.

Another difficulty sometimes confronts the general merchant. He finds a lot of poultry on his hands for which he has no ready sale. When there is a glut in the market his one salvation is to send his surplus stock to cold storage. It is not advisable to do this except with well-fattened, well-dressed fowl, which has been thoroughly cooled after killing, else it will turn green in color. It should, also, be carefully packed in boxes containing from ten to twelve fowl apiece, each bird carefully wrapped in vegetable parchment and placed straight in the box.

A prominent commission merchant, in speaking of the possibilities of the poultry trade in Canada, remarks that it is already assuming large proportions. The local trade is sure, and at the present time we will take all the poultry we can get hold of, provided it is A No. 1 quality. There is an unlimited demand in the Old Country for Canadian turkeys, chickens and ducks, but only a limited supply to meet it. They want the best or none at all, and we must educate the farmer to supply this demand and do it right. This is being slowly accomplished, and not only is there far more first-class poultry being used for the local and export trade, but it is also bringing a much better price than heretofore.

Trinidad Provisions.

Gordon Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, writing Nov. 4 say : "Pork and lard are in supply and move slowly. Pork loins, ribs, shoulders, and all such goods find ready sale. Family beef is slowly firming up, but the demand continues chiefly for the cheapest grades.

"For Morlaix butter there is still a slight enquiry and even present low quotations are only obtainable in a retail way—imports are on a liberal scale, some 450 packages having arrived per ss. Le Calvados. Oleomargarine is moving freely, although at slightly lower rates."

Paraffining and Cold Storage.

PARAFFINING cheese and cooling at a low temperature has been receiving the attention of the New York Experiment Station, and among other facts brought out are the following:

By paraffining the cheese much of the loss in weight was prevented, especially at the highest temperature; and the quality was improved in some instances—never lowered.

Half of the cheeses in one lot were dipped in melted paraffin when a few days old, and were distributed in the curing-rooms at different temperatures, to compare with the other half of the cheeses, which were untreated.

The difference in the scores of paraffined and unparaffined cheese was slight up to 28 weeks, with the cheeses kept at 10 degrees, and up to 20 weeks with those cured at 50 degrees; but at 35 weeks with the 10 degree cheeses, and at 28 weeks with those kept at 50 degrees, there was an average difference of one point on the score in favor of those paraffined. At 60 degrees there was an average difference when the cheeses were 20 weeks old, of 1½ points in favor of paraffining.

When covered with paraffin, the cheeses cured at 40 degrees lost only 0.3 lb. per 100 lb., those cured at 50 degrees lost only 0.5 lb., and those cured at 60 degrees lost only 1.4 lb. In the same kind of cheese not thus covered, the loss was much greater at all temperatures. By covering cheese with paraffin, a saving in loss of moisture can be effected amounting to 5 or 6 lb. per 100 lb. of cheese, at 60 degrees F., and at 50 degrees or below the total loss of moisture can be reduced to less than 1 lb. per 100 lb. of cheese.

At 40 degrees, the difference in favor of the paraffined cheese, counting both quality and quantity, was 51 cents for 100 lb. of cheese stored; at 50 degrees the difference is 63 cents; and at 60 degrees, $1.11. The saving is much greater at higher than at lower temperatures.

Eggs for China.

The importation of Siberian butters into this country, says London Grocery, is increasing by leaps and bounds, and from the same country comes a large amount of eggs. At least these eggs ostensibly come from Siberia, but in reality their place of origin is China, and China is the cheapest market for eggs. Incredible as it may seem, several manufacturing companies in England, which deal largely in eggs, can buy them cheaper in China—finest "Siberian" carriage paid—than in England.

Cheese Statistics.

The value of cheese made in Cadana this year is estimated at $25,000,000 to $30,000,000. A contemporary of a mathematical bent has figured out that this represents a make for the season of 3,000,000 boxes; in weight estimated at 24,000,000 lbs.; equal to 6,000 carloads of 20 tons each; making a train 37½ miles in length; piled up one over the other it would make a stack 852 miles in height.

An Injury to the Trade.

MR. A. W. WOODARD, official cheese and butter referee of the Department of Agriculture, who has been endeavoring without success to find from what source shipment was made of Canadian butter to England in Danish casks, speaking in Montreal the other day said: "Produce men who ship best Canadian butter as Danish are making a great mistake and doing the Canadian butter trade an injury. Besides, the practice is hardly that of honorable men. But if the best Canadian butter is shipped as Danish butter and the poorer grades are sent out as Canadian, it puts Canadian butter on a low level. If we can make butter so good that it can be sold as Danish, it should not be necessary to sail under false colors. Shippers should ship their best product as Canadian. These casks are made of a peculiar birch wood that is not obtainable in Canada. On the other hand, we have been unable to trace imports of any."

THE PROVISION MARKETS.

Toronto.

The easier tone reported last week has continued. The large corn crop in the United States portends a large production of hogs and consequent weaker feeling. In addition to this the English market is in a bad way. As a consequence dressed hogs are very much easier and even lower prices are expected by some. Pork products in consequence are exhibiting an easier tendency. The supplies keep about the same while the close of navigation shuts off very considerable markets for the present. We quote:

The market for hog products has been fairly active during the week at steady prices. In round lots Canadian short-cut mess pork is selling at $18.50. Smoked meats, especially hams and bacons, are in excellent demand. We quote:

HAMILTON TRAVELLERS.

The annual meeting of the Hamilton branch, Commercial Travellers' Association of Canada, was held in the New Royal on Saturday evening. It was decided to hold a conversazione during Christmas week. The membership in Canada has grown to 6,400, and the reserve fund now amounts to over $400,000, which shows its affairs to be in a most flourishing condition. The amount paid out this year in death claims was $40,000.

The nomination for officers to represent the Hamilton branch was as follows : First vice-president, Fred T. Smye, elected by acclamation ; second vice-president, Capt. J. H. Herring, elected by acclamation ; for directors, six to be elected—H. C. Wright, E. J. Fenwick, Jas. Hooper, G. A. Matheson, G. M. McGregor, W. G. Reid, J. S. Reid, E. E. W. Moore, Ed. McCoy, R. The head office of the firm to be at the town of Ridgetown, and the provisional directors to be the gentlemen above mentioned.

ELGIN BEE-KEEPERS.

A MEETING of the bee-keepers of Elgin Co. was held in the Y.M.C.A. rooms, St. Thomas, Saturday afternoon, and a local association formed to be known as the Elgin County Bee-keepers Association. The following officers were elected : President, Morley Pettit, Belmont ; vice-president, J. A. McFarland, Southwold Station ; sec.-treas., W. J. Robb, St. Thomas.

The annual membership fee was fixed at twenty-five cents.

An interesting discussion took place as to the packing and crating of honey, and views exchanged as to the best methods of adoption.

It was decided to hold the meetings monthly, the next meeting to be held on Saturday, December 12.

Among the representatives present there were reported 671 colonies of bees, which will be greatly augmented when fuller organization takes place.

TORONTO TRAVELLERS' "AT HOME."

THE Toronto City Travellers' Association held their annual "At Home" on Tuesday evening, November 24, at St. George's Hall. The success of any social function conducted under the auspices of the Commercial Travellers' of Canada is assured from the start, and last night's entertainment proved to be no exception to the rule. The secretary of the association, Mr. W. T. Daniel, ably assisted by his committee, composed of H. C. Scully, J. Mortimer, A. G. Fleming and C. H. Wilson, spared no pains in seeing to it that the arrangements were perfect, and it is in no small measure due to their untiring efforts on behalf of their guests that this year's "At Home" went off with an eclat that it is seldom one's pleasure to witness.

Invitations were limited to 200 to avoid over-crowding ; the result was that the crush and jam so often characteristic of large "At Homes" was entirely absent.

Dancing was the order of the evening, and the Glionna-Maricano orchestra never in better mettle. Incidental divertisement was provided in the form of a vaudeville concert with Harry Bennett in the roll of chief entertainer. His side-splitting monologues and humorous songs were refreshing in the extreme, and served their purpose so well that gay and festive merry-makers hardly realized when the conclusion of the dance programme of 18 numbers had been reached. Refreshments were served during the evening from a buffet with centre-piece of yellow and white crysanthemums, golden-tinted candelabra and rich cut glass, and were all that could be desired.

It is to the credit of the City Travellers' Association to say their annual "At Home" was undoubtedly one of the pleasantest functions of this season. Everyone seemed to be there for the unalloyed purpose of having a good time, and whether in the dancing hall, the numerous card-rooms or the tea-rooms, they had it.

IMPRESSIONS OF THE GREAT WEST

By W. L. E.

IN British Columbia nearly every one seems to be interested in mining. I don't mean altogether in a financial way, but interested enough to talk about it. In the purely mining districts it crops up in nearly every conversation, although possibly we eas-terners were sometimes responsible for its being drawn into the conversation. But even if we were, I do not think we need to apologize. The subject impressed itself upon us the moment we entered the province; indeed, even before we were within its boundary lines. When sailing over the sea one occasionally thinks of the teaming millions of fish which are swimming about underneath, but when skirting mountains, or climbing them, as one is doing continuously for about 500 miles, when travelling through the Rockies westward, and remembering that the "sea of mountains" as Grant called them 30 years ago, are rich in minerals, one can scarcely avoid talking about mines and minerals. When travelling on train or boat, or resting in some hotel, any one who was in authority, or supposed to be in authority on mineralogy, soon had a group of eager listeners, and it was seldom we failed to get some interesting information on such occasions.

Landing our Party at Kootenay Landing.

In the mining districts most people carry a miner's license, without which no man can stake out a claim. These licenses only cost $5, and the possessor of it, when he discovers what he believes to be land rich in mineral properties, has merely to stake out his claim and register it in the nearest registration point. "It is a handy thing to have with you," remarked one Nelsonite. "Although I have never struck anything yet I always carry one." But like Micawber, he was expecting something to turn up some day; but from what I could gather the men who strike it rich are relatively few in number. On the steamer running from Nelson to Kootenay Landing was one of the few fortunate ones. He was a young man, a student. His home was in the United States, and during the last three years he had spent his holidays prospecting in British Columbia and had with his brother struck some rich claims in the Boundary District. He was well-informed and was the most interesting conversationalist on minerology that I came across during our journey. He was now homeward bound for the purpose of applying himself closely to his studies in order to blossom out as a civil engineer.

Cascade Mountain, Banff.

As we approached Rossland there was a good deal of good-natured bantering among some of our party in regard to the money which more than one of them had lost in mining speculations in that district. One man remarked that he was going to see the hole into which his money had gone. "There will be some satisfaction in that," he declared amid laughter. His remark was so apt that it became a by-word for a day or so. Our visit to Rossland was under rather unfavorable conditions. Snow had fallen the day before, and when we reached the town rain was falling and we had to plough our way through much slush. This, by the way, was our first actual contact with snow, although of course we saw much of it on the distant mountain peaks, from the time we caught our first glimpse of the Rockies. When we arrived at Rossland we found an enterprising merchant with a box of rubbers on the platform. He had anticipated a demand for rubbers, and he was not mistaken. His box was soon empty and his pockets well filled with money, for although his prices were surprisingly moderate under the circumstances, he had had many customers to supply. Notwithstanding the weather, our visit to Rossland was anything but unpleasant. The people were most hospitable and did everything in their power to entertain us. The mines were of course visited, but the centre of attraction was the Le Roy property. After entering the tunnel of this mine some of our party descended in the cage to the bottom of the main shaft, some 1,300 feet, while others ascended in a cage to the top of the mountain, some 370 feet. At the top were situated the hoisting machinery, the big grumbling crusher, which swallowed up the ore as fast as it was thrown into it, and the carriers which conveyed the crushed ore to the cars and dumping ground to be ultimately shipped to the smelter. Nearly all the work in the LeRoy mine is done by machinery and the various processes were watched with a great deal of interest, particularly by those who for the first time were visiting a modernly equipped gold mine. Nearly all took away specimens of ore, but when they found that the bright shining particles in the ore was iron pyrites and not gold few of them retained these specimens till they reached home. In spite of the inclemency of the weather I think we all felt well repaid for our visit to Rossland, and even those who had lost money in unwise speculations in the boom days, forgot to look for the holes into which their money had disappeared. The hopes and aspirations of the good people of Rossland were a little in the ascendency when we were there. Labor difficulties were disappearing, but what was developing the spirit of optimism more than anything else was the results that were expected from improved methods in extracting the gold from the ore, thus enabling a profit to be obtained from a much lower grade of ore than has been possible in the past. The appearance of Rossland much surprised me. I had not expected to see its buildings, its sidewalks and indeed its general appearance so modern. The granolithic sidewalk has reached there, and in width it would put the sidewalks in some of our modern eastern cities to shame.

No part of our journey was scarcely more interesting than that to and from Rossland. This was because the railway was different from any other we had travelled over. The grades were steep and the curves sharp; but it was the switch backs that most excited our curiosity. These switchbacks are on a mountain side near Rossland. They have been conveniently placed at points where the locomotive is likely to get out of breath, and at which, after opening a switch, the locomotive follows and the end car takes the lead. Then we have vice-versa again and again until the "iron horse" finally takes its place permanently at the head of the train, and steams into Rossland with its head as high as if it never had to take the tail end of the procession.

WESTERN TRADE PROGRESSIVE.

MR. W. L. HUNTER, western representative of L. Chaput, Fils & Cie., wholesale grocers, Montreal, was a caller at the offices of "The Grocer" in that city last week. In the course of conversation Mr. Hunter said: "Trade throughout the West generally has been of a progressive character, although not marked with the same buoyancy in the Territories that has characterized other years, when the staple crop wheat was better in quality than during the present season. You will notice I use the word staple, and this, to my mind, emphasizes at once the resources as well as the weakness of the Great Middle West, as I am convinced that until the farmers throughout Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Eastern Alberta learn through experience that they must enter more largely into mixed farming, such as hog-raising, poultry-keeping, and, where circumstances permit, the raising of vegetables for the nearest local market, farming conditions will not be equal in the territories named to such as prevail through Manitoba and the developed parts of New Ontario. Owing to these conditions, the grocery trade is confined to articles of a purely staple character, but further West throughout the ranching country there is a market demand for the finer grades of groceries. The people in this latter section are largely recruited from well-to-do families in Great Britain, and are naturally accustomed to the best that is going. The same remarks apply to British Columbia, with the additional fact that owing to contiguity of American sources of supply, I found in the principal stores a goodly proportion of specialties brought over from San Francisco, Seattle, Spokane, and other western American trade centres. I also found that notwithstanding the duty on these goods there was a steady trade for them among the residents, who hailed formerly from the other side of the line, and a no inconsiderable representation of our own people. The reason for this preference, I believe, will be found in the fact that these American goods are most handsomely put up in stylish packages and labelled in the highest style of the lithographer's art.

"As regards the prospects of our Great West I have the most unlimited faith in the future of that part of Canada, because, as settlement and development will assuredly take place in an increasing ratio every decade, the centre of population must surely swing gradually but unerringly in that direction; in fact, I believe that another generation or two will find the policy of the Dominion at large dictated with no inconsiderable reference to the views and wishes of our western fellow citizens.

"It is, of course, too early to speak of the prospects for next year, but without drawing too much on my natural optimism, I believe that trade will improve and increase, as prospects point most assuredly to a still larger influx of settlers from the western American States than during the present year. Those that have gone up and possessed the land, I know, in many instances, have written to friends and relatives to come and do likewise. Taking it altogether, the future prospects are thoroughly sound."

A "FAIRY" CALENDAR.

The N. K. Fairbank Co., Montreal, have issued a "Fairy" calendar for 1904, a sample set of which has been received by "The Canadian Grocer." For artistic excellence it must stand in the front rank. The entire work is of such a character as to reflect with credit both upon the artist and lithographer. This calendar is composed of seven sheets, 10 x 13 inches, printed on heavy glazed paper, and in 12 colors. The designs are made from brush studies of Mr. C. Warde Traver, an American artist of high repute. The first sheet represents an idealic figure of a young woman who is flanked each side by a broad, wavy blue scroll on which appear the different monthly indices, 12 in all. The other six sheets are devoted to six individual bust studies of young women.

Each head is given a frame effect in imitation of burnt leather, with borders and decorations in L'Art Nouveau (The New Art) which is the latest French treatment for decorative effects and is all the vogue.

The new calendar is being given in return for ten oval fronts from Fairy Soap boxes or 25c. in stamps, and can be obtained from The N. K. Fairbank Co., Montreal.

WORLD'S SUGAR OUTPUT.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in its "official crop report" for November, announces that the indications are that the world has entered on a new era in the production of cane sugar. The department quotes estimates placing the total sugar production of the world in the year 1903-4 at 10,425,800 tons of 2,240 pounds each, including 4,342,800 tons of cane sugar and 6,083,000 tons of beet sugar.

STANDARD OF DRIED APPLES.

A circular issued by Lucas, Steele & Bristol, Hamilton, urging the grocery trade to make a special effort to keep up the quality standard of dried apples, is deserving of special consideration.

To the Trade:

We regret that owing to the explosion of Boiler No. 3 at our Newmarket Factories on the 18th inst., and the consequent damage to the plant, the execution of orders for lard pails, candy pails and other wooden packages will be delayed. As the damage (contrary to newspaper reports) was confined to the Boiler Room, our main building and machinery, owing to their substantial character, being but slightly injured, we hope to be in a good position within thirty days to take care of all orders with which we are entrusted.

The accident does not in any way affect BOECKH'S TORONTO BRUSH AND BROOM FACTORIES nor BRYAN'S LONDON BRUSH FACTORIES, which are running full time as usual; and we can also fill orders for wash tubs, water pails, washboards, clothes pins and sundry woodenware.

Regretting exceedingly any inconvenience that may be caused to our customers, we remain,

Yours very truly,

NEWMARKET WOODENWARE FACTORY.

CONTRARY to newspaper reports the damage to the plant of The United Factories, Newmarket branch, in which are manufactured canes, tubs, pails, washboards and clothespins, was confined to the boiler and engine rooms. The main buildings, owing to their substantial character, were little injured. The work toward rebuilding the damaged section is already under way. Two of the very latest design water-tube boilers are now in transit, the combined capacity of which will be 750 horse power, giving the cane factories considerably increased capacity. The company are in a position to fill from their stocks carried at other points orders from the general trade for washtubs, pails, washboards and clothespins, but orders for lard pails and candy pails will be delayed for 30 days.

The accident does not affect in any way Boeckh's, Toronto, brush and broom factories nor Bryan's, London, brush factories, which are running full time as usual, nor will it interfere with the filling of orders for the lines of sundry woodenware, etc., which are manufactured at these factories.

APPOINTED SELLING AGENTS.

A. F. MacLaren Imperial Cheese Co., Ltd., have been appointed general selling agents in Ontario for The Napoli Macaroni Co., of Toronto, Canada, who put up macaroni, spaghetti and vermicelli in one pound packages; also fancy macaroni, stars, alphabets, etc., for soups. Now filling orders.

THANKS, MR. HARTY.

J. B. Harty, of Pictou, N.S., manager of The Canadian Flour Millers' Exchange, says in a recent letter to us: "THE CANADIAN GROCER is the best commercial paper in the world, and no business man should be without it."

AGAINST THE BUSINESS TAX.

The grocers' section of the Toronto Retail Merchants' Association have passed a resolution strongly opposing the proposed Ontario Business Tax.

MONTREAL TEA MERCHANT MARRIED.

Mr. H. R. Barnard, Montreal representative of Hunt & Co., Yokohama, was married November 12 to Miss Louise Travers, only daughter of Mr. W. R. Travers, manager of the Merchants Bank at Hamilton, Ont. Mr. and Mrs. Barnard, after a short wedding journey, have taken up residence in Montreal.

The Soldier of the Celestial Empire.

The Chinese soldier is noted for his well-kept white jacket. This white jacket forms part of the costume of the Imperial troops. A seeker after something to use for laundering the millions of uniforms of the Chinese army sought patiently, but in vain. He sought again and again.

Finally, CHINESE STARCH was discovered, though it is held a secret. If one may judge by the millions using it in China, the production of CHINESE STARCH must be enormous, and judging by the quantity turned out by the Ocean Mills, Montreal, compared with what is used in China, the quantity passes all possibilities of the imagination.

Although only introduced into Canada in 1899, CHINESE STARCH is to-day found in all up-to-date groceries and almost every family in the land. The reason is plain: This precious auxiliary of the smoothing iron, produces a brilliant gloss so easily that where once used all other starches must make room for it.

We ask all laundresses and housewives to try it, if they have not done so as yet. Ask your grocer for it. Ask your jobber for the genuine CHINESE STARCH, manufactured only by the BRITISH MERCHANTS AND CANADA.

IN conversation last week with the representative in Canada of a large English firm, THE CANADIAN GROCER was surprised to learn that the development of English trade with Canada is being hindered at present by a number of sensational reports of Canadian disloyalty now appearing in a few English papers. The firm which this gentleman represents have taken these sensational stories quite seriously, and, believing that Canada is about to separate from the Empire, they are afraid to invest any more money in Canadian trade. Hence they have written their representative instructing him to make no special efforts to secure new business until it is quite clear what is to be the outcome of the present situation. Quite naturally the agent is very much annoyed, for, being on the ground, he knows as well as any Canadian how groundless are the fears of his English principals. It is not unnatural that there has been a general expression of annoyance at the Alaska award, but talk of separation, except on the part of a few irresponsibles whom no person takes seriously, there is none. As a people we are proud of our position as a not unimportant part of the Emdire, for we know that only in unity is there to be found perfect security. Recent events in the Isthmus of Panama have given some indication of what might be the attitude of the United States Government toward Canada if she stood alone.

It is very much to be regretted that these foolish stories have been sent to England, and it is disappointing to find that they have gained some credence among English business men. If generally believed, they are bound to do harm to business, for English capital is naturally cautious and conservative. If British business men had an opportunity to visit Canada the mischief might very soon be remedied, for they would then see for themselves how groundless are their fears.

COMPETITION WISE AND FOOLISH.

IT is only partly true that "competition is the life of trade." There are two kinds of competition, one of which is beneficial while the other works little except ill. The competition which will most readily occur to the retailer is that which consists in a mad effort to gain trade by cutting prices. This is the kind of competition which very seldom does the retailer any good, for all his rivals immediately follow his example in self-defence, and even when trade is won there is no profit in it when prices are cut so low. Merchant No. 1 makes a cut in the price of a particular line of goods. His rival across the street is compelled to follow his example without delay, and the chances are that he will go him one better by announcing some special prices in another ine of goods. By this price-cutting of his neighbors, Merchant No. 3 is seriously affected, and so ad infinitum. Quite naturally every merchant blames his fellow for this condition of affairs, when, as a matter of fact, it is very seldom that one man is more to blame than another.

This kind of competition requires little originality and very little brains. It is a game which all can play equally well, and no one merchant has a very decided advantage. Any merchant can cut prices, no matter what the amount of gray matter secreted in his cranium. The one thing necessary is the possession of a capital which the owner is willing to dissipate in this foolish game.

It is time for the merchant with brains and originality to turn from a form of competition in which his superior ability gives him no advantage to a form of competition in which he should be able to outdistance his competitors, and at the same time gain a substantial reward for his efforts. When competition means only price-cutting it is apt to kill trade rather than increase it. But the competition which tends toward giving a better store service, which aims at supplying customers with a better class of goods, which would substitute new and up-to-date methods of store management for old, antiquated, rusty methods of fifty years ago, this is the competition which tends towards profit, and is, in fact, the very breath of life to a store.

The old, destructive kind of competition is surely out of date. The game is too simple; any fool can play it. What is wanted now is a competitive game which cannot be played without brains. And it is close at hand. There is a wide field for the merchant who thinks and who is blessed with a spark of originality. Let him expend on brightening up his store and dressing his windows the money he has been accustomed to waste in shaving prices. Let him use in searching out new high-class goods and serviceable novelties suitable for his store the energy which he is wont to waste in abusing his rivals for their cutting of prices. Let him make every possible effort to have a brighter, cleaner, more up-to-date store than any of his competitors. Let him strive to handle a better class of goods than any of his rivals and at the same time give a better store service. If he succeeds in making his store absolutely the first in these respects he will attract a profitable trade more surely than by any other method. But it requires brains to do it.

In endeavoring to educate the retail merchant to adopt this line of policy the various associations throughout the country are doing a good work. They deserve success. The average merchant, whether in town or country, works hard. He comes to his store early and leaves late. Long hours and hard work should bring him a profit. Of what avail is a large annual turnover unless a profit be derived from it? No profit can be obtained when goods are sold at cut prices.

The time and energy which a merchant can devote to his business have limits, and they should be expended to the best possible advantage. The object should be to capture the best class of trade. The trade that is won by superior goods and best store service is more to be desired than the class which is attracted by cut prices. It pays a merchant to attract that class of customers who are able and willing to pay for first-class goods and superior service and want to get what they pay for. These people are more apt to be repelled than attracted by cut prices. Make the experiment. Others have found it profitable.

OUR PORTS ICEBOUND!

THE smug and smiling ignorance of some British publications in treating of colonial matters of which they are sublimely ignorant is one of those things we poor colonists mention in our prayers along the other calamities of nature from which we petition to be delivered.

Cold Storage, a London publication, devoted to refrigeration and allied trades, is a flagrant offender in this regard. Its latest exhibition of what it don't know about the colonies and liliputian dependance on countries without the Empire is to be found in an editorial in the issue of the 15th inst., anent Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal proposals:

"Mr. Kimber," says Cold Storage, "looks forward to the time when eventually the fresh mutton and beef imported into this country will be all colonial; frankly, we do not. The colonies have not inexhaustible resources. Without Argentina—which is practically a commercial British colony, the United States, and the free trade exporting countries of Europe we should be badly off. As regards New Zealand, it is impossible to extract a quart from a pint pot; as for Australia, the drought must return sooner or later; and Canada is at the mercy of the United States for four months of the year, owing to the ice closing her ports. The Chicago exporters are likely to show small mercy to their Canadian rivals when retaliation is the order of the day."

Cold Storage has a perfect right to its opinion as to whether or not the colonies are destined to supply the Mother Country with fresh mutton and beef. But proceeding to elaborate the grounds of its opinion it immediately makes itself ridiculous.

In the first place New Zealand is grandly dismissed as a "pint pot." But as New Zealand has an area of 104,000 square miles, against 58,000 for England and Wales, 30,000 for Scotland and 32,000 for England, it would be simple courtesy for an editor whose travels have probably never taken him beyond the sound of Bow-bells to have sought a more dignified comparison.

As to Australia, the "drought must return." Mark the "must!" The editor of Cold Storage is in confidential relations with the weather bureau, and "he knows."

But Canada! Here Cold Storage is in his element, "at the mercy of the United States for four months of the year owing to the ice closing her ports." We can almost see the editor of Cold Storage rubbing his hands and beaming expansively on this triumph of refrigeration. But, alas for the editor of Cold Storage, there is a but! The only fault that can be found with his statement is that it is not true, a matter that is considered of some importance over here.

Perhaps Cold Storage has never heard of Halifax, N.S., St. John, N.B., and a place we refer to as Sydney, C.B., ports, which are as free from ice as the mouth of the Thames. A dozen more harbors in the Maritime Provinces could be added to this list, and, indeed, the keeping of the St. Lawrence open the year round is not beyond the range of possibility.

In addition, although it does not pertain to Atlantic shipping, but just for the information of Cold Storage, we might add that on our Pacific Coast we have ports favored by an almost tropical climate, where the grass is green all the year round, and ice and snow of extreme rarity.

It would perhaps be not too much to suggest that the editor of Cold Storage provide himself with a large scale map of Canada and a copy of the Dominion meteorological service report before again condemning us long-suffering colonials to hopeless refrigeration.

HARVEST HOME.

IT is always a comfort to know that you have had a prosperous year. It has been pretty generally believed by the agricultural interests of Ontario that the past Season was one to be thankful for. Now they are sure of it. The Ontario Bureau of Industries has just issued its final returns on the crops for 1903, and all doubts are set at rest.

In going over the estimates as found on another page of THE GROCER, one is struck with the versatility of the Ontario farmer. The barley crop, which was hit so hard by the United States tariff, is now turned to fattening stock instead of making malt, and the wet weather during harvest, which, as the report indicates, discolored the grain, in no way injures it for its present use. Wheat, which was once the Ontario farmers' great staple, shows a smaller acreage, but fortunately, the splendid yield of 25.9 bushels per acre. Peas are a much smaller crop than a few years ago, farmers abandoning them owing to weevel. Beans, however, have yielded 50% more than last year, and corn shows an increase of 9,000,000 bushels. Ontario's great cereal crop this year, however, is oats, an acreage of 2,645,965 acres more than that of all the other cereals combined, yielding over 110,000,000 bushels.

The inference is plain that farmers are turning to the coarser grains for stocking raising and dairying. If the Ontario farmer cannot compete with the wide acres of the western prairies he can carry his operations one step further and place the finished meat and dairy products on the market with even better results to his farm and bank account.

With these returns at hand the trade can look forward confidently for another good year's business in the province of Ontario.

IMPORTANT TRADE MARK DECISION.

JUDGMENT was handed out on Monday last by Mr. Justice Curran in the Superior Court of the Province of Quebec at Montreal in the case of Lefebvre vs. Landry. The litigation was over an application to make perpetual an injunction to restrain defendant from making use of a trade mark which resembled that used by plaintiff for his "Chinois Starch." The judgment is as follows :

Lefebvre vs. Landry.—Plaintiff presented a petition to the court asking for an interim injunction against the defendant, whom he charged with having fraudulently placed upon the market packages of starch for sale which bore a label imitating his registered trade mark for Chinese starch. The interim injunction was granted on the 6th of May, 1903, and the present action is for the purpose of having said injunction declared perpetual.

Plaintiff alleges that he is a starch manufacturer in the city of Montreal. That on the 26th of April, 1899, he caused to be registered in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa a trade mark as a label for packages of starch bearing a representation of a Chinaman ironing a shirt with the word "Empois" at the top of the label and "Chinois" at the bottom. That shortly afterwards he made some alterations, adhering to the main feature of the Chinaman ironing a shirt on a table, and that he has ever since used this label as his trade mark. He alleges that he has spent large sums of money in advertising his starch through the newspapers by means of pamphlets and a host of devices, and that he has succeeded in building up a very extensive trade. Defendant, he charges with having in the month of September, 1901, and ever since put in the market packages of starch known as "Empois diamant" for the fraudulent purpose of palming it off as the Chinese brand of plaintiff. That the packages are of the same size and make up, that the directions for use have been printed on the sides of the packages being copied almost verbatim from plaintiff's packages in English and in French, and that the whole label is a fraudulent imitation of plaintiff's trade mark. He claims $2,000 damages, and asks for a perpetual injunction. Defendant denies the main allegations of plaintiff's action. He points out that instead of the Chinaman ironing a shirt he is using a woman dressed differently from the Chinaman, with varying colors. He contends that the public cannot be deceived, at least, that no person of ordinary intelligence could be imposed upon. Further, he says that the department of trade marks in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has granted him a trade mark, and that this is more than a presumption that there is no infringement. That the word "Chinois" being the name of a nation is not susceptable of registration, and in any case that plaintiff has suffered no damage. In one of the authorities quoted by defendant, Morse vs. Martin, Dorion's reports, vol. 3, page 353, we find the following quotation from Sebastian on trade marks, page 76, which is applicable here : "All that courts of justice can do is to say that no trader can adopt a trade mark so resembling that of a rival as that ordinary purchasers, purchasing with ordinary caution, are likely to be misled." Plaintiff here has established his allegations in the following particulars. He has built up a very extensive trade in this Chinese starch. He succeeded in so doing not only by quality of the starch, but by most lavish advertising, which must have cost him a large sum of money. He obtained a trade mark, the central idea of which is the Chinaman ironing a shirt. Defendant has merely substituted a woman in the place of the man, and it is proved that she has been spoken of as "la Chinoise." A young man in the employ of the plaintiff who was contemplating going into the starch business with his brother or with defendant, took one of the labels of plaintiff to a designer and told him to imitate it, but not to go too far. The intent of this young man was evidently fraudulent. A great many witnesses have been examined who contradicted each other as to the general resemblance of the labels. The size of the packages of plaintiff and those of defendant is identical, defendant has stolen the directions on the sides of plaintiff's labels, they are the same almost verbatim. The court is convinced that defendant's intentions were fraudulent, and that he has succeeded in getting up a label which is misleading. It would take too long to go into all the particulars of an exhaustive investigation. The damages suffered by the plaintiff, it is most difficult to prove, they are not extensive, owing to the proceedings having been adopted at an early date, the court considers that $25 will cover what plaintiff actually lost, but the injunction will be declared perpetual, and besides the damages of $25 defendant must pay the costs of injunction proceedings.

WESTERN SELLING AGENT.

Mr. E. Nicholson, of Winnipeg, has been appointed selling agent for Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and British Columbia, for the product of the new beet root sugar refinery just started at Raymond, Alberta.

LIVERPOOL APPLE MARKETS.

Mr. Fred Barker, apple exporter, Church street, Toronto, has received the following cable re Wednesday's apple market at Liverpool :

"55,000 bbls. selling ; market weaker ; Baldwins, 11s. 6d. to 15s.; Greenings, 15 to 18s.; Spies, 10 to 15s.; Russets, 11s. to 17s. 6d."

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. D. Gilmor, of Chase & Sanborn, Montreal, is spending a few days in Toronto this week, visiting his old friends in the trade.

Mr. W. A. Simonds, St. John, N.B., was a visitor to Montreal this week. Mr. Simonds is sole agent in New Brunswick for Lipton, Limited, handling jams, jellies, marmalades and provisions. He reports that he is doing good business in these lines.

Mr. J. A. Vance, representing J. D. Bradshaw, Toronto, chewing gums and waxed papers, was a caller this week at the Montreal offices of "The Grocer." Mr. Vance has just completed his eastern Quebec trip and reports satisfactory business.

Mr. Shaw T. Nishimura, Canadian representative of The Central Japan Tea Trading Association, is back to business after a week's absence through illness, a severe cold having confined him to his rooms.

Mr. Fred Dane, who has been in the brokerage business in Toronto for about 15 years, and who has been connected with the tea business ever since he left school, has gone into The Western Brokerage Co., and will have charge of the tea and coffee department. Mr. Dane began his career in the tea business in Belfast, Ireland.

A caller at the Montreal offices of "The Canadian Grocer" this week was Mr. D. T. Williamson, of The Brantford Starch Co., Ltd., who is making the last call of the year on his many customers in the city. In the course of conversation Mr. Williamson stated that his company at Brantford had struck gas on their premises and in sufficient quantities to run their engines. This discovery is of the greatest value and will make a saving of thousands of dollars annually in the cost of fuel.

12 Million Packets Sold Annually

TRY THEM IN THE TEA POT THEY'LL SIMPLY WALK AWAY FROM JAPANS

No mystery surrounds the instant and universal acceptance by critical connoisseurs of "SALADA" Natural Green Tea of Ceylon, wherever it has been offered.

"This is its simple story in a nutshell:"

It is an actually pure Natural Leaf Green Tea of exquisite flavor, and with an undulterated strength that renders it vastly more economical in use than the Japan Teas that it is so rapidly supplanting - - - It is of a light color in infusion, with a peculiarly delicate flavor and "bouquet."

This is a clear and concise statement of Fact published in the interest of those who have not yet studied this "SALADA" Green Tea question.

Sold only in Sealed Lead Packets. Same form, style and prices as the Celebrated Black Teas of "SALADA" Brand.

MARKETS AND MARKET NOTES

ONTARIO MARKETS.

Toronto, November 26, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THERE is little change to report this week. Trade has been very good indeed for the last several weeks back. Collections have been fair, but not so good as some might have desired. Christmas goods are being received and delivered, and general activity is noticeable. In canned goods the interest is centred round corn which can not now be bought under a dollar. Coffees are meeting a fair demand, but no change in price is quotable. Spices are in good demand. Pretty much all lines are being called for and the cheaper lines of cloves have been advanced. Syrups and molasses maintain their values and are meeting a very fair enquiry. Japan rice is stiffer and tapioca is holding fairly firm. Teas are in fairly good demand at firm prices. Teas for price are hard to get. China greens are considerably sought for and difficult to get. Dried fruits are in very active demand, especially for raisins and currants. Valencias are slightly higher on the primal market. Nuts are arriving in quantities. Sugar did not develop the weakness which was threatened last week but on the contrary revived at going to press, however, there were rumors of a cut in refined at New York which was causing some uneasiness.

CANNED GOODS.

In canned goods no particular change is noticeable. Corn continues to be the scarcest article in the vegetable line and none is now obtainable under a dollar. Other vegetables are unchanged. The demand for canned meats and fish is nominal. We quote :

SUGAR.

Only small business in raws has transpired in week under review; but this was at full former figures, so that the anticipated decline of ⅛c. has not yet materialized. On Friday, November 20, United States refiners entered the market and purchased from stores 36,000 bags Demarara centrifugals, basis 96 per cent., at 3 3/4c. duty paid. Refiners had been expecting the rapid passage of the Cuban Reciprocity Treaty, with the consequent placing on the market of large holdings of sugars in the island and in store at United States ports, but later developments have shown that there is likely to be considerable delay in passing the treaty through the Senate, so present indications are that refiners will have to come into the market and buy supplies for their actual necessities. The treaty passed the Lower House at Washington on Thursday last, November 19, by an overwhelming majority, the vote being 335 for and 21 against, but there have been signs of opposition in the Senate which promise to block the final ratification, or at least delay it considerably. In fact, some are of opinion that the obstruction will be so strong that it may be impossible to effect ratification during the extra session of Congress which has been called for this specific purpose. To-day's quotations for raws are nominal on basis of 2 1-16c. C.&F. for 96 test, which is equal to $3.75 duty paid.

Europe is fluctuating between 8s. 6d. and 8s. 5¼d. for basis 88 per cent. test, f.o.b. Hamburg, November shipment and closed at latter figure, which is fully 1-32 cent above the parity of centrifugals in New York. There is no change in the total estimates of the growing beet crops in Europe, though the German estimate has been increased 50,000 tons and other countries reduced 50,000 tons.

Receipts at United States four ports for week ending November 18, were 16,571 tons; meltings 26,000 tons; which is 4,000 tons less than previous week; leaving total stock of 102,635 tons, a reduction of nearly 10,000 tons for the week and over 80,000 tons less than same week last year. Combined stocks of Europe and America at latest uneven dates were 2,(70,635 tons, being an increase of 49,226 tons of same period last year.

There is no change to note in Canadian refined so far, though the market is quiet and only a hand to mouth business is doing. We hear, however, that all New York refined was reduced 10c. per 100 lb. on November 24, which has created a certain feeling of uneasiness here and buyers are waiting for further developments. Since above was written and just as going to press the Canadian list was reduced 5c. all round, as below :

SPICES.

Advices from Europe re cloves are strong. All offerings are withdrawn and prices are tending upwards. Stocks in Holland, 16,000 bales, in London 17,000 bales. Pepper is quiet but firm as may be said of the rest of the list. Wholesalers are meeting a seasonable demand for the Christmas trade, but brokers report trade mostly consummated. We quote :

TEAS.

A very strong demand is reported on spot for India and Ceylon teas below 14 cents, but there is absolutely nothing in first hands to be bought and buyers are unwilling to pay prices asked in London and the East, this grade having advanced abroad 2c. from the lowest point. The demand for China greens which has been very light during the season is improving and inquiries are more numerous. Stocks are not large and little if any more is likely to come forward as the market in Shanghai is practically closed, except for Pingsueys and for some time past not only the price of tea in Shanghai but the rate of exchange has been very unfavorable for export. At last quotations exchange was 2s. 8d. against 2s. 4½d. earlier in the season, with teas on the whole bringing higher prices in Chinese currency. We quote :

FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

In foreign dried fruits the trade is very busy receiving the remainder of the Bellona goods, which, owing to congested railroad facilities, have been delayed. Advices from Denia report Valencias slightly higher and firmer. The first arrival of Grenoble walnuts, 100 bales for Montreal, and 100 for Toronto, were at hand ten days ago. These have been the only arrivals till Tuesday when a further consignment came to hand from the same shipper, Mr. Victor Carret, Tullins, France. The goods were sold through Watt & Scott. Mr. Carret writes that the weather has been very unfavorable for drying and that it was with the utmost difficulty and after having to pick over the nuts several times in order to get goods of merchantable quality, that he was able to ship so early. Marbot walnuts are also early on the market this year. E. M. Dadelsyen & Co. having executed all orders for Canada on October 27 to catch transhipment at Liverpool on a steamer leaving November 5. Marbots have not suffered from rain and cold to nearly the same degree as Grenobles. Filberts are also early on the market. Ferd Baller & Co. having shipped all Canadian orders sold for October ship-

GREEN FRUITS.

The cold weather has helped the green fruit market considerably and a more satisfactory feeling prevails. New stuff is coming in more freely and in fine condition. Oranges are easier as are also grape fruit. Messina lemons now hold the market in that line. Cape Cod cranberries are off and Jersies take their place. California pears are on sale at $4 per box, and Florida pines bring $4 to $4.50 per crate. Bananas are much easier, Jamaica firsts being on the board. We quote:

QUEBEC MARKETS.

Montreal, November 26, 1903.

GROCERIES.

THE jobbing trade during the week has been on the quiet side though comparing favorably with the volume of last year at same time. As usual there is always a falling off as the close of navigation approaches, as most of the orders are sent out and merchants do not wish to run too close to the freezing up of the river. Tea business has shown somewhat of an improvement over last week, though it is anything but active, and it is generally felt that trade will be quiet for the rest of the year. Japans are scarce and prices holding up. Some 200 packages were sold by one merchant this week. In Ceylon greens a few good orders were booked. Sugars are only going from hand to mouth and trade is very quiet, though market continues steady. Syrups in fair demand. Barbados molasses are reported a shade easier though the reduction has not provoked any large sales. In canned goods corn continues inquired for and there seems to be a still hunt on for this line. $1 to $1.10 is asked generally. Other lines in fair demand. Coffee dull and uninteresting. Spices continue firm in all grades, except ginger. The pepper producing countries all report short crops and orders are being cancelled at request of African sellers who are paying good premiums for this privilege. Cloves unchanged. It is more profitable for Canadians to buy in New York paying full duties than in London with two-thirds duty. Rice and tapioca are dull and little doing. In dried fruits the recent advances in Tarragona almonds and shelled walnuts has stimulated trade in these lines. An advance of 2s. is reported in Tarragona almonds, and sympathetically shelled walnuts show an advance of from 5 to 10 frs. over opening prices. In green fruits trade has shown up better this week than last. Lemons are still scarce. New dates have arrived and are selling generally at 4½c. Fish business on the whole has been better. British Columbia salmon and halibut are coming in more freely. Vegetables show a fair trade in all lines, though most business is done in potatoes.

The close of navigation has made it apparent that there is a scarcity of eggs this Fall and high prices are now being paid without a murmur. The bean market is now declining gradually, but what the final outcome will be it is very difficult to predict. In the honey situation there is nothing new. It would seem that evaporated apples have found their level. The dissolution of the Evaporators' Association has had no effect on prices. In flour and feed there is very little doing at present and prices are firm and unchanged.

SUGAR.

Trade in sugars has been quiet during the week and sales have only been on a small scale. The market is steady and no indications of any radical change either way are in sight, though as a prominent broker expressed it, "You can never tell how the sugar market is going to jump. Indications may point to strong advance, when down go prices 10c. per cwt. and vice versa." We quote:

SYRUPS AND MOLASSES.

In syrups business is only fair, some houses reporting quite a decided increase in their sales of syrups during the past few months as compared with similar periods during past years. Is the trade changing to package syrups? In molasses, Barbados is reported as a shade easier, though the trade generally are adhering to 12 and 15½c. per gal., according to quality and package. TEAS.

The market, although not active, is showing improvement over last week. A few sales of one hundred to two hundred packages of Ceylon greens have been booked during the week. In Japans the feeling is very quiet. One sale is reported of two hundred packages. Enquiries continue for China Congous and China greens are in fairly good demand, but not procurable at jobbers' offers. We quote:

SPICES.

The spice market continues stiff in all lines except ginger. New York advices report that the crop in the pepper-producing countries is short. In cayennes further large cancellations of contracts for Zanzibar pepper to arrive in New York have been effected with the African sellers at very liberal premiums, the sellers being quite unable to secure any more pepper at Zanzibar. The spices are pretty well held by one New York house. Prices in low grades have been advanced owing to the increasing demand. Cloves remain unchanged with a firm market. A peculiar feature in spices is that they are so much lower in New York than London as to make it more profitable for Canadian buyers to buy in New York, paying a full duty, than to buy from England with two-thirds duty. CANNED GOODS

The only feature of the canned goods situation this week is the continued inquiry for corn. Prices asked range from $1 to $1.10 in large quantities. A few brokers are on the lookout for western account but the trade generally are none too keen to let go even at $1. Some old stock, it is reported, changed hands at 90c., though the quantity sold was only a few hundred cases. Gooseberries are reported off the market. FOREIGN DRIED FRUITS.

A considerable amount of business has been done in all kinds of dried fruits and the recent advance in Tarragona almonds and shelled walnuts has stimulated trade in these lines. Denia and Malaga fruits of all kinds are receiving good attention though nothing of interest affecting prices is reported from ordinary shipping points. An advance of 2s. is reported on Tarragona almonds, and shelled walnuts in sympathy with Mayettes show an advance of from 5 to 10 frs. over opening prices. As regards currants, prices remain steady with some local enquiries for local account. We quote:

GREEN FRUITS.

Trade during the week has been very much better. Oranges have been in fair demand. Bananas are not enquired for very much. Lemons continue scarce and are selling at high prices. Cranberries are coming in more freely. New dates have arrived and are selling freely at 4½c. Second shipments are not expected until the second week in December. Enquiries for California navel oranges are coming in but it is not expected that this fruit will arrive before December 10. We quote :

FISH.

Prices generally remain unchanged. The trade has been very good, business generally being on the increase, the harder weather contributing to that end. British Columbia salmon and halibut are starting to come in, which will make a material change in prices in a short time. In dried and prepared fish a fair amount of business is turning over. Same may be said of salt and smoked fish. Oysters remain unchanged the market being well supplied. We quote :

VEGETABLES.

A fair trade has been done in all lines of vegetables, potatoes principally receiving attention. Easier prices ruled during the past week, owing to the unusually mild weather that has prevailed throughout this district. Weather hardening will probably stiffen up prices. Onions of the red variety are scarce and high prices are being realized. We quote :

COUNTRY PRODUCE.

EGGS.

Dealers throughout the country have been waiting anxiously for the close of navigation for it was felt that it would then be possible to decide with some degree of certainty what the future of the market would be. With its close this week it is apparent that there is an ever increasing demand for stock at high prices and the trade are forced to come to the conclusion that there is a serious shortage this Fall. Prices are now very firm, late Fall stock closely selected selling at 25 to 26c., selects 23c., straight stock 22c., market 19 to 20c., Montreal pickled 19c.

BEANS.

It is still dangerous to hazard a guess as to the ultimate course which the bean market will take. The week has seen a decided decline in values and considerably reduced quotations are given below. It is claimed by the producers that the present decline is unwarranted, that stocks are short and that a return to high prices is bound to come. They say that the crop is now nearly all shipped out and some sections report that there are not more than 3 or 4 carloads yet to ship. Reports from the bean district have been so conflicting all Fall that it is hard to say how much reliance should be placed on the stories now current. The fact remains that at present there is a downward tendency and prices have been reduced during the week. We quote:

No. 1 hand-picked, carlots	....	1 65
Choice prime, per bushel	....	1 65
" carlots	....	1 50
Ordinary (off grade), per bush	....	1 40

HONEY.

There is nothing new in the situation except that the market is reported a little firmer and an advance of ½c. will be noted in our quotations below. Buckwheat honey continues very scarce; in fact it is said that there is none at all on the local market. Comb honey is in very good demand and supplies are light. In other lines there is a good supply. We quote the following prices :

Strained, white	....	0 08
Clover and basswood	....	0 08½
Buckwheat	0 07½	0 08
Comb honey	....	0 13

MAPLE PRODUCTS.

The market continues quiet and prices are steady. There is nothing of special interest to note. We quote :

EVAPORATED APPLES.

There is nothing new to report. Prices are steady at figures given for some weeks back and they seem to have found their level. As noted in last issue the agreement of the Association of Evaporators expired on November 15, but this has not affected the market. We quote the following wholesale prices :

New, in carlots	0 05½	0 06
New, in jobbing lots	0 06	0 06½

NEW BRUNSWICK MARKETS.

Office of "The Canadian Grocer,"

St. John, N.B., Nov. 23, 1903.

DEALERS are busy and seem satisfied with the amount of their Fall business. In the wholesale grocery business the last month shows the largest turnover during the year, as well as the largest regular cash payments. Money is stiff and outside dealers are occasionally unable to meet their paper promptly. The action of some banks in refusing to make advances to dealers where credit and security are good is meeting with adverse criticism.

OILS.

In burning oil the high prices still hold. Markets are firm. While sales are large dealers notice the effect of twenty-four minutes more light per day. Lubricating oils are firm. Linseeds are low. Turpentine is held at full figures. Cod oil in local market is scarce. We quote:

GREEN FRUIT.

Business is more active. Apples are being freely sold. For fine fruit some Canadian apples have been imported. The finest apple here at this season in the Nova Scotia Bishop Pippen. In many lines the best Nova Scotia stock does not come here as better returns are got from export. Oranges and lemons are unchanged. Malaga grapes are lower with stock coming from New York and Boston at low figures. Cranberries are high with some good Nova Scotia berries offered. We quote:

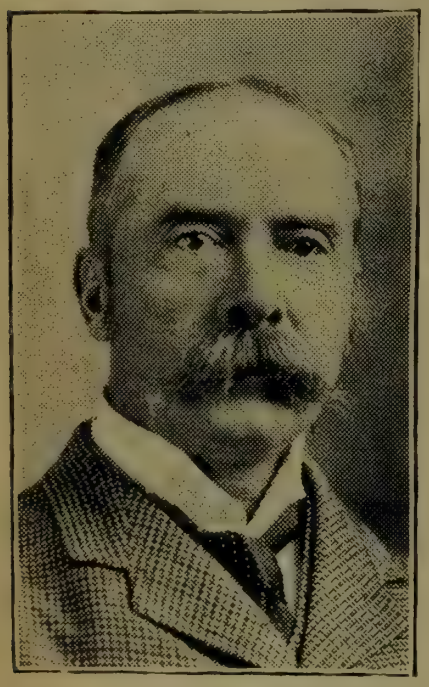
HENRI JONAS & CO.

MONTREAL, P.Q.

PASSING OF MONTREAL BUSINESS MAN.

A VALUED member of the business community ot Montreal has passed away in the person of Mr. W. Wallace Watson, secretary of The Canada Sugar Refining Co. Mr. Watson, who had not been in good health for some time and had but recently returned from a trip abroad in search of health, underwent a surgical operation last Saturday, but succumbed to the effects of same on Saturday night, November 21st, at his home, 85 Redpath Street, Montreal.

Mr. Watson, who was born in Ayr, Scotland, was in his 58th year, came to Canada in 1870, entering the establishment of Gillespie, Moffatt & Co., becoming connected later with the firm of John Redpath & Son. On the formation of The Canada Sugar Refining Co., Ltd., in 1878, Mr. Watson became its first secretary, and held that position up to the time of his death.



The late Mr. W. Wallace Watson.

Mr. Watson was a patron of out-door sports, and was an enthusiastic and skilled golfer. He held the presidency of the Montreal Golf Club, being also for a time captain of the team. Like all sons of Scotia he was a lover of curling, and was considered one of the Montreal Curling Club's best players. As a military man Mr. Watson had been connected with the Prince of Wales Rifles, holding a captain's commission.

Mr. Watson was a member of the Council of the Board of Trade, St. James' Club, Mount Royal Club, and Forest and Stream Club. He was also a trustee of St. Paul's Church.

A widow, two sons and two daughters survive.

The funeral service, which was held at St. Paul's Church, Dorchester Street, on Tuesday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, was very largely attended by Montreal's leading business men by whom the deceased was held in the highest esteem for his sterling qualities. The members of the Council of the Board of Trade attended the funeral in a body. At the church a solemn service was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Barclay, at which a large number of the friends of the deceased were present, including deputations from the Canada Sugar Refining Company, the Board of Trade, the Corn Exchange, the Royal Montreal Golf Club, and other commercial and social organizations. The attendance of the general public was also very large. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

HINTS TO BUYERS.

Contributors are requested to send news only, not puffs of goods they handle, or the arrival of standard goods that everyone has in stock, or that they are offering goods at close figures, or that they have had an unusually large sale this season.

Balfour & Co. report arrival of new grenoble walnuts and new dates.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, report the arrival of a large shipment of selected Valencia raisins and other fruits per steamer Bellona, which they are distributing to their trade as rapidly as possible.

Balfour & Co. report large sale for their "Tartan" molasses in barrels and half barrels.

The "Ozo" Co., Ltd., have just started placing their jams and jellies on the market and the number of orders received speaks highly for the quality of the goods. Made under the strictest rules of hygiene and from selected material, buyers can rely upon quality.

The St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co. have printed cards pointing out that their sugars are made from pure cane raws only.

S. H. Ewing & Son, Montreal, report arrival of consignment of very fine German chickory. Owing to the imposition of the German surtax this line will be advanced without doubt after January 1, and grinders and roasters should avail themselves of the attractive prices offered at present by S. H. Ewing & Son.

The R. & J. H. Simpson Co., Guelph, are offering a snap in tap figs and New Orleans molasses.

McWilliams & Everest are offering this week Chase & Co.'s Florida oranges, Star brand, Mexicans and three cars Messina lemons. Almeria grapes now arriving represent the last shipment of the season.

Lucas, Steele & Bristol offer choice Roquefort cheese, Dandecotte and Gaudin olive oil, also a large assortment of olives.

Christmas stockings Parragon vinegar and Old Virginia salad dressing are in stock with Lucas, Steele & Bristol.

The Eby, Blain Co., Limited, call special attention to their offerings in Ceylon green teas, fuller particulars of which are to be seen in their advertisement in another column.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. are selling candied peels at very low prices.

H. P. Eckardt & Co. have some extra fine quality Brazil nuts.

The attention of the trade is called to the advertisement in this week's issue of Henri Jonas & Co., Montreal, whose special lines of fine French crystallized fruits, Bar-le-Duc jellies and Spanish olives, should be particularly interesting to the grocery trade at this season of the year.

A large shipment of Malaga table raisins arrived this week for H. P. Eckardt & Co.

The "National" coffee mill, conceded by all to be the finest mill manufactured, is being offered to the Canadian trade by The Eby, Blain Co., Limited.

GROCERY KEPT BY BOYS.

A striking example of what energetic and hustling boys can do in trade is illustrated by Charles and Russell Anspach, of Fremont, Ohio, who own a flourishing grocery business on Whittelsy street.

The boys, 12 and 9 years of age, started with a capital of 27c., their first venture being the selling of candy and oranges from a small stand placed in the yard. They were patronized by neighbors and friends, and within a month of the opening, March 19, of this year, were able to build a small shed, where they kept a stock of groceries.

They began a system of bookkeeping, bought and delivered their own groceries, and by clever advertising attracted the attention of the public. Their fresh goods, courteous manners and energetic methods combined to bring customers, and, prospering, they were able to erect a little store.

The boys own a little red delivery waggon, and can be seen early and late catering to their customers. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Anspach, and their ambition is to be the proprietors of the largest grocery store in Sandusky County.—New York Herald.

NOVA SCOTIA MARKETS.

Halifax, Nov. 23, 1903.

THE last week in November and the first in December brings a good deal of trade to Halifax houses from shore ports which are closed to navigation during the Winter months and are now laying in supplies. Business in all parts of the province has been good in the last week. There has been a good demand for dried fruits and other seasonable groceries in anticipation of the holiday trade. Provisions have been in good request for the lumber camps, and some firms report a large trade in this line. American pork is easier and beef firmer. The former has declined 50c., and the latter advanced a like amount. There has been no change in the price of domestic pork, which is now offered at the same quotation as the imported. Beans are a little lower than last week owing to the establishment of a fixed selling price by The Canada Bean Co., Limited, recently formed in Western Ontario. This is an article in steady request with our lumbermen.

The position of canned tomatoes is a strong feature of interest. Owing to the local scarcity of stock the price here has advanced to $1.25. Last year Halifax houses sold large quantities of United States tomatoes, but as the pack of that country is one million cases less than last season, there will probably be less coming in this direction. The lack of a uniform standard either in the weight of can or the quality of contents is a serious obstacle to the popularity of American tomatoes on this market. The high price of last year did not lessen the demand, and the tomato is a vegetable which the trade must have from some source.

Flour dealers here were taken by surprise recently, being notified by the I.C.R. authorities that storage privileges would hereafter be curtailed, as all available space was needed for the handling of the Winter port business. The change proposed was particularly hard upon local exporters, who, had it been carried out, would have been compelled to remove all flour via I.C.R. to private warehouses, there to await the sailing of vessels, and then ship from private wharves. The flour trade at Halifax is considerable, amounting to 400,000 barrels annually. Some years ago the most of this flour came here via Boston, and it was only through the privileges granted by the I.C.R., and which were now to be cancelled, that the all-rail route secured the business. The matter was promptly brought to the attention of Hon. W. S. Fielding, Acting Minister of Railways, then in the city, and a temporary arrangement has been made for the present Winter which is satisfactory to local merchants. For months the Halifax Board of Trade has been pointing out to the Government that the terminal facilities of the I.C.R. were inadequate. But with the loading of the first Allan liner the authorities suddenly awoke to the fact. Several thousand bushels of grain were placed in the elevator last week, and are now going aboard the steamer Pretorian, which arrived on Saturday. This is practically the first grain shipped here since the elevator was built, many years ago. Mr. Hugh A. Allan was here on Saturday, and said they expected to build up a large business at this port, having under construction at the present time two steamers of 12,000 tons, with turbine engines, which would make the ocean voyage from Halifax next season in five and a half days, and landing passengers and mails within a shorter time than the 20-knot steamers via New York.

Choice dairy butter has been in very limited supply, but the arrival yesterday of some Ontario goods will remove the stringency. Cheese factories continued operations late, placing a much larger quantity of low-grade goods upon the market than dealers anticipated. P.E.I. factories are now sold up, but some cheese is still held by New Brunswick makers. Eggs have advanced 1c., and are selling now at 22c. They continue to come upon the market in quite limited quantities.

Nuts of all kinds are selling at about the same prices as last year, and a very good demand is experienced. G. J. Hamilton & Sons recently established a confectionery factory at Halifax and have 60 hands employed here. The Halifax factory is run as a branch of the original works at Pictou. Moirs, Limited, have now moved into their new factory, which replaces the one destroyed by fire last Spring.

MANITOBA MARKETS.

Winnipeg, Nov. 23, 1903.

THE fine warm weather of the first two weeks of November has been succeeded by a fall of snow, and bright, crispy cold days, which have given an impetus to trade in all lines.

The grocery jobbing houses report business excellent and collections very fair. The decision of the large elevator companies some ten days ago to cease buying at their elevators along the C.P.R., put a check on remittance for some days, as very little wheat was moving, but nearly all these elevators have re-opened for a time at least, and collections have improved in consequence.

A round of the jobbing houses showed an unchanged price list for the week. Supplies are coming forward well, and everything points to an excellent Christmas trade.

Merchants make complaint of the difficulty of getting salt water fish, such as herrings, mackerel, etc. The catch in all lines would appear to have been very small, judging from the unsatisfactory way orders are being filled. Where 50 half-barrels are ordered, not more than 20 come forward at one time, and in some lines supplies seem almost impossible to obtain.

DAIRY PRODUCE.

A new departure was made in Winnipeg this week in the offering at auction of a car of Eastern Townships butter. Mr. Hoy was the man who made the venture, and the prices realized were 24 to 24½c. for lots of not less than five boxes of 56 pounds each. The butter was admitted to be of fine quality, but the bidding was not active, as the upset price of 24c. per pound was considered too high. Only a small portion of the car was disposed of at the auction.

Locally the city creameries are receiving but scant supplies of cream, and fresh creamery butter sells at 22 to 22½c., factories, for the individual 56-lb. box; bricks are worth 23c., and lots of five to ten boxes sell for a shade less. Receipts of dairy butter are light, and in most cases the quality is unsatisfactory.

Butter and milk promise to be dear commodities in Winnipeg this Winter. Indeed, milk is dearer now than it has been for 20 years. The regulation price for years has been 16 quarts in Summer and 14 in Winter for $1. This season the allowance is down to 10 quarts for $1. The reasons for this are several. Perhaps the one that bulks most largely is the high price of hay and help. Good cows were scarce and dear for a time, and some five or six of the dairymen sold out and closed up their business at a date when it would be ill advised for new concerns to start, so the present outlook for the milk supply is not encouraging. This, in turn, affects butter, as all the milk within a reasonable radius is being shipped into the city, as an easier and more profitable method of disposing of it. We may be glad to see more eastern butter here before the Winter is out.

EGGS.

Scarce and dear is the tale of fresh eggs. The retail price for guaranteed new laid eggs being already 15c. a dozen and the supply very limited. Case eggs arrive in very limited quantities, and dealers offer 22c., Winnipeg, for round lots of fresh gathered eggs.

POULTRY.

With the advent of cold weather supplies of dressed poultry are beginning to arrive. Indications are that the supplies of Manitoba poultry will be considerably in excess of previous year. The fowls are no better dressed than formerly, but ducks and geese show very considerable improvement, both in feeding and dressing. Prices so far quoted for round lots are: Fowl, 8c.; chickens, ducks and geese, 10c., and turkeys, 12c.

DRESSED MEATS.

Beef supplies are very liberal, and prices continue easy at 5¾c. for best abattoir dressed beef. Veal is in fair supply at 7 to 8c. Mutton is plentiful at 8c. In hogs, packers are now open to receive supplies of country dressed hogs, and prices are fixed at 5¾ to 6c.

CURED MEATS.

There has been no change in this market for about two weeks. Prices are steady, and there is a fair volume of trade.

OTTAWA MERCHANTS' FRIENDS.

ARRIVING too late to appear in the account of the Ottawa grocers' trip to New York, were the pictures of a trio of gentlemen who helped to make things run along smoothly. "The Grocer" presents them this week to its readers.

Mr. Hugh E. Convery, although now of Montreal, has still a warm place in his heart for Ottawa, where he for some time represented Fleischmann & Co. before being promoted to the Montreal office of that firm. Mr. Convery was active in helping to smooth the way for the tourists, who appreciated his efforts, as well as those of his firm in New York, to whom the Ottawa party were indebted for many kindnesses.

Mr. Hugh E. Convery, Montreal, who accompanied the Ottawans on their New York Trip.

Mr. Frank W. Meyer, New York City, Manager of Clique Tourists, whose party entertained the Canadians.

Mr. J. K. Paisley, who accompanied the Ottawa Grocers to New York

Mr. Frank W. Meyer, whose countenance appears in the accompanying cut, is a man dear to the heart of a number of Ottawa merchants, he being the leading spirit among the New York and Brooklyn grocers who so elaborately entertained Ottawa's delegation on October 28 and 29. Mr. Meyer looks after the interests of Fleischmann & Co. in New York City. He is well known in railroad circles as well as among the merchants, as he has dealt with most American roads in connection with the annual trips of the Clique Tourists. At the recent banquet in Brooklyn, the representative of one of the large railway concerns stated that Mr. Meyer was the best and ablest man in the country to handle a tourist party.

Mr. J. K. Paisley, of Ottawa, who accompanied the Ottawa merchants to New York, is the proprietor of the Grand Union Hotel at the Capital City, and has an extensive acquaintance among the business men of Ottawa and the Canadian commercial travellers, who recognize in him a man whom it is a pleasure to meet.

GONE HUNTING.

There seems to have been a regular stampede of Montreal's business men this week for the woods. Mr. E. D. Marceau, the St. Paul street tea merchant and dealer in grocers' specialties has donned his hunting suit, shouldered his rifle, and is now scouring the woods north of Labelle for game.

CHICAGO VISITOR TO MONTREAL.

Mr. A. Bodenweiser, better known as "Bode," the proprietor and manufacturer of Bode's chewing gums, was in Montreal this week. A representative of "The Grocer" ran across him in Snowden, Forbes & Co.'s offices, on St. Paul street, which firm has been appointed sole agents in Canada for Bode's gums. Mr. Bode exhibited a most unique and compact gum-vending (slot) machine, of great simplicity, compactness and beauty, which has established itself in favor on the other side and doubtless will in Canada as Snowden, Forbes & Co. intend to place it conspicuously before the trade. Bode's crushed fruit pepsin gums are on the market.

An American syndicate is being organized, it is said, with a capital of £3,000,000, to transport British food fish to the American market.

Fruit Growers Meet.

THE Ontario Fruit Growers' Association met at Leamington, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week, in their 28th annual session. Mr. Geo. C. Creelman, secretary, in his annual report, advocated co-operative buying and selling on the part of members of the association.

Tuesday evening a public meeting was held in the Town Hall, where Mayor Lewis Wigle presided and extended a welcome to the association on behalf of the town. John Auld, M.P.P., welcomed the fruit men on behalf of the county, and C. W. Cady, president of the local association, and J. L. Hilborn, president of the Leamington Horticultural Association, added their words of welcome to those of the previous speeches.

W. H. Bunting, president of the association, replied, dwelling on the progress of the year, and indicated lines of further work.

M. K. Cowan, M.P., discussed the trouble Essex fruit growers had had with the express companies the past season.

Dr. Muldrew, of the O.A.C., Guelph, concluded the speaking for the evening with an address on Nature Study.

W. H. Owen, of Ohio, and Prof. L. R. Taft, of the Agricultural College, Michigan, are among the speakers scheduled for later sessions of the convention.

Ontario's Fruit Crop.

THE Ontario Bureau of Industries in its final estimate of the crops of that province for 1903 thus summarizes the past season:

Fruit growers will likely remember 1903 as the plum year. This fruit was so abundant that many growers found it difficult to handle the crop in time for market. The quality of the plums was also good. There was a fair yield of apples, but in various parts of the province complaints were made of the scarcity of barrels, and, on this account, buyers were more particular than ever in the selection of this fruit, and thousands of bushels of apples that in former years would have passed for shipment to Great Britain, were this season rejected by them. The tent caterpillar and codling moth were not so bad as in recent years. Pears yielded well in most places, but some blight is reported. Peaches were plentiful, but serious complaints are made regarding the ravages of the San Jose scale among these and other fruit trees. Cherries bore bountifully, but some references are still made by correspondents to the danger threatening cherry and plum trees by black-knot. Grapes were fair in yield, but suffered somewhat from hail storms, and wind storms also helped to thin out apples and other orchard fruits. Small fruits of nearly every variety were abundant. Scarcity of labor was another great drawback to the proper handling of the fruit.

The apple crop of the province is estimated at 43,659,413 bushels, or 6.15 bushels per tree of bearing age.

What Fruit Contains.

Our ordinary fruit contains the following substances in greater or less proportions:

A large percentage of water.

Sugar, in the form of grape and fruit sugar.

Free organic acids, varying according to the kind of fruit. For example, the predominating acid is malic in the apple, tartaric in the grape, citric in the lemon.

Protein or albuminoids, substances containing nitrogen, which resembles the white of eggs, and are its equivalent in food value.

Pectose, the substance which gives firmness to fruit, and which, upon boiling, yields various fruit jellies.

Cellulose or vegetable fibre, the material that forms the cell walls, and which is found in all parts of plants.

A very small percentage of ash of mineral salts.

Britain's Fruit Supply.

If the apple crop in England this year has been a failure, the supply of apples from abroad has been unprecedented, says The Scottish Trader. Last week no fewer than 250,000 bushels arrived in our ports. Of this total, about 150,000 came from Canada, which, like the United States, has an extraordinarily fine crop. From California, from Cape Cod, from South Africa, from Italy, Jamaica, Canary, Florida, and Australia apples are pouring in, and the result is that, in spite of the scarcity in Kent and Hereford, fruit looks as though it would be cheap during the whole of the Winter.

Shipped Peaches to England.

MR. GEORGE W. CADY, president of the South Essex Horticultural Society, has received very satisfactory returns from a trial shipment of peaches to England. In a letter to The Leamington Post, he says that the peaches were shipped on August 26, by express to Montreal and thence to Bristol. The consignment numbered 640 peaches, and the net return was $8. Owing to mistakes in shipping and to other unfavorable conditions, fully one-third of the shipment was spoiled by the time it was marketed in the old country, and in reality the return was about two cents for every peach. Mr. Cady believes that he has fully demonstrated the fact that peaches can be shipped to England successfully. He adds: "I wonder what our growers will do about it. Will they plant only large varieties, prune them well, thin them, manure the trees, in short, will any of our fruit growers develop sand enough to cater to this market? It is wide open. They can't fill it. Why not take advantage of this opportunity? It will prolong the shipping season six to ten days, as the peaches shipped to England would have to be picked just as soon as they were full grown, and picked dry."

Strawberries in November.

Mr. W. S. Gamsby, of Orono, 45 miles east of Toronto, has the distinction of plucking strawberries from his garden in the open air in November. The berries were of the Haverland and Clyde varieties, and the vines, which bore an extra heavy crop in the Spring (over 8,000 quarts to one and a quarter acres of ground), began to give another fair crop the latter part of September and all of October. Our "Lady of the Snows" has evidently forgotten herself.

Fruit for Pulp.

Nethard & Lowe, fruit importers, London, Eng., have suggested that Canada pay more attention to the cultivation of black currants and raspberries for pulp manufacturing. This year black currant pulp sold for £40 per ton, and raspberry pulp sold almost as well. They also suggest that British Government inspectors be instructors to notify Canadian inspectors of such falsely packed fruit as they may discover, with a view to locating dishonest packers, and that steamers carrying Canadian fruit be provided with thermographs for each hold, the same to be opened out in the presence of inspectors on the English side.

Apple Grades.

Mr. A. W. Grindley, agent of the Agricultural Department in Liverpool, has written the department saying that the Canadian shippers are sending too many varieties of apples. He recommends that they should ship large quantities of a standard apple of high grade. These, he says, would meet with ready sale, and would be sold to the higher class of consumers in Britain, whereas the poorer varieties are snapped up by small speculators.

NOTES.

It is rumored that a fruit cannery is to be erected at New Westminster, B.C.

Window and Interior Displays

Timely Hints and Suggestions.

THERE are many merchants who prefer such an arrangement of the interior of their store as will display and keep convenient their stock. By this plan they save much storage room, impress customers with the size of stock carried, and have at hand much of their goods, avoiding the possibility of having to keep customers waiting while new boxes are opened. These merchants find counters on one side sufficient, as the wrapping of groceries does not occupy much space, and in addition to the surface covered by the scales, a space of a couple of feet square for each clerk is all that is absolutely required.

Acting on this idea some very neat stacking of canned goods and bottles is being done on the opposite side of the store. The variety of colors and shapes of articles, and the great number of stacks permissible present a very effective appearance when the opportunities are properly taken advantage of. In many stores, too, the placing of counters at both sides allows too confined a space for customers, and in such cases stacking is the best plan to adopt.

The illustration shows the interior of the store of Mr. J. F. Smith, Napanee, and is a very good example of the possibilities of this method of interior arrangement.

Interior of Grocery Store of Mr. J. F. Smith, Napanee, Ont.

The Christmas Trade.

FROM now on the grocer must work industriously to capture the Christmas trade. The staple lines will be in great demand, of course, but there will also be a ready sale for the luxuries which are seen on every table around the holiday season, and he must not be too timorous in stocking up with the more expensive lines that are sold only in small quantities at any other time of the year.

His best means of capturing this trade is by advertising in the local paper and making special displays in his windows. It is exceedingly difficult to arrange a display from such common and uninteresting lines as sugar, rice, etc., but a fresh shipment of a good quality of seedless raisins, or figs, Malaga grapes and other such lines provides great opportunities, and are always of interest to the housewife during December. The Christmas cake is being made now, and for this there will be required large quantities of good currants, raisins, and fruit peels, that will be bought from the store that can show them in the most interesting manner.

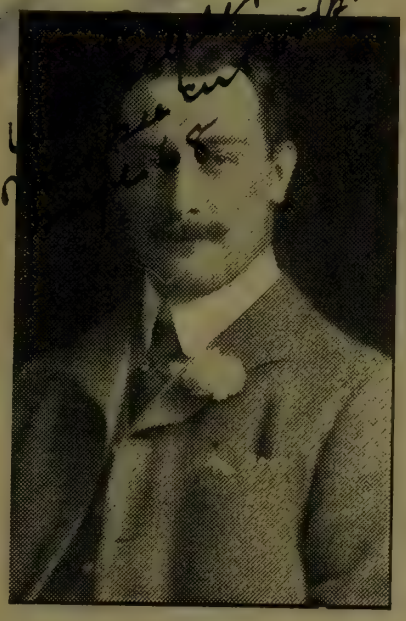
A MONTREAL COMMISSION MAN.

THE Board of Trade building in Montreal is fast becoming a hive of commission merchants. As it is centrally located it is especially attractive to brokers and commission merchants having business relations with the grocery, provision and wine and spirit trades. A visit to room 204, where Mr. I. S. Wotherspoon's office is located, will bear witness to this fact, and a glance over the list of agencies below will show the extensive field covered by him. In addition to the firms represented, Mr. Wotherspoon has lately been appointed representative for The Amalgamated Distillers Co., London and Glasgow; The British and Bennington's Tea Trading Association, Limited, London; the "Golconda" [illegible] tea;



Mr. I. S. Wotherspoon, Montreal.

Brown & Park, brandies, and Findlater, Mackie & Todd, "Duc de Marne" champagne.

Mr. Wotherspoon is an expert in dairy matters, and for many years has been Canadian buyer and correspondent for some of the largest English provision and commission houses in Liverpool and London. The firms represented by him in Canada are: Brand & Co., London, sauces, beef preparatives, etc.; Grimble & Co., London, vinegars; Dunville & Co., Irish and Scotch whiskies; M. Risk & Son, Scotch whiskies; The Lombard Milk and Cream Co., sterilized milk, etc.; Canadian Packing Co., beef fluid, etc.

Mr. Wotherspoon annually visits the markets of Great Britain and keeps himself thoroughly in touch with the trade and its requirements, and is thus in a position to look after the interests of his principals in a most satisfactory manner.

FLOUR AND CEREAL FOODS

Ontario's Cereal Crops, 1903.

THE final estimate of the Ontario Bureau of Industries on the crops of Ontario for 1903, just handed out, are on the whole quite satisfactory. These estimates are founded on the returns of over 2,000 special correspondents, and show a yield per acre, especially in the case of Fall wheat, that is most gratifying. The acreage for some crops was small, but promises to be better next year.

FALL WHEAT.

The yield per acre is large, and the quality as a rule first class, despite some sprouted by wet weather in harvest. The grain is well up in weight, some going from 62 to 64 pounds per bushel. Altogether the crop of 1903 may be considered as one of the best in the history of the province. There is an increased area sown this year, and less trouble is reported from Hessian fly. The young wheat is reported in fine condition at present. The final returns for 1903 are reported as: acreage, 665,028 acres; yield, 17,242,763 bushels, or 25.9 bushels per acre. In 1902 the yield was 20,233,669 bushels.

SPRING WHEAT.

Spring wheat is diminishing in favor in Ontario, but is reported above the average. It is estimated that there were 248,518 acres under crop, yielding 4,949,233 bushels, or 19.9 bushels per acre. In 1902 the yield was 6,648,024 bushels.

BARLEY.

There has been an immense yield of barley, plump and of excellent feeding value, although a considerable amount was discolored by the rain. There was under crop 709,839 acres, yielding 24,378,814, or 34 bushels to the acre.

OATS.

The yield of oats is reported to be large and mostly of excellent quality, although a portion is said to be light in weight. Under crop, 2,645,965 acres; yield, 110,228,103, or 34.3 bushells per acre.

PEAS.

The acreage this year is but one-half of what it was five years ago owing to the ravages of the weevel. This year's crop appears to have been more of a success: Under crop, 407,133 acres; yield, 8,924,650 bushels, or 21.9 bushels per acre. In 1902 the yield was 7,664,679 bushels, or an average yield per acre of 14.4 bushels.

BUCKWHEAT.

This crop is not extensively grown, but has turned out good, both as to yield and quality: In crop, 95,487 acres; yield, 249,169 bushels, or 21.5 bushels per acre.

RYE.

This also is a comparatively little grown crop which this year did well: In crop, 179,277 acres; yield, 2,970,768 bushels, or 16.6 bushels per acre.

BEANS.

This crop is variously described. It suffered from rain while growing and when being pulled, and there was a tendency to run too much to straw. Not only was harvesting delayed by rain, but some of the crop was also discolored from this cause. Notwithstanding these complaints several correspondents speak well of the crop, which aggregates 50 per cent. more than last year: In crop, 55,039 acres; yield, 978,246 bushels, or 18.4 bushels per acre. In 1902 the yield was 670,633 bushels.

CORN FOR HUSKING.

This crop has been uneven, ranging from poor to good: In crop 378,921 acres: yield, 29,287,888 bushels (in the ear), or 77.3 bushels per acre. The crop in 1902 was 20,512,194 bushels.

Ship Grain All Winter.

A PORT ARTHUR despatch says: A busy Winter is promised for the trainmen on the eastern division of the C.P.R., as it is the intention of the Canadian Pacific to ship a large proportion of the grain now in the West to the east by all-rail. Superintendent Erickson has received word from Montreal to have his division in readiness by December 1 to handle 200 cars of east-bound freight daily during the close of navigation. A special rate is to be given any shipments of wheat to European markets.

The C.P.R. have inaugurated a Winter steamship service from St. John, N.B., and the grain will be carried to that port for transshipment to England by their own steamers. By this service the company is in a position to quote a rate which it is expected will be taken advantage of by a large number of western shippers, and it is anticipated that by the opening of navigation there will be but little export grain for shipment by the lake route.

Previous to this Winter the large proportion of grain was stored in the C.P.R. elevators at Fort William and the Northwest to be transshipped east by boat via the lakes at the opening of navigation. With the grain going east by the all-rail roate it will naturally affect the shipping trade at the head of the lakes next season. Large shipments of flour will also be made by the all-rail route.

Grain Blockade in the West.

COMPLAINTS of car shortage throughout the West, particularly at points west of Brandon, along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, says The Winnipeg Telegram, are daily growing in number and intensity, and reports received here by local grain men indicate that the situation is rapidly assuming a serious form. Elevators at dozens of points in Manitoba and the Territories are now packed to the roof with grain, and farmers have given up hope of shipping their grain at these places, owing to absolute inability to get the much-needed cars. As a result of the tie-up many local grain firms have notified their buyers in the country to cease buying, though this order applies only to towns on the C.P.R. On the C.N.R. no trouble has yet arisen, cars seemingly being plentiful and the movement up to date being all that could be desired. The members of the grain trade, when asked what they are going to do about it, simply shrug their shoulders and reply, "What's the use?" The C.P.R. officials, in spite of complaints, continue to maintain that the company have lots of cars in the West, in fact more cars than at any previous period in the company's history, but they fail to explain, if such is the case, why it is that many points along their lines are crying for transportation facilities which never seem to be furnished. The grain men, while they are reticent, imply that the C.P.R. have storage space for millions of bushels of grain at Fort William, and that it is the company's policy to delay shipments east until the close of navigation, when the grain will be stored in their terminal elevators and lie there practically all Winter at a storage charge, which means a huge profit for the road. In addition a large quantity of wheat will also be shipped all rail to St. John, where this year a fleet of C.P.R. ocean vessels will thus be sure of cargoes. Whether or not this is the exact state of affairs remains to be seen, but grain men maintain that if the company have all the transportation facilities at their disposal in the West that is claimed, it is surprising that they have done so little up to date to meet the demand for cars, which is hourly growing, and the effect is a heavy loss to the farmers and the elevator owners."

When this charge was brought to the attention of Mr. D. McNicoll, general manager of the C.P.R., he indignantly denied it. The amount of grain in the interior elevators to-day, said Mr. McNicol, is very much less than it was at this time last year. Perhaps some shippers have been unable to get all the cars they require, but that at times is inevitable. The grain act requires that cars be supplied in rotation, so that if a man asks for half a dozen cars he may find that there are fifty others who have submitted orders before him. In consequence, it is a moral impossibility to supply all the cars that are required immediately upon the receipt of an order. I deny it is a part of our fixed policy to hold up grain at Fort William. The Canadian Pacific Railway will hold nothing back. I do not say that the grain men themselves are responsible for the grain all being delivered for shipment within the space of two weeks, but it is certain that the company are doing all they can possibly do to facilitate transportation.

Record Grain Cargoes.

The big American steamer Princeton, Captain M. A. Boyce, left Fort William last week with 248,000 bushels of wheat for Buffalo. This is a record cargo of 7,440 tons, and the boat was only drawing 17 feet 8 inches. Capt. Boyce said they could put on more grain, but, owing to Lime Kiln Crossing, below Detroit, they could not go through drawing any more water.

The steamer Tadousac, Captain Hall, with 118,000 bushels of grain, for Depot Harbor, also accompanied the Princeton down, the Lake Superior boats leaving the port together.

Western Buckwheat.

Eight million bushels of buckwheat have been shipped so far from the C.P. and C. N. terminal elevators, according to a Winnipeg despatch. This is over a million less than last year. There are still two million bushels in the terminal and six million bushels in the inland elevators.

Canada Atlantic Busy.

The grain trade on the Canada Atlantic Railway is keeping up exceedingly well this season. It is estimated that during this season the road will carry close to 30,000,000 bushels of wheat to Montreal. Of this amount about 20,000,000 bushels will be from American lake ports, and the balance from Canadian lake ports. At present the trade into Depot Harbor is larger than it has been any season since the road opened. There are five or ten lake boats in and out of the harbor every week, loaded with grain and package freight.

A Good Threshing.

Mr. J. Agnew's machine, says The Canadian Thresherman, working on Mr. Thos. Jasper's farm, some three miles east of Hartney, Man., turned out in 16 hours' work 6,404 bushels of grain. In finishing up the oat sheaves, 700 bushels of oats were threshed in one hour's time.

Seed for High Latitudes.

SCANDINAVIA has been troubled with a scarcity of seed grain inured to the Arctic climate of the Norrland. In view of the fact that Canadian and other foreign grains sown there have not produced seed, Paul Hellstrom, chief of the Government Biological Institution, at Lulea, has projected a method of hardening oats, barley and other plants to frost. His plan is to grow the plants in a greenhouse, where the temperature can be regulated by means of a refrigerating machine. The lowest temperature the plants will stand without being frostbitten will first be ascertained; the temperature will then be lowered below this point and the hardy plants that survive left to mature seed for next year.

Seed obtained in this manner will be sown and subjected to a temperature slightly lower than that which the plants survived. The seed produced by the survivors of the second year's freezing treatment will be subjected to the same treatment and so on for five or six years, when, it is supposed, plants grown from these seeds will be able to withstand the night frosts which so frequently destroy the crops in the Norrland. The Government has decided to bear the expense of the experiments, which, if they succeed, may avert a recurrence of famine in the Northern province.

Grain Rates East of Buffalo.

New railroad freight rates east of Buffalo have become effective, which means an advance of one-half cent per bushel on wheat, corn, oats and barley. The railroads will not make their usual advance in rates at the close of navigation. The rates now current will remain in force until December 31, when they will be advanced to the figures current before September 16.

Breadstuffs in Trinidad.

Gordon Grant & Co., Port of Spain, Trinidad, writing November 4, say: "There is no change in American breadstuffs, for which there is a very restricted demand. All grades of flour are in over supply and values are gradually weakening. Recent light arrivals of No. 2 Canadian extras have sold readily and it seems a pity that millers in the Dominion are so indifferent about retaining a share of our trade. Cornmeal is gradually weakening, owing to the harvesting of the native corn crop. The frequent opportunities to import by steamers of late at low rates of freight have induced dealers to lay in supplies in excess of actual requirements and arrivals for some time to come are likely to be restricted."

L. O. Couture & Co., general merchants, St. Gedeon, have assigned to V. E. Paradis.

COFFEE AND SPICES

Review of Coffee Situation.

ALTHOUGH a fair amount of speculative interest has been shown in the market for coffee, says The New York Journal of Commerce, the trading has been less active than for some weeks and the net changes in price for the week are unimportant. The movement of the Brazil crop thus far in November has shown a steady falling off, the receipts at Rio and Santos since the first of November showing a decrease of over 100,000 bags, as compared with the corresponding period last year. It is quite generally contended by those favorably disposed towards the market that up to November 1, when 6,345,000 bags were received, at least 60 per cent. of the Rio and Santos crops was marketed, and that the total outturn of these crops will fall slightly below 11,000,000 bags; they call attention to the unusually small movement of the Brazil crop during the second half of the 1899-1900 crop season and state that their information leads them to believe that the same conditions will be experienced during the second half of the present crop year. The latest information from Brazil relative to the outlook for the growing Rio and Santos crops is unfavorable, and The Brazilian Review, in its issue of November 17, it was reported by cable, stated it was expected that the yield of the growing Rio and Santos crops will prove to be smaller than the outturn of the crops now being marketed. The reports from the western part of Sao Paulo were understood to be especially discouraging.

The principal factor that is at present operating against the market is the apathy of the trade demand. The advance in prices for actual coffee, as compared with those ruling at the close of last Summer, represent an increased cost of about $2 per bag. In the face of the enormous world's stock of coffee and the fact that the total arrivals of coffee at Rio and Santos to date for the crop year are in excess of those for the same period last year, interior buyers as a general rule show a disposition to fight the advance and have been holding back. The rise in prices also has been sufficient to bring into evidence the contentions of many that a considerable invisible supply of coffee must have accumulated in the hands of the interior dealers during the prolonged period of low prices and excessive supplies. The dullness of the distributing business the past few weeks certainly indicates that the consuming trade at present is working on reserve stocks, but the question yet to be determined is: To what extent do they exist?

A feature of the trading in the speculative market for the past ten days has been the switching by outside longs of their holdings in December to the more distant deliveries, in order to avoid taking up and carrying actual supplies of coffee. The leading bull interests, however, are supposed to be prepared to take care of all the coffee that will be tendered on December contracts, it being self-evident that with the present heavy world's stock of coffee it will be necessary to take care of a considerable quantity of actual coffee to carry through successfully a bull campaign in coffee, even though subsequent developments may prove, as predicted, that the production of coffee in Brazil has at last fallen to below consumptive requirements, and that inroads into the world's present surplus stock will have to be made during the next few years.

Zanzibar Chillies.

It was learned that New York bear operators in Zanzibar chillies have bought in contracts the past couple of days for over 1,000 bales, paying prices above ruling spot quotations. The spot stocks in London and Europe are reported as practically nil and local spot holdings are less than 500 bales, and controlled by a few hands. No new crop supplies will reach this market before May-June.

Trinidad Cocoa.

Mail advices from Trinidad say of cocoa: "But very restricted supplies are now available, and there is no livelihood of any increase until well on in December, when the next picking will commence. Future prospects are less favorable, the sudden change in the weather having resulted in a large proportion of the young fruit withering and dropping off. Keen competition exists for all offerings."

Speculation in Pepper.

London advices report bear operators buying in short contracts of Singapore black pepper for August, October, September, November and October-December shipment from the East, paying 6⅞d., which it was figured was the equivalent of 13¼c. in New York.

Production of Cloves.

John Kissock & Co., New York, state that they have received the following figures regarding Zanibar cloves:

	1903.	1902.	1901.	1900.	1899.
Visible supply in Europe and America on Nov. 1	49,700	69,900	89,600	108,000	123,600
Total crop	35-40,000	105,000	85,000	60,000	.....

"The crop for present year (as above stated) is estimated. Some good authorities claim that 35,000 will be nearer the mark than 40,000 bales. If we take the larger estimate—say 40,000 bales, and add the visible supply as above shown, we have a total of 89,700 bales. The actual consumption last year was 123-125,000 bales. Granted an equal consumption this year, we have a shortage of say at least 43,000 bales. There is an idea that the United Statec only consumes about 12-15,000 bales per annum, but this is altogether erroneous. After careful investigation we have no hesitation in stating that the consumption in the United States during the present year will amount to 25-30,000 bales, with the larger figure as the more likely result."

Cayennes Advancing,

John Clarke & Co., New York, say of spices: "The market has been quiet, with no remarkable changes in any grade and no special developments in foreign markets. Cayennes are slowly advancing for the lower grades, as the shortage in the better kind is now certain. As usual our market is the cheapest in the world for nearly every spice."

WINDSOR GROCERS AND WABASH.

Employes of the Wabash Railroad resident in Windsor are in the habit of bringing butter and eggs to Windsor from St. Thomas and way stations, free of charge, to the detriment of Windsor grocers. It is reported that the latter petitioned the head officers of the road in the latter city to order the practice stopped. It is said that the company replied by threatening to order a large number of their men to move to St. Thomas, where they can live cheaply. This order would mean that about 150 families would leave Windsor.

Butter and eggs cane be obtaibed very much cheaper around St. Thomas than in Windsor, and the railroad men living in Windsor take advantage of their work on the road to purchase the produce.

The Windsor grocers individually deny sending any petition to the road making such a request, but one of the members of The Retail Dealers' Association remarked to a representative of a daily paper that such action had been taken at their last meeting.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

The Editor "Canadian Grocer" : I read with much interest the circular issued by The Wholesale Grocers' Guild Executive, complaining of a brokerage company being formed in Toronto and selling direct to the retail grocery trade. It was also pointed out what an injustice this was to the retail grocers who are not members of this joint stock company. Retail grocers may have some reason to complain of this, but at least they have the privilege of taking up stock in the company, and thereby buy their goods through this firm of brokers ; but how about the injustice of wholesale grocers going into the retail trade in Toronto, and yet this is exactly what T. B. Escott has done, who acts as secretary in signing this circular, so that the secretary of The Wholesale Grocers' Guild is actually in the retail grocery business in Toronto.

"Merchant."

WHOLESALE GROCERY AT WOODSTOK.

A new wholesale grocery is soon to be opened in Woodstock, Ont., by Tudhope Bros., who for the past five years have been in the retail business in that city. A joint stock company has been formed with Messrs. Geo. H. Tudhope and Herbert M. Tudhope as the principal shareholders. The company is capitalized at $30,000, divided into 300 shares of $100 each. As soon as the wholesale business is in operation Tudhope Bros. will give up their retail establishment.

At the present time there is no wholesale grocery in Oxford County, and the new firm purpose going into the grocery and provision trade on an extensive scale, beginning first locally and extending over the province and the Northwest.

A DEPARTMENT FOR RETAIL MERCHANTS.

Tobacco Licenses.

THE movement on the part of some interested persons to have the tobacco license fee in Toronto raised from $5 to $50 is a blow at the interests of the grocer that should be met by concentrated action through the association. Most grocers have a neat little tobacco department which nets them a very fair return for investment and expenses under a $5 license, but a $50 license would in many cases make the department unprofitable, and is altogether unjustifiable. The suggestion that minors secure their cigarettes from the grocery store is certainly a libel on the trade. A grocer has other things to do than sell cigarettes to children, and although there may be exceptional cases, it is well within the mark to say that the grocers would compare very favorably with those who are making the complaint. The grocers of late have been increasing their hold on the tobacco business, as is quite within their legitimate sphere, and the movement, to raise the license under pretext of preventing the selling of cigarettes to minors, is merely a subtle device to cut them off from this profitable line.

The contention that higher license would prevent the selling to minors is altogether specious. It might just as effectively be argued on the other hand that dealers would have to sell to all buyers in order to pay the heavy license. The matter depends altogether upon the character of the dealer and the rigidity with which the law is enforced.

Growth of Tobacco Department.

FROM reports received from those interested in our advertising columns as also from information gleaned from other sources THE CANADIAN GROCER congratulates itself on the interest it has aroused in the cigar and tobacco branch of the grocery trade. Many grocers tell us that, acting on the suggestions made in this paper, they have added a cigar department with the most satisfactory results, and that both from a pecuniary and every other point of view they are more than pleased with the experiment. This season quite a number of grocers have also added a small assortment of pipes, for which they have found a ready and profitable sale.

Very little capital is locked up in a stock of this description. It is not only a remunerative line, but a perfectly legitimate addition to the stock of any well-regulated grocery store of the present day. The necessary fittings, showcase, etc., can now be purchased at a very small expense, and we are glad to learn that many of our retail firms contemplate giving the cigar and tobacco department a trial during the coming year.

Italian Tobacco Monopoly.

THE total value of manufactured tobacco sold in Italy in 1901 was 201,476,948 lire (lire, 20 cents). The customs receipts on imported cigars for private use were 150,535 lire, making the gross receipts for the year 201,627,483 lire. The gross expenses were 48,535,404, leaving a net profit of 153,094,079 lire, an increase of over 4,000,000 lire on the previous year. The sale of native-manufactured tobacco increased over 5,000,000 lire in the fiscal year 1901-2.

The sale of smoking tobacco, which had, up to last year, steadily decreased, shows a decided improvement, and the constant increase of cigar sales shows that the cigar is rapidly pushing out the German cigarette.

The exports to South America show a decrease of 125,069 pounds, in value 333,334 lire on the year. (Considering that the trade consists solely of machine-made stogies from United States tobacco, it is a disgrace to American enterprise that this robber monopoly was ever allowed to build up such a trade in the new world. If there is anything in the world which would help us to uphold the Monroe doctrine and prevent that "acquirement of control which, in effect, is equal to territorial aggrandizement," it is by building up and holding the balance of trade in South America.)

The outstanding tobacco in Canada is T & B. Not because we assert it, but because of its own inherent excellence backed up by public favor. Of course we know it because the tobacco business is our one thought all the time. We built up the good name of T & B Smoking Tobacco by making it better than any other produced in this country. In the course of time smokers, and then grocers and tobacconists, found out that it was the best tobacco made.

In buying foreign leaf the Regie hold fast to their former system of buying direct through their own agents, and are at present trying to place themselves in such relations with the Brazilian planters as will extricate them from the grip of the combination of middlemen of that country.

The native culture remains a hard problem. Perhaps if the laws of supply and demand ruled prices, instead of the decision of a few Regie officers, the peasants would find more incentive to plant tobacco.

In 1899 permissions to plant 107,000,000 native plants were issued; in 1900, 31,000 less, to which, however, were added 50,000 permissions to raise plants from Kentucky, and 150,000 from Hungarian seed. In spite of the discouraging conditions of the native culture, the amount of Italian tobacco used by the Regie increased from 6,875,000 pounds in 1900 to over 12,000,000 pounds in 1901. The experiments with Kentucky which were inaugurated a few years since by Count Torlonia, have proved so successful that the Regie will plant several large tracts of land in the Roman Campagna during the present year.

To Increase License Fee.

THERE is a movement on foot in Toronto to increase the Tobacco license fee in that city with the covert object it is said of driving the small dealers out of the business. The attempt is modelled, according to a daily paper, upon the lines of the agitation last Fall for an increase in the laundry license fee, by which the larger laundrymen expected, but failed, to drive out Chinese competition.

A tobacco and cigarette license now costs $25, while a license granting the privilege of selling cigars and tobacco alone may be secured for $5. The high license fee for cigarettes was imposed with the hope that it would in a measure restrain the consumption of cigarettes by minors. It has not accomplished this, but on the contrary tends to increase the evil. Many of the small candy and grocery stores which hold only a cigar and tobacco license, the larger dealers say, keep cigarettes secretly and sell them to small boys, who would not be served in a regular tobacco shop. No suspicion is attached to a minor visiting one of the little combination shops, while a boy's appearance at a regular tobacco store would rouse all the Mrs. Grundys of the neighborhood and bring the plain clothes policeman down upon the offender.

If the license fee is raised to $50 it will drive many small dealers out of business. That is the object entirely of those who are agitating the advance, though they try to cloak their scheme with the cry that they want to aid in depriving the small boy of his cigarette and to prevent those who hold only $5 licenses from breaking the law.

Big Project for Texas.

A press report from New Orleans states that the details of a tobacco growing corporation to be established at Nacogdoches, Texas, are being arranged. About $3,000,000 will be invested, and Mr. Gilbert Shaw, retired president of the American Trust and Savings Bank, will be the president of the syndicate.

Nacogdoches is the point at which the Agricultural Department last year carried on such successful experiments. Tobacco identical with the best Havana was grown, and experts declared that the opportunities for growing fine tobacco were most excellent.

Ontario's Tobacco Crop.

Final returns from the Ontario Department of Agriculture show a yield of 2,423,031 lbs. of tobacco this year, as against 3,070,717 lbs. in 1902, a shortage of 547,686 lbs.

Tobacco Notes.

T. J. Harrocks reports the sale of the "Ronto" cigar as being very large, and a present he is unable to cope with the demand.

The business of the Erie Tobacco Company has seen large development during the past year. Their goods have steadily grown in popularity, and their advertisement in our columns will give a suggestion as to the lines of their manufacture.

Canadian leaf tobacco sales are on the increase with Mr. E. Moyer, who represents J. W. Fortier & Co., Montreal, in the eastern part of Quebec. His orders for his firm's cigars are also most satisfactory.

Mr. R. Durocher, representing Ed. Youngheart & Co., Montreal, is in Ottawa doing the jobbing trade for his firm, and placing the merits of "John Bull" and "Olympia" cigars before the trade. Mr. Durocher also represents J. U. Gervais & Co., of Joliette, P.Q., manufacturers of Canadian leaf tobaccos. Mr. Durocher's headquarters are in Ottawa, where he is well known to the trade.

DEPARTMENT OF ADVERTISING SUGGESTION AND CRITICISM

Edited by
W. Arthur Lydiatt,
TORONTO.

NOTE—Herein are discussed the principles and practice of advertising. Subscribers are invited to send Mr. Lydiatt specimens of their newspaper and other advertising, for the purpose of review in this department. Address care of Department of Advertising, THE CANADIAN GROCER.

The Confidence of the Public is Never Won by Talking Down the Goods of a Competitor.

ADVERTISING and publicity are the same—yet different. Advertising consists of telling the public all the facts about certain commodities, while publicity may consist merely of keeping one's name and business before the public.

Both have their value. But advertising always gives the publicity and at the same time makes a strong bid for actual, tangible results.

The retailer needs advertising as distinguished from bare publicity, yet most retailers seem satisfied with the publicity alone. Many a retailer has made a dismal failure of advertising because he failed to understand the difference between publicity and advertising, and has bought publicity when advertising was what was needed.

And a great many of them are doing this same thing every day, wasting nobody knows how many hundreds of dollars.

Laziness, incompetence or thoughtlessness usually accounts for this misconception of the true purpose of advertising. Thoughtlessness or neglect is most generally to blame.

The merchant contracts to use a certain amount of space in the local paper because he thinks he ought to. His competitors advertise regularly and he thinks he must follow suit if he is to stand an even chance, or he buys the space because for the moment he thinks he could increase his business in this way.

The conditions under which most of my readers do business make publicity absolutely unnecessary to them. The storekeeper in the average size town in Canada does not need to spend money for space in the local newspaper to tell people he is in business and to mention the general lines of goods he carries. Everybody knows this.

What he needs is the kind of advertising that will tell people why they ought to deal with him in preference to his competitors—without, of course, casting any slurs at the competitors—and the advertising that will create needs by suggesting them.

Most people will go on buying their goods at the same store they have been in the habit of patronizing, until some more enterprising storekeeper makes a bid for their trade, and if any good reasons are advanced why the patronage should be transferred, they are likely to prove effectual in securing those people's trade.

People are also thoughtless about their own needs as a general rule. It never occurs to most of us that we need certain things until their desirability is brought forcibly to our attention.

Telling them that your store is the place to buy so-and-so, without giving any reasons, is not going to get their trade.

But if at this time of year, for instance, you keep reminding them of the many different things which would add to their comfort—if you would talk about your goods in a way that would create a desire for them—it is more than likely a great many of your townsmen—even those who are your regular customers—will come to a realization of the need of some of the things you have advertised, and ten to one you will make a sale.

Bare publicity gives no reasons.

Bare publicity seldom brings results to the retailer.

The ad. which week in and week out conveys no information except that Smith & Jones are in the grocery business, and that they have the best stock of this or that in town—or that they have a full line of so-and-so—is publicity pure and simple, and even though it may in the long run show some results, it certainly does not bring sufficient results to make it profitable to Smith & Jones.

Advertising can and will certainly pay a profit if the investments are judiciously made and proper attention is given to them.

Fall and Winter Trade—What are you doing about it?

—just letting it take care of itself, or are you getting busy and telling grocers where to find what they want, and showing them that they want what you have?

Others are doing this in all sorts of ways—principally through advertising in THE CANADIAN GROCER. This is certainly the best and quickest—also the surest—way to reach all of the grocers and general storekeepers throughout the Dominion.

Here you have a large audience made up entirely of all the grocers worth while in Canada, who are constantly on the lookout for opportunities to buy to better advantage. They look through THE GROCER every week for the opportunities, and GROCER advertisers benefit.

Our Department of Advertising Service helps advertisers in THE GROCER to get the greatest possible results out of their expenditure by rendering expert assistance in the preparation of effective advertising copy. This service is rendered free of charge to those who desire it.

are still better than a good many grocers' ads. I see.

The reference to Mr. John Mathieson in the Glenora flour ad. is a good idea, if I am right in presuming that Mr. Mathieson is well known locally. This ad. might be worked to a better advantage however.

Sticking to the idea of this ad. as far as possible, I think it would be an improvement to say:

I am in doubt as to whether the making of the comparison is good policy or not.

Don't you sell to the bakers?

Wouldn't it be better to make a similar comparison between the results obtained by using Glenora flour and "common" flour?

About the best expression I've ever heard in advertising flour or bread is one which has been used considerably. I think it originated in the Western States, "For goodness sake eat Atlas bread."

Mr. Jno. Mathieson, of Coningsby,
Made 22 lbs. of Bread
With 14 lbs. of Glenora Flour.

11 loaves of baker's bread cost you..... 55c.
11 " made from Glenora flour cost you.. 31c.
24c.

By making your own bread with Glenora flour you save 24c.—or nearly 50 per cent.

Isn't it worth while?

The suggested menues in the convention ad. would hardly tickle the palate of an epicure. I think these might have been arranged with more care to the betterment of the bill of fare for the day.

One would hardly care to follow rolled oats served hot with grape nuts or force. It is usually one or the other—preferably the hot dish in the cold weather.

Prices on some of the articles might as well have been mentioned.

The little order card is a good idea. It is of a size to go in the vest pocket, and gives a list of articles carried in stock, with a space for a customer to check off her wants, and also a blank space for memos. oppears on the top of the card.

I wonder if these cards are ever used.
